Life's a Kick for Quads; Parents Bushed

By BOB GIEVET
Staff Writer

Four infant boys born Friday afternoon to Mrs. Janice Curtin, 30, of Garden Grove are really kicking around their incubators, but she and her husband Robert, 35, are "completely exhausted."

She complained of weakness, which millions of mothers could well understand even if she had delivered only one child.

He was sleepy and tired, for he found little rest after the historic happening at Garden Park Hospital, Anaheim, where Dr. Charles W. Plows took the quads by Caesarian section.

Curtin said that so many people called him at his home, 10032 Bonser St., that he finally had to sleep in his car.

And it wasn't very comfortable, he added.

After visiting with his offspring briefly Saturday, he sat with his wife. But she was so tired and groggy that he decided to go home and try for more sleep.

And so, save for the never-ending round of attention the four small tykes are getting from nurses, the hospital settled into something of a routine.

It will be jumping again today, though; more of the Curtin clan and many friends will seek to peek at the little guys, so far identified only as A, B, C and D.

In order, they arrived at 4 pounds 8½ ounces, 4 pounds 4½ ounces, 4 pounds 3½ ounces, and 2 pounds 10 ounces.

Yes, thank you: little D is holding his own. He's being fed intravenously, but he's taking it. He's in good shape. So are his three brothers.

All the boys are perfectly formed; they kick and move constantly when not asleep — which is most of the time — and they let out tiny-size cries when they're hungry. Which seems most of the time, the nurses said with smiles.

Mr. and Mrs. Curtin knew there would be multiple births. She had been x-rayed July 15 and Dr. Plows broke the news that there were four.

The Curtins got things ready, including a lot of names — mostly for boys, since that's what they were supposed to be.

During delivery, Mrs. Curtin rattled off some names, but they were partly unintelligible; anyway, everybody was so busy that nobody remembered them.

Now the proud parents have to put some combinations together for the four boys.

Their brother, 6-year-old Robert, said he'd like to help name them.

When their names are recorded, Orange County history will be made; they're the only quads ever born in the county, and Dr. Plows said that quadruplets come along only once in 730,000 births.

ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Middle of the Road?

Q. How can I find out if my home on East 65th Street is going to be demolished to make way for the Artesia Freeway? I've called the city, but haven't been able to get an answer. E.H., Long Beach.

A. Milton Stark of the State Division of Highways said "it appears" that your property will be needed for the freeway right of way. However, to make sure, he asks you to contact the division with a legal description of your property and lot. He said letters are sent "in plenty of time" to property owners in a new freeway's path. You may call the division at 620-3550 for further information. Construction of the Artesia Freeway is expected to reach the Long Beach Freeway by 1971.

Old Soldier

Q. Where can I obtain information on a relative who served in the Army during the Civil War? J.M., San Pedro.

A. Compiled service records for volunteer soldiers who fought in wars from the Revolution through the Philippine Insurrection are on file in the National Archives. The records normally show the soldier's rank, military organization, term of service and sometimes his age, place of birth, and place of enlistment. A photocopy of the record can be obtained by sending $1 to the National Archives, National Archives and Records Service, General Services Administration, Washington, D.C. 20408. When requesting a photocopy of a file, be sure to include the soldier's exact name, the war in which he served, the state from which he entered the service, and his regiment. If no record is found, the $1 is returned. You can also request National Archives personnel to search the files to see if your relative ever filed a claim for a pension or bounty land. Each claim — whether for bounty land or pensions—is filed under the name of the veteran whose service is the basis for the claim. You can obtain further help in obtaining genealogical information on your relative by contacting the Southern California Genealogical Society Library, 835 Locust Ave., Long Beach, 435-3814.

Indian Giving

Q. Where can I find a picture of James Earle Fraser's work, "End of the Trail"? My father has always admired it. Mrs. C. J., Lakewood.

A. A photograph of the bronze statue showing an exhausted Indian on horseback will be sent to you by the Kennedy Art Galleries in New York. Fraser created the 36-inch high statue in 1908, and in 1915, it was shown at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in San Francisco. Born in Winona, Minn., in 1876, Fraser grew up on the Dakota prairies. He found friends among the Indians and later used them as subjects for his sculptures.

License

Q. I live in Flagstaff, Ariz., but am visiting California for four months. My driver's license is due to expire Sept. 7. I mailed a renewal application to the Department of Motor Vehicles two weeks ago but I haven't had any acknowledgment, and am worried that I may be without a valid license. M.H.T., Long Beach.

A. Rose Harding, applications clerk in the Phoenix office of the Arizona Department of Motor Vehicles, found your application approved and your new license ready for delivery. She said a backlog of paperwork has delayed it but she will personally see that it is mailed to you right away.

Newlyweds Ron and Kathy Taft Split the Scene Along Railroad Tracks
—AP Wirephoto

Why All the Fuss? Doesn't Everybody Wed at 6 a.m.?

By TONY CILLO
Staff Writer

All Ron and Kathy wanted to do was get married.

Of course, where and when they wanted to get married was a little different, but —

Zap! From nowhere come the gendarmes. Asking questions, and wondering what it's all 'bout.

The kids wanted to get married at Ports O'Call Village? So what? It does make a scenic background for pictures.

But at 6 o'clock in the morning? Well, that's something else. Like gettin' married is bad nuff, let alone before the sun comes up.

BUT RONALD TAFT, 21, of Norwalk, and Kathy (now Mrs. Taft) Terpstra, 19, of Artesia, wanted to get married, and they wanted to get married at Ports O'Call (because of the pictures) and they wanted to get married at 6 o'clock in the morning ("the air's fresher," said Ron) and they did. But not without a small delay.

Attired in 18th Century costumes—all part of the something-different atmosphere — the couple arrived at the colorful San Pedro restaurant-shopping attraction in the grey predawn.

She in her off-white gown and he in top hat and tails.

Lo! 'Twas a vision of prenuptial bliss and originality.

Unto this scene of early morning serenity came a black and white spectre. Ron and Kathy aren't sure which city was represented, but they know the black-and-whites belonged to the police.

ZOOMING DOWN on the outdoor wedding were three police units and a paddy wagon, said Taft. While the men in blue may have looked askance at the entire idea — after all, who would get up before dawn to get married? — they apparently were overwhelmed with the aura of love — a guest in motorcycle club garb notwithstanding — and the wedding went off.

Of course, the inquisitiveness of the police meant the wedding, performed by a Baptist minister from Torrance, was a little late — which didn't matter all that much, because the light was better for those memorable pictures Ron and Kathy wanted.

The minister, incidentally, agreed about the pictures. "He kept insisting," said Taft, smiling, "we shouldn't leave there without getting a shot in front of the Ports O'Call Village sign."

Which was a nice thought, even if the newlyweds didn't exactly get married at Ports O'Call.

U.S. Investigates Lawmakers' Link in Bribery Count

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal grand jury is investigating charges Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., and former Sen. Daniel B. Brewster, D-Md., may have been involved with possible bribery on a government contract, the Washington Post said in a copyrighted story Saturday.

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., no relation to the senator, also was involved in a dispute over construction of underground parking facilities for the Rayburn House Office Building, although not necessarily in connection with the grand jury investigation.

REACHED in Baton Rouge, La., Saturday, Sen. Long replied to the Post story: "What they're talking about is simply unconfirmed reports leaking out of a grand jury room, or perhaps unconfirmed reports leaking from the FBI."

The FBI has been conducting extensive investigations into the garage controversy, including the involvement of the Maryland congressman.

Sen. Long added, "I have done nothing wrong and I think that when the grand jury's through, that's what they'll conclude."

A grand jury investigation is no indication of guilt of any sort.

The Post story said allegations of bribes were involved in the case and "a number of charges involving the silver-haired Brewster are being heard by the grand jury."

THE INVESTIGATION is being conducted by U.S. Atty. Stephen H. Sachs in Baltimore. He was quoted in the Post: "I have no specific comment at all, other than to say that a special grand jury in Baltimore has been inquiring into possible violations of federal bribery laws since early this year."

Brewster, who the Post said was worth about $2.5 million, was traveling in Ireland and could not be reached for comment.

Sen. Long told the Post Friday night. "The grand jury started out investigating what happened to the money that went into Dan Brewster's campaign fund.

"The way they (grand jury) dragged me into this was that a friend of mine contributed $2,000 to (Brewster's) campaign. That check went into the

Hurricane Francelia to Hit Jamaica

MIAMI (AP) — Sucking strength from the warm Caribbean, a full-scale hurricane, Francelia, Saturday sent 75-mile-per hour winds racing toward islands south of Jamaica.

Air Force planes probing the swift-moving storm reported the hurricane had taken a slight turn to the north and accelerated to a forward speed of 20 m.p.h.

The National Hurricane Center at Miami said the hurricane's gales extended 175 miles in a northern semi-circle that would affect most of Jamaica early today.

The center said the northerly shift in direction would bring the eye of the storm churning about 125 miles south of the Jamaican coast.

All craft around Jamaica and Grand Cayman were warned to remain in safe harbor.

One-Mule Train Comes Home to Visit

By BOB SANDERS

Lonnie Mobley, 73-year-old mule and wagon traveler who answers to the nickname of "Moe," is "at home" at 12152 Homestead Place, Garden Grove.

He arrived last week without his mule wagon — to stay "for a while" with his daughter, Mrs. Lula Bogema.

Mobley is a rover.

Last March 8 he left Iron City, Ga., with his 14-year-old mule named Moelina and his multibreed dog named Nancy, for Parker Dam on the Colorado River.

After what amounted to a 3,000-mile journey the way he had to go, missing the major thoroughfares as much as possible, he arrived at Parker Dam July 22.

Ask him how the trip was and he'll say "Fine."

Pause a minute and he'll tell you about how the wagon, mule and he flopped over in a ditch on a steep grade just this side of Flagstaff, Ariz.

"None of us was hurt," Mobley says with a chuckle, "but it bent the front axle pretty bad."

He came the last 300 miles on a bent axle, which he later replaced with an old car axle — for his next trip.

"I had to buy an old car to fix it," he says, as though this were no trick at all, "but it was worth it."

Byrnes' Condition Still Is Grave After Heart Attack

Combined News Services

James F. Byrnes, 90-year-old former Supreme Court justice and U.S. secretary of state who was stricken Friday, apparently with a heart attack, remained in serious condition Saturday in Columbia, S.C.

"His heart action remains poor," said his personal physician, Dr. Izard Josey.

Mrs. Byrnes stayed throughout the day at the intensive care section of the Baptist Hospital where the former governor was admitted Friday night. He became ill at his home.

"Mr. Byrnes came through a fairly restful night," Dr. Josey said. "But his general condition is serious."

There was little change in Brynes' condition throughout Saturday and his doctor said he was "resting comfortably" Saturday night.

"His condition is essentially the same," the physician said. "There has been no significant change."

HEART FAILS

William Karraker, 50, an insurance executive who received a transplanted heart last year, died suddenly Saturday.

Karraker, who received the heart last Nov. 22 at Stanford Medical Center, was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital in Stockton early Friday after his heartbeat became irregular.

Doctors said his heartbeat rate had been corrected and he was to have been released Saturday morning. They said they talked to him shortly after 1 a.m.

When they checked on him a few minutes later, they said, he was dead.

His body was taken to Stanford Medical Center where the precise cause of death will be determined. An autopsy was scheduled.

Karraker, 49, when he received the eighth heart transplant at Stanford under supervision of Dr. Norman E. Shumway, had been active and well. He received periodic checkups.

On Thursday he had filed as a candidate for the Stockton city council, and the week before announced he and six other recipients of Stanford heart transplants were planning to compile a list of transplant survivors throughout the world.

Karraker made his announcement as the Stanford transplant patients wrote a letter of sympathy to the widow of Dr. Philip Blaiberg, the South African dentist who died 19 months after receiving a new heart.

HEROINE

A 14-year-old babysitter led eight children to safety at Redwood City Saturday as a house burned around her.

"Everyone was crying and screaming," said Sheila Tanga, who awakened the children and started herding them out as the flames broke out.

"At one time I had hold of three children," she said, "but I had to keep going back after the two-year-old because he kept trying to climb back into bed."

After she rescued the youngsters — the oldest of whom was eight — she had to lead them more than a block before she could find a telephone to report the fire, she said. The house was heavily damaged.

Sheila was hired as an overnight babysitter by Mrs. Marilyn Lovett. The children included Mrs. Lovett's three daughters, Kimberly, 5; Tammy, 4, and Michelle, 1.

With them were the son and four daughters of a neighbor, Mrs. Josie Cardona; Junior 2; Brenda, 6; Marlene, 5; Jemmy, 8; and Meredith, 4 months.

Firemen said the use of the blaze was under investigation.

GOES HOME

Joan Kennedy, the 33-year-old wife of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, departed from Cape Cod Hospital Hyannis, Mass., Saturday, three days after her third miscarriage since 1963.

Mrs. Kennedy was taken to the hospital late Thursday night.

The child, expected in February, would have been the Kennedy's fourth.

Her pregnancy was revealed last month on the night Kennedy appeared on national television to explain his role in the Martha's Vineyard automobile accident which took the life of Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, a Kennedy family secretary.

She left the hospital Saturday accompanied by her husband. The couple is spending the weekend at the Kennedy family compound at Hyannis Port. A hospital statement said Mrs. Kennedy experienced a "completely normal recovery" from the miscarriage.

CARD FRAUD

A credit card number erroneously reported as belonging to actor Steve McQueen has been used in Reno and the user has been arrested, Bell Telephone officials said Saturday.

Lonnie Meagher, 18, was arrested in a telephone booth and booked on a felony charge of using a fraudulent credit card. He was accused of using the credit number to make a long distance call. An operator became suspicious at the length of the call and checked on the number.

Bell officials said the number has been used frequently, and has cost the firm more than $100,000 in toll charges nationwide.

Those using the number often have said McQueen gave it to them so he could get a tax write-off. But the number does not belong to McQueen or anyone, said the officials.

SAD RETURN

The bodies of five National Guardsmen killed in Vietnam arrived home Saturday and the parents of the dead men sobbed as the military caskets were unloaded at Manchester, N.H.

The five died when a truck they were riding in hit a land mine. They had been scheduled to be returned home just days before their deaths.

The Northeast Airlines plane arrived at Grenier Field bearing the bodies of Spec. 4. Roger E. Robichaud, 24; Spec. 5 Richard E. Genest, 24; S. Sgt. Richard P. Raymond, 27; Spec. 4 Guy A. Blanchette, 22; and Spec. 4 Gaetan J. Beaudoin, 20.

Gov. Walter Peterson, who ordered all flags in the state to be flown at half staff, was on hand to meet the plane along with scores of others.

Military men on the scene rendered a hand salute as a band played the National Anthem. The military delegation was led by Brig. Gen. John Cushman, commander of Ft. Devens, Mass., and Maj. Gen. Francis B. McSweeney, commander of the New Hampshire National Guard.

The Rt. Rev. Ernest J. Primeau, Roman Catholic Bishop of New Hampshire sprinkled the flag draped caskets with ceremonial water and led the crowd in prayer.

State police cruisers led funeral motorcades to five different funeral homes where the men's bodies will rest until funerals Monday and Tuesday.

All five were members of the 3rd Battalion, 197th Artillery. They were scheduled to return home Thursday with 400 other members of their unit.

MAYOR DIES

Officers kicked open the door of an apartment Saturday and found the bodies of the mayor of Marshall, Tex., and his former secretary. They had been shot.

Police said indications were that it was murder and suicide but ordered autopsies.

Kiled were Mayor A. Weldon Webber, 43, and Mrs. Dorothy G. Miller, 46.

Mrs. Miller was divorced about eight months ago. Webber's wife died about a year ago.

The mayor was shot in a shoulder, the neck and in the stomach area. The former secretary was shot through the mouth and the bullet emerged through the back of her head.

The woman clasped a .38-caliber revolver in her hand when found.

She had been working as secretary-treasurer of a lumber firm of which Webber was part owner.

Game Players Make 'Group Therapy' Fun

By SANDRA BLAKESLEE.
New York Times Service

NEW YORK — A young man, playing a game with three close friends, picked up a little red card off a board and read: "Walk up and down the room as though there were nothing you were ashamed of."

After a minute's thought he stood up, stripped off all his clothes; strolled across the room and sat down.

His friends then judged the honesty of his response. Two of them, both girls, felt he was sincere and voted him "with it." The third, a male, said: "Come off it, you're an exhibitionist and that was too easy for you." He held up a card reading "cop out."

A lively conversation followed as each player evaluated his vote, the other votes, and the behavior of the player who had acted out his part.

THE GAME those people were playing is a new one called "Group Therapy" — or is it a game? It is the most recent in a batch of psychologically oriented parlor games to come on the market. ("Sensitivity" and "Insight" are two others), and as its name implies it is not necessarily a game at all. In fact, for some it might be an unpleasant experience.

Psychologists say that more and more people want to break down the barriers of alienation and anxiety that separate them from others but find it almost impossible to be strictly honest without some guide or excuse.

Thus many people have turned to professionally supervised groups or group therapy sessions to seek a milieu for speaking openly with others. The psychological games are an extension of this search. They provide the guide, excuse and structure for frank communication — in the home and elsewhere.

TO PLAY "Group Therapy" a person has to be willing in some degree to expose his psyche, relax his defenses and admit his anxieties, frustrations or loneliness. No one needs to become more vulnerable than he wishes, but many find the honesty of the experience enlightening.

The game asks players, numbering from three to eight, to perform various tasks, verbal or physical, written on small cards, which are printed in three colors to designate their progressive difficulty.

Some sample directions include, "Pick a way in which you are phony and exaggerate it." "Hold each member of the group in a way which reflects how you feel about him," "You are advertising yourself as a lover — what does the ad say?" and "Do something outrageous."

After saying or doing what the card directs, the player is judged on the honesty of his response by others in the game. Depending on how seriously, or honestly, the group is playing the game, each player can often gain insights into his own personality or into the personality of his friends.

FLOTILLA RESCUES 7,000 IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Three fishing boats, part of a ragtag rescue flotilla of about 20 vessels, arrived in the coastal town of Alvarado Saturday with 700 refugees from flood-devastated Tlacotalpan in Southeast Mexico, Alvarado Mayor Miguel Cerdenares said.

The refugees, mostly children and the elderly, were among the final 3,000 of Tlacotalpan's 7,000 residents to be evacuated from the city.

They were housed in schools and private homes in Alvarado and given food, clothing and medicine sent by the federal government.

"IF YOU could just see the people of Tlacotalpan, huddled on roofs of their homes and wading in hip-deep water with shivering children in their arms, you'd know what it was like," Cerdenares said.

Tlacotalpan, located at the confluence of the Papaloapan and San Juan Rivers, has been innundated since Thursday by floodwaters from the rampaging rainswollen streams.

"The situation has not improved," Cerdenares said. "On the contrary, it's getting worse every day."

The rescue vessels, tugboats, river patrol boats and just plain row boats, were working against time trying to ferry the last residents out of town before the water rises even higher. They were being helped by five army helicopters.

Construction Factions Set Job Plans

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Contractors and a coalition of black groups, whose job demands led to mass demonstrations and a building shutdown, Saturday began drawing up separate proposals to train blacks to construction jobs.

City officials hoped the proposals would form a basis for negotiations scheduled to begin Tuesday on the coalition's job demands, which last week led to three days of mass demonstrations by blacks and two days of counter-demonstrations by white construction workers.

THE TONE of the blacks' protest marches led Mayor Joseph M. Barr to arrange a halt in construction work which idled 13,000 workers, costing them three days' wages and triggering the counter-demonstrations.

The contractors and the black coalition will present their proposals at 1 p.m. Tuesday and begin negotiating before a three-man panel of "moderators" named by the mayor.

Members of the panel were David Olbum, a judge of the County Court; Fred Gray of the U.S. Community Relations Service, and Philip Curran, director of the Pennsylvania State Mediation Service.

"These are not arbitrators nor will this be binding arbitration," Barr said. "They're not mediators, either. They'll be serving as moderators."

Byrnes' Condition Still Is Grave After Heart Attack

Combined News Services

James F. Brynes, 90-year-old former Supreme Court justice and U.S. secretary of state who was stricken Friday, apparently with a heart attack, remained in serious condition Saturday in Columbia, S.C.

"His heart action remains poor," said his personal physician, Dr. Izard Josey.

Mrs. Byrnes stayed throughout the day at the intensive care section of the Baptist Hospital where the former governor was admitted Friday night. He became ill at his home.

"Mr. Byrnes came through a fairly restful night," Dr. Josey said. "But his general condition is serious."

There was little change in Brynes' condition throughout Saturday and his doctor said he was "resting comfortably" Saturday night.

"His condition is essentially the same," the physician said. "There has been no significant change."

TO PLAY "Group Therapy" a person has to be willing in some degree to expose his psyche, relax his defenses and admit his anxieties, frustrations or loneliness. No one needs to become more vulnerable than he wishes, but many find the honesty of the experience enlightening.

The game asks players, numbering from three to eight, to perform various tasks, verbal or physical, written on small cards, which are printed in three colors to designate their progressive difficulty.

Some sample directions include, "Pick a way in which you are phony and exaggerate it." "Hold each member of the group in a way which reflects how you feel about him," "You are advertising yourself as a lover — what does the ad say?" and "Do something outrageous."

After saying or doing what the card directs, the player is judged on the honesty of his response by others in the game. Depending on how seriously, or honestly, the group is playing the game, each player can often gain insights into his own personality or into the personality of his friends.

FLOTILLA RESCUES 7,000 IN MEXICO

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Three fishing boats, part of a raglag rescue flotilla of about 20 vessels; arrived in the coastal town of Alvarado Saturday with 700 refugees from flood-devastated Tlacotalpan in Southeast Mexico, Alvarado Mayor Miguel Cerdenares said.

The refugees, mostly children and the elderly, were among the final 3,000 of Tlacotalpan's 7,000 residents to be evacuated from the city.

They were housed in schools and private homes in Alvarado and given food, clothing and medicine sent by the federal government.

"IF YOU could just see the people of Tlacotalpan, huddled on roofs of their homes and wading in hip-deep water with shivering children in their arms, you'd know what it was like," Cerdenares said.

Tlacotalpan, located at the confluence of the Papaloapan and San Juan Rivers, has been inundated since Thursday by floodwaters from the rampaging rainswollen streams.

"The situation has not improved," Cerdenares said. "On the contrary, it's getting worse every day."

The rescue vessels, tugboats, river patrol boats and just plain row boats, were working against time trying to ferry the last residents out of town before the water rises even higher. They were being helped by five army helicopters.

Construction Factions Set Job Plans

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Contractors and a coalition of black groups, whose job demands led to mass demonstrations and a building shutdown, Saturday began drawing up separate proposals to train blacks in construction jobs.

City officials hoped the proposals would form a basis for negotiations scheduled to begin Tuesday on the coalition's job demands, which last week led to three days of mass demonstrations by blacks and two days of counter-demonstrations by white construction workers.

THE TONE of the blacks' protest marches led Mayor Joseph M. Barr to arrange a halt in construction work which idled 13,000 workers, costing them three days' wages and triggering the counter-demonstrations.

The contractors and the black coalition will present their proposals at 1 p.m. Tuesday and begin negotiating before a three-man panel of "moderators" named by the mayor.

Members of the panel were David Olbum, a judge of the County Court; Fred Gray of the U.S. Community Relations Service, and Philip Curran, director of the Pennsylvania State Mediation Service.

"These are not arbitrators nor will this be binding arbitration," Barr said. "They're not mediators, either. They'll be serving as moderators."

campaign fund and went back out again."

The controversy involves Baltimore Contractors, Inc., whose president is Victor J. Frenkil, 60, Baltimore.

UPI LEARNED that Rep. Long sought action through the House Office Building Commission to help the Baltimore contractor get payment for "overages" on the garage construction.

Some House members have been engaged in furious correspondence since last spring because they felt Rep Long's pressure was directed at bypassing contract provisions calling for a public hearing in any cost disputes.

There was no charge that the Maryland congressman acted improperly, but some House members were indignant that the building commission went along with the idea of bypassing a public airing.

Nowhere in the dispute within the House was there any allegation that Rep. Long had received a bribe or other improper influence.

According to one version, an overage totaling $3.8 million resulted from new procedures for constructing foundations that proved unsatisfactory and had to be done over.

THE GENERAL Accounting Office, the congressional watchdog over budget matters, looked into the situation last spring and in a report April 23, said it found nothing illegal occurring in connection with the controversy up to that time.

The Post story said Long and Brewster allegedly were paid to pressure the Office of the Architect of the Capitol to approve extras for the garages. "It is alleged the senators were to share a percentage of any such windfall profits reaped by the contractors," the Post said.

The newspaper said, "The case upon which the grand jury is expending much of its attention involves allegations that Brewster and Long shared a bribe for exerting pressure to get extra costs approved for extensive underground parking facilities recently built for the House of Representatives."

Helicopter Hits Surf; 2 Injured

Two men narrowly escaped death Saturday when their helicopter crashed into the ocean at Crescent Bay, about a mile and a half north of downtown Laguna Beach.

The men William Armstrong, 45, of 1101 Oxford Lane, Newport Beach, and Donald L. Bren, 37, of Los Angeles, were rushed to South Coast Community Hospital, Laguana Beach, where both were reported in fair condition with apparently minor injuries.

Thousands of persons on the beaches witnessed the crash which occurred shortly after 4 p.m., less than 100 yards off shore.

THE ACCIDENT caused a furor among members of the White House press corps lodged at a Laguna Beach motel.

At the time of the crash President Nixon had flown to a beach near Camp Pendleton to take a swim. He returned to his San Clemente home shortly before 5 p.m.

Rod Riehl, a life guard supervisor, who witnessed the crash, said the helicopter was about 100 feet in the air, headed in a northerly direction, when the engine began to "pop and sputter."

He said the four-place Bell 47H helicopter then began decending at a steep angle, and as it approached the water the main rotor blade was barely turning.

THE STRICKEN helicopter, Riehl said, smashed into the water with great force which knocked the plexiglass windshield loose and threw one of the occupants partly through the opening.

A group of swimmers about 20 yards from the crash scene, and several boats occupants went to the assistance of the two men and pulled them from the water.

Several life guards, including Mike Contino, Steve Knauer and Dan Henry, administered first aid to the injured men until an ambulance arrived to take them to the hospital.

A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the craft was owned by the Donald L. Bren Corp., Sherman Oaks.

The helicopter sank shortly after it crashed.

L.B. Youth, Slashed by Machete, Recovering

A Wilson High School exchange student, critically injured in a machete attack in Tegucigalpa, Honduras, was reported in satisfactory condition Saturday.

The condition of Pete Garrison, of 1591 Ramillo Ave., a 17-year-old honor student, was reported to be improving by his father, Ralph Garrison, who flew to Honduras.

Young Garrison's skull was fractured and one arm was lacerated by an assailant who slashed him across the back of the head with a machete.

He was at first reported in critical condition and underwent several hours of emergency surgery Tuesday. Garrison and five other U.S. students, all participants in the American Field Service student exchange program, were on a picture-taking tour when the attack occurred. None of the other students was injured.

"Pete was due to fly home Thursday," his mother said in Long Beach.

Mrs. Garrison said her son had worked as a Red Cross volunteer in Tegucigalpa during the Honduran-Salvadorian war, but had taken no part in any fighting.

Girl Who Beat Men at Loading Hay Loses

LANCASTER (AP) — Lori Johnson, a 15-year-old strawblonde with blue eyes, beat three men to become the fastes hayloader in Antelope Valley Saturday — with a little help from her father on the sidelines. The helping hand disqualified her.

She turned in the fastest time, gathering and stacking three tons of hay with an automatic loader in five minutes, 7.2 seconds.

"It doesn't really matter," Lori said after the judges announced their decision to the boos of some 3,600 persons in the grandstands.

"All those guys were so great. I just wanted to show them I could do it." Lori — who is 5-feet-6 and weighs 130 pounds — was the first female to enter the annual hayloading contest in the Antelope Valley Rural Olympics Fair.

HER FATHER, Dave Johnson, a farmer who raised four dauthers in this alfalfa center north of Los Angeles, gave her a big kiss.

Tom Cissell, 22, last year's winner, came in first in 5 minutes, 8 seconds. When Lori dropped two 50-pound bales, her father ran onto the field and threw them onto the wagon.

That's why she was disqualified.

"He had to help me. I couldn't lift them. They're too heavy," Lori said.

When Don Longacre came in last place in 11 minutes, Lori ran up to him and hugged him impulsively. Chuck Sayre finished behind Lori in 7 minutes, 5 seconds.

"YOU SHOULD have seen her," said Don Blumenshine, an official of the fair. "When she finished, she came roaring by the stands with that 5-ton rig with a huge smile on her face, and the crowds just went wild.

"They booed like crazy when the judges said she was out of the contest."

The point of it, Lori's father said, was to "show people in the grandstands that a girl can do it."

Some weren't happy when a girl entered the contest. Ray McCormack, who won the event last year, said when Lori entered three weeks ago, "That's not any type of machine for any 15-year-old girl to be operating."

Lori had beaten McCormack to the fair office to apply for the contest, and he was edged out of the competition because there was room for only four entries.

U.S. Issues Warning on Child Hiring

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert D. Moran, the U.S. wage-hour administrator, reminded the nation's employers Saturday it is against federal law to employ children under 16 while school is in session.

"The primary purpose of this law is to insure that youngsters are not shortchanged on their education," he said.

Antiwar Unit to March on San Clemente

About two dozen antiwar protestors planned to present petitions to the Western White House at San Clemente today.

A three-judge federal court panel Thursday denied the request by the Peace Action Council of Southern California to require the superintendent of the State Park near President Nixon's oceanfront villa to permit an "anti-war, free speech" rally there.

Robert O. Bland, 48, an Orange County representative of the council, said a small group would march about a half-mile to the Western White House gate to hand over petitions signed by 5,000 persons. He said the petitions called for the immediate withdrawal of American troops from Vietnam and an end to the income surtax, which he termed "a special war tax."

"We feel that President Nixon is doubletalking about getting out of Vietnam," the building designer said. He predicted an escalation of antiwar activity on California campuses this fall.

"We feel it is important to start this fall movement while the President is in California," Bland said.

Doctor's Conduct Baffling

County-USC Medical Center.

"We're amazed," said police Capt. Dan Thompson, "that a man of his intelligence and occupation would do such a thing."

The patrolman said he was getting out of his car as Hodgson gunned his motorcycle and sped away.

Later, Hodgson's sister, Christine, a 20-year-old coed, said of her brother: "He has short blond hair, is clean-cut, and very conservative in dress, so he doesn't look hippie-ish or anything."

She said he had an IQ of 160 and "was a leader to the rest of us. He was the first one of the clan who made it, like through school and everything. He was a kind of inspiration to us."

Hodgson, his sister said, "liked a lot of excitement — skiing, motorcycling, flying. But he was very hard to understand. Well, not really hard to understand. He would say what he meant in poetry.

"It was, like, hard to figure out what he meant."

Hodgson, whose father is a mail sorter, was graduated from the University of Utah Medical School in 1964; interned at City of Detroit Receiving Hospital and took resident training at Wayne State University Medical School.

He was on the staff of Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit before joining the County-USC Medical Center last January.

The sister said a marriage for Hodgson three years ago ended in divorce six months later.

A brother, Benjamin, 16, said Hodgson on the day of death was "probably just sporting, having fun."

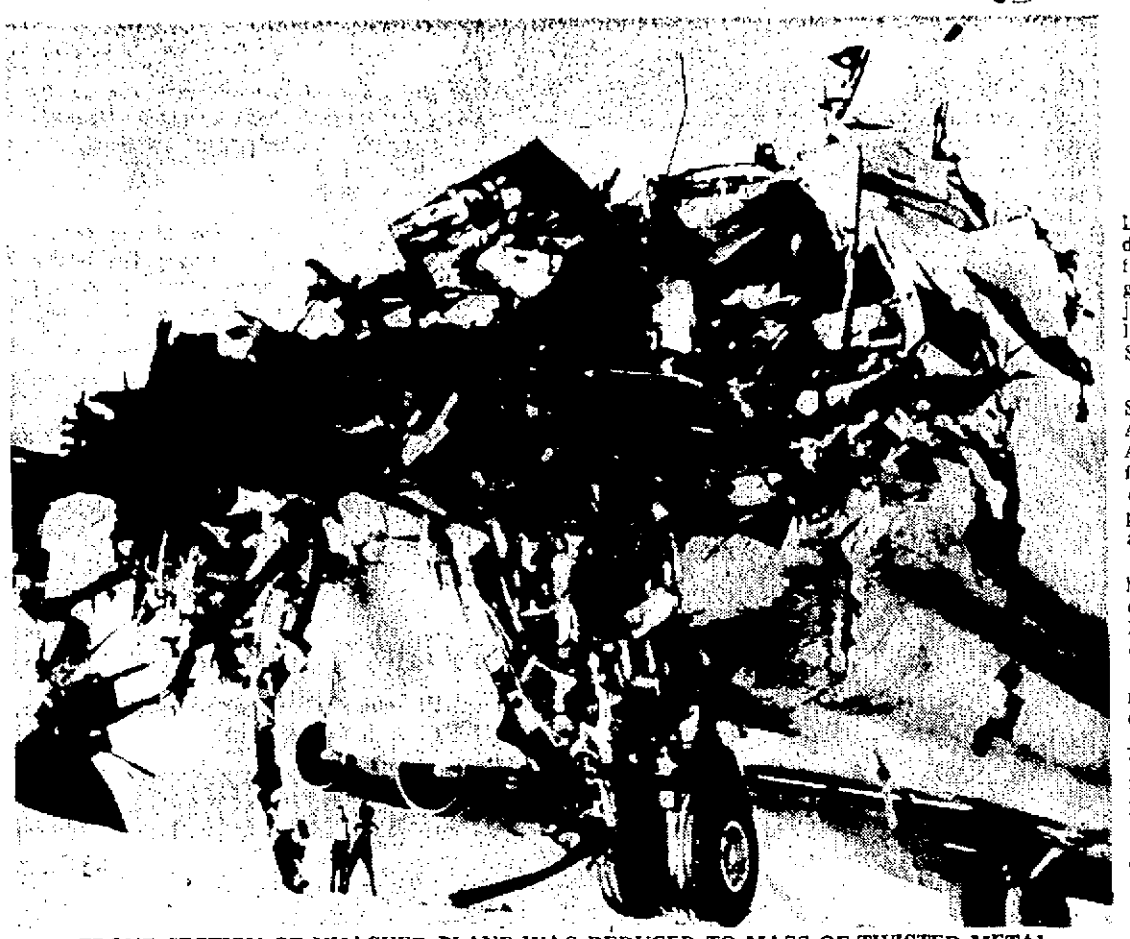

He said his brother bought the big, speedy motorcycle two months ago but never received license plates for it.

"I don't really know why," Benjamin said. "He just never had them."

The young doctor will be buried in a North Ogden, Utah, cemetery following services at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints on the same day an inquiry begins in Los Angeles.

At the inquiry, principal testimony will come from the police officer, Bruce, who remains on duty. Bruce said he chased the doctor for five miles, at high speeds, and fired when it appeared the man on the motorcycle was reaching into his waistband for a gun.

A coroner's board will rule whether a formal inquest is to be held later.

Israelis Still Hostage; Rest on Hijacked Jet Released

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Leaving behind six Israelis detained by Syrian authorities, most of the passengers and crew of a hijacked Trans World Airlines jet arrived in Athens Saturday.

Also remaining in the Syrian capital were the two Arab hijackers, an injured American woman and her four children and the TWA captain who stayed to supervise repairs to his damaged Boeing 707.

Another American and his wife and child took an earlier flight to Tehran, Iran, aboard a Syrian aircraft.

Syria barred the four Israeli women and two Israeli men aboard the hijacked plane from leaving the country. Western diplomats in Damascus expressed optimism, however, the Israeli women would be released soon. The fate of the two men remained in question.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which engineered the Friday plane seizure, said in a communique from Cairo that the Israelis would be held hostage for "the release of Syrian comrades in Israeli torture prisons."

SYRIAN authorities gave no hint of what they planned to do with the Israelis. Relations between the Front and the Syrian government have not been cordial recently.

The two hijackers, one a woman, were believed to be in jail.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir issued a cryptic warning to the Syrians saying: "It would be best advised for them to think twice about their future moves." She did not elaborate.

And Shimon Peres, an influential political figure and member of the Israeli Knesseth (Parliament) declared:

"The Syrian authorities have to knew that the distance between Israeli troops and the Syrian capital of Damascus is 60 kilometers (38 miles). They must know that Israel will protect its citizens."

The Al Italia special plane, which came in to pick up the stranded passengers, sped past the $8 million TWA Boeing 707 shattered by a time bomb Friday minutes after the passengers had escaped.

Its cockpit and front passenger section was a mass of twisted metal.

The jet was commandeered over the Adriatic Sea Friday a few minutes after leaving Rome en route to Athens and Tel Aviv, with 101 passengers and 12 crew members aboard.

THE PLANE had been seized by an attractive Arab brunette, who waived a pistol in one hand and a grenade in the other, and by a male confederate.

The passengers appeared earlier Saturday at a news conference and told of their experience.

With her leg broken in four places, Mrs. Caridad Roa Schaller crawled in agony across the tarmac of Damascus airport away from the airliner that passengers had been told would blow up within seconds.

Lying in a hospital bed Saturday, she told of her ordeal and that of her four children, Donald, 15; Robert, 14; Irish, 12, and Maria, 10, who also were aboard the plane.

"When the plane landed the pilot cautioned passengers not to panic," said Mrs. Schaller, a Philippine-born American from Leonardtown, Md. "But the Palestinian girl who carried out the hijacking announced that she'd planted a bomb in the aircraft. That's what caused the panic.

"Everyone was rushing out of emergency exits. My four children and I got out of an emergency exit on to the plane's wing. There were no chutes at that place.

"My eldest son, Donald, dropped to the ground. I was holding my youngest daughter, Maria, and I dropped down after him.

"SOMEONE else fell on top of me and I felt my bones giving way."

She said everyone was running across the tarmac to get away from the plane.

"That was to be my first trip home, but I never made it," said Helen Vallas, of Lynn, Mass., who was born in Greece and went to the U.S. at the age of 5. She wore a plaster cast over one foot broken when she jumped off a wing when the plane touched down.

Zachary Pace, 47, Oxford, Ohio, also broke a foot jumping off the plane. He and his wife were bound for Athens on a holiday.

Mrs. Pace said she and her husband jumped into a fox hole near the runway.

"Some soldiers came and told us to get out, but we didn't want to at first, because we were afraid the plane would blow up," she said.

Lester Noble, 24, San Antonio, Tex., a bomb disposal expert for the U.S. Army also dove into a fox-hole when the plane landed. He said that from the point of view of the hijackers, the operation "worked like clockwork."

A spokesman for the Popular Front told a news conference in Amman, Jordan, the organization had not yet joined in interrogating Israelis aboard the plane.

HE SAID a number of prominent Israelis were scheduled to take the TWA flight but they canceled at the last moment. He claimed, however, that an Israeli of "scientific and military importance" was among the passengers. He did not further identify him.

(Informants in Tel Aviv said one passenger was Dr. Shlomo Samueloff, associate professor of physiology at the Hebrew University en route back to Israel after a stay in London).

The front spokesman said it was hoped the Israelis would be held until exchanged for Arab guerrillas captured by the Israelis.

The two hijackers are also being detained. Syrian officials said they were being questioned.

Wedding's Fine Idea ..at Dawn?

They got married on railroad tracks nearby, with railroad oil tanker cars forming the backdrop instead of flowers.

THEY HADN'T planned on the tankers, but the security guard was — well let's say insistent — about not letting anyone in. "He said if the owner of Ports O'Call came by, he wouldn't let him in," said Ron.

Resolved, Ron observed with a twitch of a smile, "It was more scenic with the tankers behind us."

Ron, who works at the cookstore at Cerritos Junior College where he is an art major, said he had obtained permission for the marriage ceremony from an office worker, but maybe someone forgot.

His new bride, a one-time beauty contest entrant who is 6-foot-1, said her mother thought the early-morning idea was "cute." Neither her mother, nor Taft's parents, made the scene, however.

After the wedding, the couple enjoyed a reception. "Coffee and aspirin," said Taft. Seems there was a party the night before.

And they talked about a honeymoon. "Well, next year, we're going to Europe," said Taft. He was stationed in Germany while a drum major with an Army band for three years.

"Tonight," added his bride, "maybe we'll go to a movie."

Russian Says U.S. Plots Sneak Blow

New York Times Service

MOSCOW — Marshal Nikolai I. Krylov, the commander in chief of Soviet strategic missile forces, Saturday, said the United States was preparing for a surprise attack against the Soviet Union but so far had been deterred by Soviet nuclear might.

In a lengthy article in the newspaper Sovietskaya Rossiya, Krylov, who is also a deputy defense minister, said the "American imperialists and their partners" were actively getting ready for a third world war.

MARSHAL KRYLOV Writes Anti-U.S. Article

KRYLOV'S ARTICLE was one of several in the Soviet press in the past few days commemorating the start of World War II 30 years ago Monday.

Most of the articles have revived Soviet claims that the western powers implicitly if not directly supported Hitler's invasion of Poland and had avoided making a defense pact with Russia in the hope that Germany would destroy the Soviet Union.

Not in several years has an important Soviet official subjected the U.S. to such bellicose charges as Krylov did. According to him, the U.S., while formerly neutral in 1939, in fact "connived" with the "fascist aggression" against Poland.

He said that U.S. imperialism "followed Hitler's example" by the "provocation" in the Gulf of Tonkin in 1964 that he said "began the war against the Vietnam people."

MOST OBSERVERS avoided attaching too much importance to Krylov's article, arguing that it was largely a rhetorical attack. But there was some speculation here as to Krylov's views on possible reduction and limitation of strategic arms — the subject of future U.S.-Soviet talks.

Krylov seemed to suggest that a powerful nuclear arsenal was necessary for launching a first strike. His article also left the impression that as far as he was concerned the main threat to Soviet security still came from the U.S. Communist China was not mentioned even indirectly.

Labor Day Traffic Jams Highways

United Press International

Holiday travelers jammed the nation's highways in record numbers Saturday, off for a final summer fling during the Labor Day weekend.

The National Safety Council estimated in advance of the long holiday weekend that from 625 to 725 persons would die in traffic accidents. A comparable nonholiday period would claim 500 traffic victims.

The safety council estimated the nation's 100 million motor vehicles would log a record 10 billion miles during the three-day weekend which began at 6 p.m. Friday and ends at midnight Monday.

Count at 8 p.m. PDT showed at least 147 persons killed in traffic accidents. The breakdown: traffic, 147; drownings, 9; planes, 5; miscellaneous 11.

California led the nation with 21 traffic deaths, followed by Texas with 13 and Kentucky with 12. Illinois recorded 11 deaths and South Carolina had nine.

2 Ranchers Killed

WALNUT GROVE (UPI) — Two Walnut Grove ranchers were killed Saturday when their light plane struck a power line and plunged into a slough near this Sacramento County Community. The coroner's office said the victims were Donald W. Hanson, 38, and Carter I. Christie, 37.

Moe, Moelina Return After Long Journey

how his brakes went out near Ashfork, Ariz., going down a grade, and he had to take a bus into Flagstaff to buy the parts to repair them.

"The grade was so steep poor old Moelina had to walk sideways to keep the wagon from running away," he says. "She's a good mule."

Other adventures come streaming out as he talks.

"I intended to come out by going up through Montana," he says with a wry smile, "but it got too cold, so I changed my mind."

Near Rocky Ford, Colo., I could see the snow on the 11,000-foot pass ahead, so I turned south to Flagstaff. It was about a 100 miles out of the way but it was better than the snow."

MOBLEY IS no newcomer to mule and wagon travel.

This was his fourth trip across the country and — he adds with justifiable pride — Moelina's third.

"I bought a horse in 1966 and made the trip with him, but he couldn't pull the wagon well enough, so I went back to Moelina," he says.

His first trip was in 1965, when he bought Moelina for $345 and went from Parker Dam, where he keeps a trailer, to Iron City.

He came back in 1966 — in the saddle because the first wagon he made was equipped with butane stove, electricity hook-up and a lot of fancy things that made it too heavy for Moelina to pull.

After the trip with the horse — while Moelina rested in a large pasture near Parker Dam — he sold the horse and shipped Moelina to Jackson, Miss., and made the trip out here with her and a new, lighter wagon.

"Now all I carry is a folding cot, a gasoline stove, an icebox and a portable radio," he says. "Moelina pulls it easy and we don't have any trouble."

EXCEPT WHEN the wagon tips over or the brakes go out — or he runs into too many cattle guards.

"Cattle guards (those railroad rail or pipe contraptions set in the roadway to keep cattle from crossing) are real trouble," Moe says. "Nobody seems to be able to tell you how many there are on a given stretch of road."

When he runs into them he either has to find a gate or take part of the fence down so he — and Moelina — can get through. It's a problem.

LAST YEAR he shipped Moelina and the wagon back again to start his trip.

Why does he do this?

"Well," he says, "I think everybody ought to do what they want to do — as long as they don't hurt nobody."

What about his next trip?

"Well, I haven't decided on it yet," he says.

There's no question about it though.

It will take place next summer.

"As soon as it gets warm enough I'll be on my way again," he says. "Of course I intend to keep away from the South this time."

Why?

"Because the roads are no good," he says. "Either they got too much traffic on them, or they're just bad. I'm going to stay on the northern routes."

At 73 who can argue with him?

Not daughter anyway.

"I think his trips are a fine idea," she says. "He is a very unusual man."

Amen.

County-USC Medical Center.

"We're amazed," said police Capt. Dan Thompson, "that a man of his intelligence and occupation would do such a thing."

The patrolman said he was getting out of his car as Hodgson gunned his motorcycle and sped away.

Later, Hodgson's sister, Christine, a 20-year-old coed, said of her brother: "He has short blond hair, is clean-cut, and very conservative in dress, so he doesn't look hippie-ish or anything."

She said he had an IQ of 160 and "was a leader to the rest of us. He was the first one of the clan who made it, like through school and everything. He was a kind of inspiration to us."

Hodgson, his sister said, "liked a lot of excitement — skiing, motorcycling, flying. But he was very hard to understand. Well, not really hard to understand. He would say what he meant in poetry.

"It was, like, hard to figure out what he meant."

Hodgson, whose father is a mail sorter, was graduated from the University of Utah Medical School in 1964, interned at City of Detroit Receiving Hospital and took resident training at Wayne State University Medical School.

He was on the staff of Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit before joining the County-USC Medical Center last January.

The sister said a marriage for Hodgson three years ago ended in divorce six months later.

A brother, Benjamin, 16, said Hodgson on the day of death was "probably just sporting, having fun."

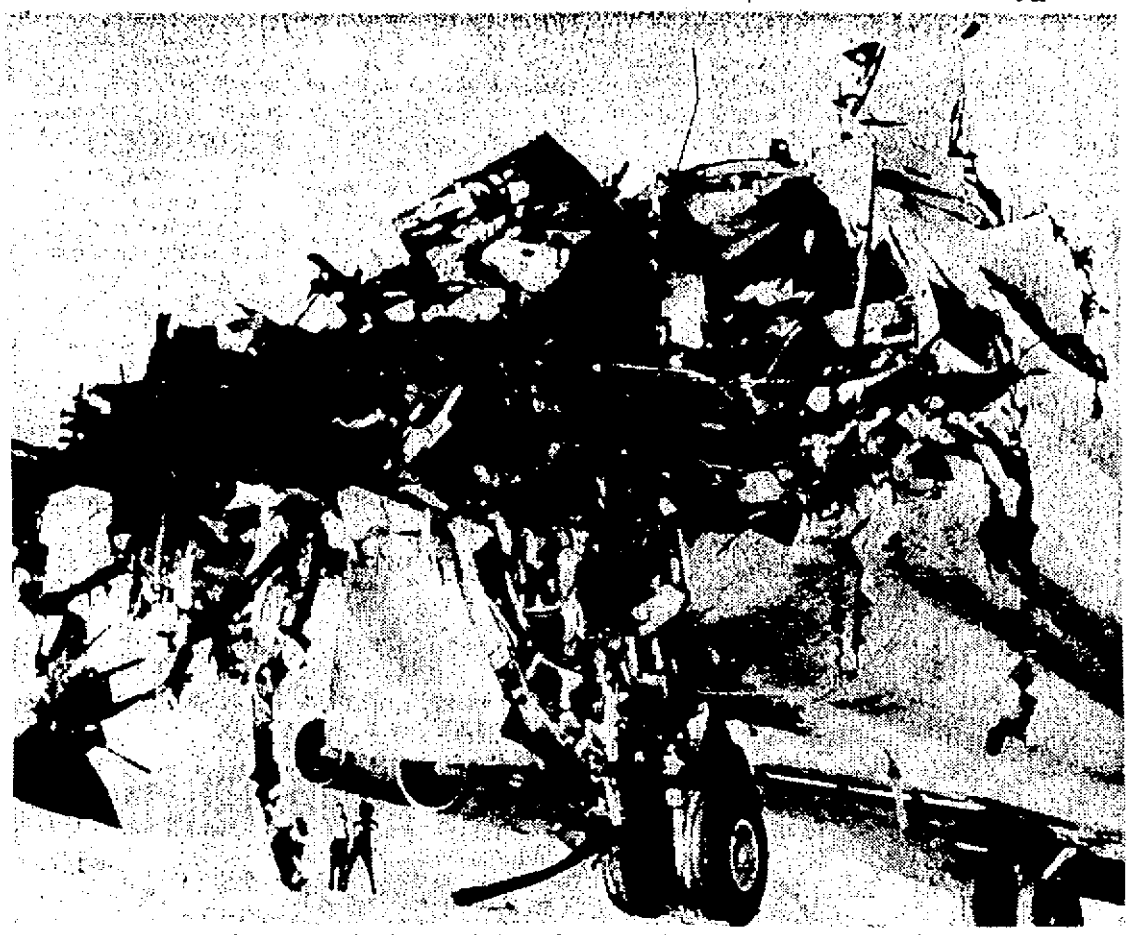

He said his brother bought the big, speedy motorcycle two months ago but never received license plates for it.

"I don't really know why," Benjamin said. "He just never had them."

The young doctor will be buried in a North Ogden, Utah, cemetery following services at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints on the same day an inquiry begins in Los Angeles.

At the inquiry, principal testimony will come from the police officer, Bruce, who remains on duty. Bruce said he chased the doctor for five miles, at high speeds, and fired when it appeared the man on the motorcycle was reaching into his waistband for a gun.

A coroner's board will rule whether a formal inquest is to be held later.

Israelis Still Hostage; Rest on Hijacked Jet Released

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Leaving behind six Israelis detained by Syrian authorities, most of the passengers and crew of a hijacked Trans World Airlines jet arrived in Athens Saturday.

Also remaining in the Syrian capital were the two Arab hijackers, an injured American woman and her four children and the TWA captain who stayed to supervise repairs to his damaged Boeing 707.

Another American and his wife and child took an earlier flight to Tehran, Iran, aboard a Syrian aircraft.

Syria barred the four Israeli women and two Israeli men aboard the hijacked plane from leaving the country. Western diplomats in Damascus expressed optimism, however, the Israeli women would be released soon. The fate of the two men remained in question.

The Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, which engineered the Friday plane seizure, said in a communique from Cairo that the Israelis would be held hostage for "the release of Syrian comrades in Israeli torture prisons."

SYRIAN authorities gave no hint of what they planned to do with the Israelis. Relations between the Front and the Syrian government have not been cordial recently.

Mystery of Mary Jo Haunts; Inquest Nears

By PHILIP BALBONI

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (UPI) — With the death of pretty Mary Joe Kopechne, some say, Ted Kennedy lost the White House — perhaps forever.

But even the long-range national impact of this dramatic political reversal has been dimmed by the tangle of confusion, rumor and speculation which willy-nilly has followed each other on an unending Merry-go-round since the tragic events of July 18-19.

WHAT incredible circumstance, people ask, made 37-year-old Edward Moore Kennedy decide not to report the fatal crash for 10 hours? Whatever it was, Ted Kennedy appeared ready to take his legal medicine.

Edgartown District Judge James A. Boyle echoed the feelings of many when, after handing down the minimum two-month suspended sentence, he observed that Kennedy "has already been and will continue to be punished far beyond anything this court can impose."

Now Kennedy and all those involved in the accident on little, lonely Chappaquiddick Island off Martha's Vineyard will have to relive those two days in the minutest detail when an inquest, set to begin Wednesday, gets under way in the town's 111-year-old, colonial style courthouse.

MANY ASK what such a judicial review can accomplish, and why Edmund S. Dinis, the bachelor district attorney whose political forays in Massachusetts even predate those of the fabled Kennedy family, waited a full two weeks to ask for one.

Regardless of Dinis' motivation, some facts about the inquest are certain. Ted Kennedy will have to come face to face with the distortions of truth — some would say deliberate lies — in his two public statements about the accident. Others will have to break their silence for the first time.

Kennedy's lawyers say he will appear at the inquest to testify. And if he doesn't show up, Judge Boyle says he will subpoena him.

Among the nagging questions which the inquest should answer are:

1) How Kennedy could have turned off Chappaquiddick's only paved road onto a dirt track and then travel more than one-half mile without realizing he was going in the wrong di back to Edgartown, his stated destination?

2) If Kennedy had some other reason for going down this road with Miss Kopechne at an hour close to midnight, what was it?

3) Was there someone else in the car with Kennedy and Mary Joe that night, someone about whom he has remained silent?

4) How could the Ted Kennedy brought up in a home where courage was a household word walk away from a fatal accident and not report it for 10 hours?

5) How could Joseph F. Gargan, a lawyer and Kennedy's cousin and closest friend, and Paul F. Markham, another close friend and a former U.S. attorney, compound the error by not advising Kennedy to report the accident immediately, or failing to convince him, report it themselves?

6) Was Kennedy drinking heavily the night of the accident, heavily enough to impair his ability to drive safely?

7) Why did Kennedy say he was in a state of shock in his two public statements when his television address and the accounts of those who saw him after the accident show almost conclusively that he was fully aware of what had happened?

8) Why did he return to Chappaquiddick the morning after the accident and wait there for more than 30 minutes before finally going to police?

9) Why did Kennedy make such an incredibly incomplete and misleading statement to police and then wait a week before speaking out more fully, but then only to raise more questions than he answered?

10) Finally, is there some strange and mysterious circumstance about the accident, something so far hidden and known only to the Kennedy intimates, something which Ted Kennedy will not discuss because it would hurt someone else?

If these questions are answered, what happens then? Could Kennedy, Gargan, Markham or some of the others involved face new charges?

A prominent Boston trial lawyer who knows both Dinis and Kennedy explained the mechanics of an inquest.

The best way to think of an inquest, he said, is as a "one-man unorthodox grand jury investigation. In an inquest, rules of evidence do not apply. Objections do not apply. The prosecution are detectives in a sort of way, looking to get at the bottom of an incident."

JUDGE BOYLE, who will preside and file a concluding report with the clerk of the Suprior Court in Edgartown, may allow questions as he sees fit, can ask questions himself and, theoretically, does not have to permit witnesses to have counsel. The witnesses, however, can plead the Fifth Amendment.

"The probe can be as elaborate or limited as the judge sees fit," the lawyer said. "Since there is no determination of guilt or innocence, there is no recourse to rights.

"The judge's report after the inquest can find anything. He can find criminal negligence, conspiracy to hide the facts — can file a devastating report if he wants to," he said. "Or he can report without finding anything — without drawing conclusions and just say the death was accidental."

The district attorney, however, is not bound by anything Judge Boyle finds. He could, on his own initiative, call for a grand jury and seek an indictment against Kennedy or others.

Calif. Youth Tells of Arrest in Prague

Geary Baxter, 18, of Santa Rosa, Calif., was arrested Aug. 20 by police on Prague's Wenceslas Square on the eve of the first anniversary of the Soviet-led invasion. In Vienna, capital of neutral Austria, he told his story.

VIENNA (AP)—The policemen came, I did not run. I had not done anything. There was another American boy with me. They grabbed us and started beating us with billy clubs.

After awhile they let us go, then came back and started beating us again. They made us run. They let us go a fair distance and then started chasing us. We got up a scaffolding in the back of a building which was being repaired. They came after us.

WE RAN and the scaffolding ended. I thought of jumping, but it was too high. We were on the first floor. They took us back inside.

They brought us to the ground floor. More policemen were waiting. They beat us some more. Then they took us out of the building. I was separated from the other boy. I didn't know him.

I was taken into the street, where more policemen came. I was held by one policeman and beaten by another, as we walked down the street. They took me to a van. There were a number of young people in the van. At the police station, they beat us again as we went up the stairs. They put us in a pretty small room where they were doing paper work.

Two hours later, we were taken to a larger room. By about two in the morning, I was the only one left in the room. Some hours later, I was taken up to another room. There were about 50 people there.

THEY TOOK us to a van which got us to a prison pretty far out of Prague. We were led out by fours and as we entered a door, a policeman started beating us. Policemen lined all the way up the stairs. As we ran up, we were beaten all the way.

We got to a large room where more policemen were waiting and they beat us there.

We were pushed and beaten into another hall. Four or five policemen were hitting people there. We were lined up against the wall and waited for our names to be called out to get assigned to a cell. We were four to a cell, but about 11 p.m., four more boys were pushed in.

The next morning, a British fellow and myself were called from the cell to go down the hall where another American boy was waiting. There were three policemen. They took us to police headquarters.

WE WAITED some 45 minutes there. They read some papers to us which they had typed up. We did not have to sign them, though. Then we were taken to another prison. We were six in a cell for four; two Americans, the British fellow, a Dutchman, a Frenchman and a Greek.

There were two double-decker bunks for six. We pushed them together. three slept in the two top bunks and three in the bottom ones. I stayed in that cell until my release on Friday, seven days later.

We did not know what happened. I was called out once and asked what I had done. I replied I did not know. They sent me back to the cell.

We were not beaten any more, when we got to the second prison. For awhile, I could not bend my back, but I am all right now.

The food was mostly starches, such as potatoes. The coffee was bad.

I CAME to Europe on a student charter flight. Another American and I bought two bicycles in England. We biked some way, then used the train. In Brno (Czhechoslovakia) I lost my passport. I went to Prague to get another one. It took a little while. I went to Wenceslas Square on Aug. 20 to eat dinner. I always ate at a place there. I was caught up in the demonstration. I only watched it. My friend was not arrested. He is waiting for me in Munich. We go back home Sept. 11 from London.

I want to go back to Czechoslovakia to see the country. But I will make sure there is no anniversary.

Drinking Men In Utah 'Hit'

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — This just hasn't been a very good year for the drinking man in Utah.

First, the legislature passed a pair of liquor laws that resulted in a heavy crackdown on clubs illegally selling liquor by the drink.

Then the State Liquor Control Commission, which sells all liquor in the state, announced that prices, already among the highest in the nation, are going up.

Facts You Should Know About Sapphires

We are interrupting our discussion in reference to diamonds as it will be September next month. SAPPHIRE is the BIRTHSTONE OF SEPTEMBER. Traditionally, rubies and sapphires have been known as "jewels of kings." Throughout the recorded history of mankind, sapphires have been highly prized. In the Bible, in poetry, in songs, and other forms of literature, the sapphire has been a symbol of color, wealth and numerous unusual qualities.

It has been told, for example, that the Ten Commandments were written on a sapphire; that a sapphire would bring good luck; protect one from stage-fright (thus a favorite jewel of actors and actresses); a cure against blood and heart diseases; a royal gem to protect against envy; and, that the three "legs" of a star sapphire represent faith, hope, and charity.

A sapphire is a precious gem, created from the mineral Corundum. When it is red, it is a ruby. It comes in nearly every possible color — blue, green, black, grey-white, yellow, and all possible shades.

Because it is a product of nature, there are no perfect sapphires. In fact, the imperfections actually enhance the sapphire's beauty! Thus, the soft, glowing quality of the sapphire is due to its imperfections, as in the STAR in star sapphires!!

When one is purchasing a genuine sapphire one looks for the same factors that influence the value of a diamond; the size, imperfections, color, and make of the sapphire.

Today, man has been able to successfully create synthetic sapphires at relatively inexpensive prices. These synthetic sapphires have excellent color and come in various shapes and sizes. The only real difference can only be ascertained under a 10-power jeweler's loupe by an expert.

However, man-made synthetic Star sapphires can be more expensive than a genuine star sapphire.

Next week, we shall discuss what we believe is the most alluring of all sapphires — the STAR SAPPHIRE.

Mystery of Mary Jo Haunts; Inquest Nears

By PHILIP BALBONI

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (UPI) — With the death of pretty Mary Joe Kopechne, some say, Ted Kennedy lost the White House — perhaps forever.

But even the long-range national impact of this dramatic political reversal has been dimmed by the tangle of confusion, rumor and speculation which willy-nilly has followed each other on an unending Merry-go-round since the tragic events of July 18-19.

WHAT incredible circumstance, people ask, made 37-year-old Edward Moore Kennedy decide not to report the fatal crash for 10 hours? Whatever it was, Ted Kennedy appeared ready to take his legal medicine.

Kennedy's lawyers say he will appear at the inquest to testify. And if he doesn't show up, Judge Boyle says he will subpoena him.

Among the nagging questions which the inquest should answer are:

1) How Kennedy could have turned off Chappaquiddick's only paved road onto a dirt track and then travel more than one-half mile without realizing he was going in the wrong diback to Edgartown, his stated destination?

2) If Kennedy had some other reason for going down this road with Miss Kopechne at an hour close to midnight, what was it?

3) Was there someone else in the car with Kennedy and Mary Joe that night, someone about whom he has remained silent?

4) How could the Ted Kennedy brought up in a home where courage was a household word walk away from a fatal accident and not report it for 10 hours?

5) How could Joseph F. Gargan, a lawyer and Kennedy's cousin and closest friend, and Paul F. Markham, another close friend and a former U.S. attorney, compound the error by not advising Kennedy to report the accident immediately, or failing to convince him, report it themselves?

6) Was Kennedy drinking heavily the night of the accident, heavily enough to impair his ability to drive safely?

7) Why did Kennedy say he was in a state of shock in his two public statements when his television address and the accounts of those who saw him after the accident show almost conclusively that he was fully aware of what had happened?

8) Why did he return to Chappaquiddick the morning after the accident and wait there for more than 30 minutes before finally going to police?

9) Why did Kennedy make such an incredibly incomplete and misleading statement to police and then wait a week before speaking out more fully, but then only to raise more questions than he answered?

10) Finally, is there some strange and mysterious circumstance about the accident, something so far hidden and known only to the Kennedy intimates, something which Ted Kennedy will not discuss because it would hurt someone else?

If these questions are answered, what happens then? Could Kennedy, Gargan, Markham or some of the others involved face new charges?

A prominent Boston trial lawyer who knows both Dinis and Kennedy explained the mechanics of an inquest.

3 Rock Festivals Draw Hundreds of Thousands Fans

Associated Press

By the hundreds of thousands they gather — with their long hair, their bare feet, their sleeping bags and, in some cases, their drugs — to groove together and to hear the greats and the unknowns of the world of rock music.

They crowded onto England's Isle of Wight, to a dusty dragstrip near Dallas, Tex., and to a grassy ranch in the mountain-rimmed country south of Olympia, Wash.

ISLE OF WIGHT, England (AP) — A teen-age girl tore her clothes off Saturday night and danced naked before tens of thousands of fans gathering for a pop music festival featuring American folk singer Bob Dylan.

"I just want to be free," the girl cried before police escorted her from the scene.

FESTIVAL organizers and local police teamed to handle the massive security and logistics problems posed by the hordes of young people.

At Olympia, the organizers had to overcome legal blockades thrown up by local residents who feared a repeat of the traffic jams, chaos and litter that marked the arrival of more than 300,000 rock fans two weeks ago at White Lake, N.Y., during a similar festival.

Police expect more than 200,000 fans would be on the Isle of Wight by Sunday when the festival's main attraction, folk-rock singer Bob Dylan, takes the stand.

It will be the first public performance in about 12 months for the 28-year-old American singer, who is coming back after nearly three years of semiretirement. Also expected are the Beatles, the Rolling Stones and, reportedly, Elizabeth Taylor.

This cast was drawing youths from Britain, Europe and the United States. They came to the island off England's southern coast by ferry and hovercraft at a rate police estimated Friday was 2,000 an hour.

THE VANGUARD of an expected 100,000 rock fans were already encamped Friday in the sprawling federal park lands around Garza-Little Elm Reservoir near Lewisville, Tex. The park is near the Dallas International Motor Speedway, where a three-day festival opens today.

Among the attractions at the Texas festival were Janis Joplin, Herbi Mann, Led Zeppelin, Johnny Winter and Tony Joe White.

Another three-day rockfest opens today on a 200-acre ranch 30 miles south of Olympia after a state Supreme Court decision Friday cleared the way.

The high court, by a 5-2 ruling, nullified a Superior Court injunction against the Sky River Rock Festival and Lighter Than Air Fair. Five residents had sought the injunction, fearing damage to their property, fire danger and annoyance from the loud noise and the crowd of fans.

SOME Lewisville area residents extended a warmer welcome to the youths flooding into their town of 7,000. "Welcome Beautiful People" signs greeted the rock fans.

"The merchants are making money," said Lewisville Police Chief Ralph Adams.

The 100,000 residents of Wight seemed stoicly resigned to the swarm of young people invading their normally quiet island. But all days off were canceled for Wight's 130-man police force and 100 extra security guards were hired to control the crowds. Police said drugs were their biggest problem.

Money was the biggest worry for Ron Foulk, one of three brothers who invested $240,000 in the music festival. Many of the fans didn't have two pennies to rub together, he said, let alone the $4.80 for a ticket. Only 40,000 tickets had been sold by Friday.

"WE HAVEN'T got the bread to buy tickets," admitted one member of the early crowd. "We're going through a hole in the hedge."

Security also was a concern at the Lewisville gathering and the organizers called in special help. Some 100 off-duty policemen were patroling outside to help with traffic control and to prevent gate crashing. Inside, 50 long-haired "friends" in T-shirts and arm bands were to help cool any disturbances.

"This had been done at several festivals and proved to be the most successful way," Gary Bucker, one of the organizers, said.

With the massive crowds, and many fans without money, food was a problem at the gatherings, but free kitchens set up by hippie communes and sharing by the youths was helping fill the gaps.

'Speed' Sale Charged to Clinic Chief

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The administrator of a chain of Southeren California weight reducing clinics has been arraigned on a charge of illegally selling large amounts of amphetamine and methamphetamine — known as 'speed."

More than 1-million amphetamine tablets were seized by federal agents, said John Ingersoll, director of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

Weyman Otis-Wilkes, 51, was arraigned before the U.S. Commissioner in Los Angeles Friday and bail was set at $25,000.

INGERSOLL said Wilkes was arrested Thursday after federal agents said they bought more than 100,000 amphetamine tablets and 60 vials of "speed" from him at his Hollywood clinic.

The million amphetamine tablets were seized Friday at the Medical Reducing Co. in San Gabriel by agents with search warrants. Ingersoll said.

Disaster Areas

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — President Nixon designated three states — Ohio, Illinois, Vermont — as major disaster areas Saturday because of flooding and tornadoes and allocated $1.7 million to help restore public property.

Tijuana 'Off Limits' Hit by Servicemen

SAN DIEGO, (AP) — If Tijuana is placed off limits to military personnel because of the narcotics danger, plenty of young servicemen will be shut off from the only place where they can legally buy a glass of beer. They don't like the prospect.

Many of the servicemen who frequent the lively border town are under 21, the legal drinking age in California.

SEAMAN Ronald Anderson, 19, of Seney, Mich., is one of those against closing the border.

"I don't go along with it," Anderson said. "It's a refuge in a way, so servicemen can get away from California. Why can't a guy go out and have a clean drink once in a while? In Virginia they let sailors drink on base at age 18."

Jerry Gamble, a Navy electrician from Granite Falls, Wash., said he doesn't think authorities could keep servicemen out of Tijuana no matter how hard they tried.

"NINE OUT of 10 would make it down there," Gamble said. "In the service you have guys — young guys — away from home. They are away from their girls. I'm married and I don't do it, but it's the American way, if they don't have their girls, to go down there, find a young girl, spend the night and be ready for a full work week."

Marine Cpl. Gary Engle, 21, of Glendive, Mont., said that as far as the narcotics problem goes, "guys who really want marijuana are going to get it anyway."

"THERE ARE parts of Baja California that are very scenic and interesting for the military man," said Marine Sgt. Larry B. Wilson, 23, of Rockford, Ill. "But Tijuana, itself — there are shops and prostitutes. Prostitutes are cheaper in Tijuana than they are in San Diego.

"But the dope, and so forth, I don't go in for that. Wouldn't risk bringing dope across the border, but I know some Marines and people who would."

ONE NAVY wife said:

"I'm pleased as punch. I don't want my husband getting entrapped by all those senoritas down there."

The off limits plan brought a roar of Mexican protest.

"I don't think putting a whole city, state or county off limits is the answer," said Tijuana's police chief, Carlos Buentiempo.

"Marijuana and drugs have not been a problem here," said Nice Saad, president of the chamber of commerce in Ensenada, about 70 miles from Tijuana.

Rocky Urges U.S. Pay All Welfare

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York urged the nation's governors Saturday to demand the federal government assume the full cost of welfare over a five year period.

Almost all the governors, assembling in Colorado Springs for their 61st annual conferrence, gave high marks to President Nixon's proposed welfare overhaul but felt it did not go far enough, a survey showed.

ONLY Gov. Lester Maddox of Georgia indicated flat opposition. "It is much worse than our present system," Maddox said. "It will add millions of Americans to the welfare rolls."

A report prepared for the conference by its eight-member Committee on Human Resources, chairmanned by Rockefeller, said President Nixon's welfare proposals, while "a step in the right direction, are not adequate to meet the needs."

"Welfare has become a national problem and can only be dealt with effectively on a national basis," the Rockefeller-sponsored report said.

"The increase in federal revenues due to economic growth over a five year period is sufficient to finance the principle of 100 per cent federal financing."

THE REPORT criticized reported plans by the Nixon Administration to deny food stamps to families under the new welfare program. The Rockefeller committee said such action would "constitute a sharp cutback in the federal government's commitment to assure an adequate diet for all Americans."

It pointed out that many families would receive reduced benefits under the Nixon proposal if they were cut off from food stamps.

A White House adviser on nutrition, Dr. Jean Mayer, insisted that food stamps would continue to be provided to families on welfare for years and that reports they would be cut off were based on a misunderstanding.

Nixon Plans 'Federalism' Sales Pitch

President Nixon plans to make a sales pitch for "New Federalism" program Monday when he addresses the National Governors Conference at Colorado Springs.

And the Western White House expects Nixon's policy of shifting Washington power and responsibility back to the states will have a lot of appeal with the governors, particularly his plan for revenue sharing with the states. The plan — if approved by Congress — would get off to a slow start in 1971 with a federal income tax rebate of a modest $500,000 to the states and cities, building up to $5 billion by 1975.

ADMINISTRATION officials said the proposals which include a revolutionary plan for poor family income assistance, day care center and job training already have received widespread popular support.

The President also was expected to urge governors to step up their tax capability to better meet urban problems. He may let them in on the bad news that previously forecast big sums of money for social action after the Vietnam war is over will not be forthcoming.

On his Labor Day trip to Colorado, Nixon also will tour the North American Air Defense Command Headquarters tunneled in Cheyenne Mountain about 10 miles from Colorado Springs. He will be given a top security military briefing.

Australians Give $32,514

Officers and sailors of the Royal Australian Navy and its Women's Navy Corps have donated $32,514 for families of the 74 destroyer Frank E. Evans sailors who died when their ship was cut in half June 2 by the Australian carrier Melbourne.

Vice Adm. Sir Frank Smith, Australian Navy chief of staff, will present the check to the 7th Fleet commander, Vice Adm. William F. Bringle, aboard the carrier Oriskany.

The Long Beach destroyer was on maneuvers with the Australian ship when the fatal collision occurred off the Philippines.

Flight Cost AF Colonel $1,000 Fine

WEISBADEN, Germany (AP) — The U.S. Air Force announced Saturday a former wing commander has been reprimanded and fined $1,000 for using a medical evacuation plane to fly two vacationing colonels and members of their families and staff to Norway.

Headquarters of the 17th AIR Forces said an investigation of the July 27 flight to Oslo resulted in a reprimand and fine for Col. Richard E. Tiede, a native of Ottumwa, Iowa.

INVESTIGATION of another colonel, Frank Kimbrough, originally of Montgomery, Ala., is still under way, the Air Force said Tiede was to leave for the United States preliminary to his scheduled retirement.

Tiede was at the time of the flight the outgoing commander of the 731th Tactical Air Life Wing at Rhein-Main Air Base in Frankfurt, Kimbrough is base commander.

The investigation was begun after Overseas weekly published a report that the medical evacuation plane was used to take the colonels, their families and staffs to Oslo. The newspaper said two round trips from Frankfurt to Oslo in the C-118 Liftmaster cost at least $7,200.

BIGGEST PARTY LINE IN TOWN

Auto Telephone Proof of Status

There are 309 motorists in Long Beach with automobile telephones — the biggest party line in town — and the little aerials on the trunks of their cars are fast becoming one of the community's most fashionable status symbols.

They've caught on so, said a General Telephone Company spokesman, that new transmitters are having to go up in Downey and West Los Angeles to accommodate their growth.

"THEY'RE FOR the man for whom time is money," the spokesman continued, "the fellow who might miss thousands of dollars if he missed a call."

But they're also being bought by the status seekers, he admitted, so much so there are reports the antennas alone are being purchased by some just for the appearance.

There are 30,000 of the instruments across the country. In New York, there are 2,600 persons on a waiting list, in Washington, 400.

"As a status symbol," reports the Washingtonian magazine, "the car phone ranks near the top. The distinctive little antenna, the black box under the dashboard, the telephone unit and reading lamp in the back seat — these are the symbols of power, the identifying marks of the Inner Circle."

IN LOS ANGELES, there are 1,600 car phones. In a unique experiment, the Pacific Telephone Company, which serves Los Angeles, is letting anyone who requests a car phone have one. The customers then have to fight among themselves for time on the available frequencies.

In Long Beach, General charges $65 installation fee and $56 a month rental fee. The $56 pays for 25 minutes of conversation. After that, it costs more.

One of the unhappiest features of the car phone is the fact that everyone can hear the conversation of everyone else.

"Any aural voyeur with another car phone or even a short wave receiver can monitor your conversation," one user pointed out.

THE OWNER of a short wave radio in Long Beach herd this conversation, for instance:

The caller: "Honey, I'm caught late at the office and won't be in for awhile."

Moments later: "I'm on the way, sweetheart, I'll be right over."

3 Rock Festivals Draw Hundreds of Thousands Fans

Associated Press

By the hundreds of thousands they gather — with their long hair, their bare feet, their sleeping bags and, in some cases, their drugs — to groove together and to hear the greats and the unknowns of the world of rock music.

They crowded onto England's Isle of Wight, to a dusty dragstrip near Dallas, Tex., and to a grassy ranch in the mountain-rimmed country south of Olympia, Wash.

ISLE OF WIGHT, England (AP) — A teen-age girl tore her clothes off Saturday night and danced naked before tens of thousands of fans gathering for a pop music festival featuring. American folk singer Bob Dylan.

"I just want to be free," the girl cried before police escoreted her from the scene.

FESTIVAL organizers and local police teamed to handle the massive security and logistics problems posed by the hordes of young people.

At Olympia, the organizers had to overcome legal blockades thrown up by local residents who feared a repeat of the traffic jams, chaos and litter that marked the arrival of more than 300,000 rock fans two weeks ago at White Lake, N.Y., during a similar festival.

Police expect more than 200,000 fans would be on the Isle of Wight by Sunday when the festival's main attraction, folk-rock singer Bob Dylan, takes the stand.

It will be the first public performance in about 12 months for the 28-year-old American singer, who is coming back after nearly three years of semiretirement. Also expected are the Beatles, the Rolling Stones and, reportedly, Elizabeth Taylor.

This cast was drawing youths from Britain, Europe and the United States. They came to the island off England's southern coast by ferry and hovercraft at a rate police estimated Friday was 2,000 an hour.

THE VANGUARD of an expected 100,000 rock fans were already encamped Friday in the sprawling federal park lands around Garza-Little Elm Reservoir near Lewisville, Tex. The park is near the Dallas International Motor Speedway, where a three-day festival opens today.

Among the attractions at the Texas festival were Janis Joplin, Herbi Mann, Led Zeppelin, Johnny Winter and Tony Joe White.

Another three-day rockfest opens today on a 200-acre ranch 30 miles south of Olympia after a state Supreme Court decision Friday cleared the way.

The high court, by a 5-2 ruling, nullified a Superior Court injunction against the Sky River Rock Festival and Lighter Than Air Fair. Five residents had sought the injunction, fearing damage to their property, fire danger and annoyance from the loud noise and the crowd of fans.

SOME Lewisville area residents extended a warmer welcome to the youths flooding into their town of 7,000. "Welcome Beautiful People" signs greeted the rock fans.

"The merchants are making money," said Lewisville Police Chief Ralph Adams.

The 100,000 residents of Wight seemed stoicly resigned to the swarm of young people invading their normally quiet island. But all days off were canceled for Wight's 130-man police force and 100 extra security guards were hired to control the crowds. Police said drugs were their biggest problem.

Money was the biggest worry for Ron Foulk, one of three brothers who invested $240,000 in the music festival. Many of the fans didn't have two pennies to rub together, he said, let alone the $4.50 for a ticket. Only 40,000 tickets had been sold by Friday.

"WE HAVEN'T got the bread to buy tickets," admitted one member of the early crowd. "We're going through a hole in the hedge."

Security also was a concern at the Lewisville gathering and the organizers called in special help. Some 100 off-duty policemen were patroling outside to help with traffic control and to prevent gate crashing. Inside, 50 long-haired "friends" in T-shirts and arm bands were to help cool any disturbances.

"This had been done at several festivals and proved to be the most successful way," Gary Bucker, one of the organizers, said.

With the massive crowds, and many fans without money, food was a problem at the gatherings, but free kitchens set up by hippie communes and sharing by the youths was helping fill the gaps.

'Speed' Sale Charged to Clinic Chief

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The administrator of a chain of Southeren California weight reducing clinics has been arraigned on a charge of illegally selling large amounts of amphetamine and methamphetamine — known as 'speed."

More than 1-million amphetamine tablets were seized by federal agents, said John Ingersoll, director of the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs.

Weyman Otis-Wilkes, 51, was arraigned before the U.S. Commissioner in Los Angeles Friday and bail was set at $25,000.

INGERSOLL said Wilkes was arrested Thursday after federal agents said they bought more than 100,000 amphetamine tablets and 60 vials of "speed" from him at his Hollywood clinic.

The million amphetamine tablets were seized Friday at the Medical Reducing Co. in San Gabriel by agents with search warrants, Ingersoll said.

Disaster Areas

SAN CLEMENTE (AP) — President Nixon designated three states — Ohion, Illinois, Vermont — as major disaster areas Saturday because of flooding and tornadoes and allocated $1.7 million to help restore public property.

Tijuana 'Off Limits' Hit by Servicemen

SAN DIEGO, (AP) — If Tijuana is placed off limits to military personnel because of the narcotics danger, plenty of young servicemen will be shut off from the only place where they can legally buy a glass of beer. They don't like the prospect.

Many of the servicemen who frequent the lively border town are under 21, the legal drinking age in California.

SEAMAN Ronald Anderson, 19, of Seney, Mich., is one of those against closing the border.

"I don't go along with it," Anderson said. "It's a refuge in a way, so servicemen can get away from California. Why can't a guy go out and have a clean drink once in a while? In Virginia they let sailors drink on base at age 18."

Jerry Gamble, a Navy electrician from Granite Falls, Wash., said he doesn't think authorities could keep servicemen out of Tijuana no matter how hard they tried.

"NINE OUT of 10 would make it down there," Gamble said. "In the service you have guys — young guys — away from home. They are away from their girls. I'm married and I don't do it, but it's the American way, if they don't have their girls, to go down there, find a young girl, spend the night and be ready for a full work week."

Marine Cpl. Gary Engle, 21, of Glendive, Mont., said that as far as the narcotics problem goes, "guys who really want marijuana are going to get it anyway."

"THERE ARE parts of Baja California that are very scenic and interesting for the military man," said Marine Sgt. Larry B. Wilson, 23, of Rockford, Ill. "But Tijuana, itself — there are shops and prostitutes. Prostitutes are cheaper in Tijuana than they are in San Diego.

"But the dope, and so forth, I don't go in for that. Wouldn't risk bringing dope across the border, but I know some Marines and people who would."

EYEWITNESS REPORT

30 Yrs. Ago Nazis Began World War

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Thirty years ago, on Sept. 1, 1939, Nazi fuehrer Adolf Hitler invaded Poland and plunged mankind into World War II. Joseph W. Grigg was in Berlin then as a member of the United Press Berlin Bureau. On May 8, 1945, he returned as an American war correspondent to cover the final capitulation of Hitler's Third Reich amid the ruins of the former German capital. In the following dispatch he recalls what Berlin was like on the first and last days of the greatest war in history. Grigg is now UPI chief European correspondent based in London).

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) — There were few cheers but many long faces in Berlin on Sept. 1, 1939, the day 30 years ago Nazi fuehrer Adolf Hitler sent his armies and bomber fleets against Poland and launched World War II.

It was almost as if the Berliners sensed what was in store for them — total destruction of their city and the most overwhelming defeat ever suffered by a major nation.

I saw the start of war that September morning in 1939 as a staff correspondent assigned to the Berlin Bureau of United Press.

For weeks Europe had moved towards the brink of war as Hitler pushed a hate campaign against Poland to an hysterical climax.

BERLIN RAILROAD stations were jammed with Wehrmacht reservists reporting to their units. Fleets of Heinkel and Dornier bombers roared over the city to impress the population. Anti-aircraft guns were mounted on rooftops. Food, clothes, shoes and soap were rationed. Telephone lines with London and Paris were cut.

Britain and France were pledged to come to Poland's aid but Hitler was convinced they would not fight. He expected another Western climbdown like the Munich agreement over Czechoslovakia a year earlier.

At 5:45 A.M. on Friday, Sept. 1, Hitler struck. He threw a million troops and two entire bomber fleets without warning against Poland.

AS I RACED BY taxi to the United Press office on Unter den Linden, a grey, rainy dawn was breaking over Berlin following a week of torrid August heat.

I saw early workers glumly reading newspapers proclaiming in screaming red headlines "from now it's force against force."

Middle-aged, pot-bellied Nazi stormtroopers were taking up positions along the Wilhelmstrasse leading from Hitler's chancellory. Crowds began massing silently behind them.

Just before 10 A.M. Hitler appeared, driving in a closed Mercedes sedan, surrounded by bodyguards and followed by two other cars filled with storm troop guards. One car carrried a small anti-aircraft gun.

HITLER LOOKED haggard and pale, his face drawn from lack of sleep. For the first time he wore a field grey uniform in place of his usual brown Nazi party tunic.

The Nazi leader drove to the Kroll Opera House. There, a dwarflike figure beneath the Wagnerian backdrop of a huge golden eagle surmounting a golden swastika, he faced the tame Nazi Reichstag.

Gesturing and pounding the desk, he screamed, "I will wage this struggle, no matter against whom, until the security of the Reich and its rights are assured."

Britain and France hesitated. Then on the morning of Sunday, Sept. 3, as Hitler's legions sliced deep into Poland, they finally declared war.

IT WAS A HOT, sunny day. Sunday crowds strolling along Unter den Linden grabbed newspapers with headlines "England declares state of war."

But there was no cheering, no war hysteria, no brass bands playing.

"Britain and France are bluffing. They won't really fight," a high nazi official told me.

Nothing looked less like the capital of a nation that had just plunged the world into the most destructive war in history.

More than five and a half years later, on May 8, 1945, I returned to Berlin as an American war correspondent to cover Nazi Germany's final surrender at the headquarters of Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Zhukhov.

Hitler was dead in a nameless grave in the ruins of his chancellory. The one-time Nazi capital was an apocalyptic vision of destruction. Unter den Linden was a smouldering pile of rubble. Our former office building was unrecognizable.

WRECKED STREETCARS and German anti-tank guns bore witness to the street fighting that had just ended.

Berliners were crawling out from their cellars dazed, gray-faced, looking more like zombies than human beings. Many were bandaged.

I could not help wondering what had happened to the Nazi who had told me so confidently "Britain and France won't fight. They are just bluffing."

U.S.-Mexico Commission Aiding Needy at Border Faces Demise

By PEGGY SIMPSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — A joint U.S.-Mexico commission, set up to cope with problems of the six milion people who live along the border, is broke and facing extinction after two years on the political tightrope.

Its future depends on whether the ire of Rep. John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., can be cooled and if Congress will provide the funds.

ROONEY'S House appropriations subcommittee deleted the agency's $1.5 million budget after no high-echelon Nixon Administration official testified for the border group's program. Rooney had postponed hearings to allow time for such testimony.

The Senate may yet restore some of the funds. However, Rooney has vowed to withhold his approval of funds until Congress in principal agrees to continue the commission set up by the executive order of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The commission has survived in the past by mooching money from friendly federal departments, hoping that one of the many bills to make it a permanent entity would be passed.

FACED with Rooney's rebuff and an over-all budget squeeze, the commission is now asking for only $360,000, barely enough to keep the channels of communications open for another year, according to Antonio F. Rodriques, the U.S. section director.

The commission has narrowed its scope, officials say, backing off from most border controversies. These include the rising infiltration of narcotics and unskilled labor into the United States and the trend of "runaway" industry shifting to Mexico where labor is cheaper.

Yet, Rodriques says he thinks the commission has finally carved out its own niche.

Realistically, he said, the U.S. branch has neither the financial nor political clout to get involved in the broad border questions.

The commission's future, Rodriques said, lies partly as a clearing house for major planning from Washington and Mexico City.

HE POINTS to such programs as better housing, a joint vocational school at Baja California open to American students, and coordination of emergency procedures for disasters, such as the 1967 floods in South Texas and northern Tamaulipas.

Another job the commission can do and still mind its political manners, Rodriques said, is assisting border twin cities in solving local problems of housing, education, recreation, sewage, transportation and jobs.

Japanese Immigration Centennial Celebrated

By RICHARD M. HARNETT

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — One hundred years ago the first Japanese immigrants arrived in San Francisco. The city will mark the anniversary starting this week with a celebration bigger than any American city has ever before thrown for a foreign nation.

What started out as "Japan Week" has stretched to a 15-day run of events ranging from folk dancing and fireworks to top-level conferences on trade and international politics.

TOURISTS MAY think they are in Tokyo at times. Department stores are decorating, street parades will have a Japanese motif, Japanese flags will be flying and the city's exhibit halls will be showing merchandise and art from Japan.

A Japanese navy frigate, the "Amatusakaze," will be tied up in port and her crew will join hundreds of others coming from Japan to join more than 10,000 Japanese-Americans who live here.

On Sept. 12 former Japanese Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi will unveil a monument in Golden Gate Park commemorating the centennial of Japanese emigration. The ceremony will be held near the famed Japanese Tea Garden.

THE DISPLAY of enthusiastic friendship between Japan and San Francisco closes the book decisively on the period during those hundred years in which bitter San Franciscans renamed the little island of Japan lore in Golden Gate Park the "Oriental Tea Garden," and packed off the Japanese immigrants to interment camps.

San Francisco has for a hundred years been the most favored American city for the Japanese. Except for the period of World War II, the city has welcomed the Japanese with special affection. And today's Japanese - Americans are often cited as model citizens.

EYEWITNESS REPORT

30 Yrs. Ago Nazis Began World War

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Thirty years ago, on Sept. 1, 1939, Nazi fuehrer Adolf Hitler invaded Poland and plunged mankind into World War II. Joseph W. Grigg was in Berlin then as a member of the United Press Berlin Bureau. On May 8, 1945, he returned as an American war correspondent to cover the final capitulation of Hitler's Third Reich amid the ruins of the former German capital. In the following dispatch he recalls what Berlin was like on the first and last days of the greatest war in history. Grigg is now UPI chief European correspondent based in London).

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG

LONDON (UPI) — There were few cheers but many long faces in Berlin on Sept. 1, 1939, the day 30 years ago Nazi fuehrer Adolf Hitler sent his armies and bomber fleets against Poland and launched World War II.

It was almost as if the Berliners sensed what was in store for them — total destruction of their city and the most overwhelming defeat ever suffered by a major nation.

I saw the start of war that September morning in 1939 as a staff correspondent assigned to the Berlin Bureau of United Press.

For weeks Europe had moved towards the brink of war as Hitler pushed a hate campaign against Poland to an hysterical climax.

BERLIN RAILROAD stations were jammed with Wehrmacht reservists reporting to their units. Fleets of Heinkel and Dornier bombers roared over the city to impress the population. Anti-aircraft guns were mounted on rooftops. Food, clothes, shoes and soap were rationed. Telephone lines with London and Paris were cut.

Britain and France were pledged to come to Poland's aid but Hitler was convinced they would not fight. He expected another Western climbdown like the Munich agreement over Czechoslovakia a year earlier.

At 5:45 A.M. on Friday, Sept. 1, Hitler struck. He threw a million troops and two entire bomber fleets without warning against Poland.

AS I RACED BY taxi to the United Press office on Unter den Linden, a grey, rainy dawn was breaking over Berlin following a week of torrid August heat.

I saw early workers glumly reading newspapers proclaiming in screaming red headlines "from now it's force against force."

Middle-aged, pot-bellied Nazi stormtroopers were taking up positions along the Wilhelmstrasse leading from Hitler's chancellory. Crowds began massing silently behind them.

Just before 10 A.M. Hitler appeared, driving in a closed Mercedes sedan, surrounded by bodyguards and followed by two other cars filled with storm troop guards. One car carrried a small anti-aircraft gun.

HITLER LOOKED haggard and pale, his face drawn from lack of sleep. For the first time he wore a field grey uniform in place of his usual brown Nazi party tunic.

The Nazi leader drove to the Kroll Opera House. There, a dwarflike figure beneath the Wagnerian backdrop of a huge golden eagle surmounting a golden swastika, he faced the tame Nazi Reichstag.

Gesturing and pounding the desk, he screamed, "I will wage this struggle, no matter against whom, until the security of the Reich and its rights are assured."

Britain and France hesitated. Then on the morning of Sunday, Sept. 3, as Hitler's legions sliced deep into Poland, they finally declared war.

IT WAS A HOT, sunny day. Sunday crowds strolling along Unter den Linden grabbed newspapers with headlines "England declares state of war."

But there was no cheering, no war hysteria, no brass bands playing.

"Britain and France are bluffing. They won't really fight," a high nazi official told me.

Nothing looked less like the capital of a nation that had just plunged the world into the most destructive war in history.

More than five and a half years later, on May 8, 1945, I returned to Berlin as an American war correspondent to cover Nazi Germany's final surrender at the headquarters of Soviet Marshal Georgi K. Zhukhov.

Hitler was dead in a nameless grave in the ruins of his chancellory. The one-time Nazi capital was an apocalyptic vision of destruction. Unter den Linden was a smouldering pile of rubble. Our former office building was unrecognizable.

WRECKED STREETCARS and German anti-tank guns bore witness to the street fighting that had just ended.

Berliners were crawling out from their cellars dazed, gray-faced, looking more like zombies than human beings. Many were bandaged.

I could not help wondering what had happened to the Nazi who had told me so confidently "Britain and France won't fight. They are just bluffing."

U.S.-Mexico Commission Aiding Needy at Border Faces Demise

By PEGGY SIMPSON

WASHINGTON (NEA) — A joint U.S.-Mexico commission, set up to cope with problems of the six milion people who live along the border, is broke and facing extinction after two years on the political tightrope.

Its future depends on whether the ire of Rep. John J. Rooney, D-N.Y., can be cooled and if Congress will provide the funds.

ROONEY'S House appropriations subcommittee defeted the agency's $1.5 million budget after no high-echelon Nixon Administration official testified for the border group's program. Rooney had postponed hearings to allow time for such testimony.

The Senate may yet restore some of the funds. However, Rooney has vowed to withhold his approval of funds until Congress in principal agrees to continue the commission set up by the executive order of former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

The commission has survived in the past by mooching money from friendly federal departments, hoping that one of the many bills to make it a permanent entity would be passed.

FACED with Rooney's rebuff and an over-all budget squeeze, the commission is now asking for only $360,000, barely enough to keep the channels of communications open for another year, according to Antonio F. Rodriques, the U.S. section director.

The commission has narrowed its scope, officials say, backing off from most border controversies. These include the rising infiltration of narcotics and unskilled labor into the United States and the trend of "runaway" industry shifting to Mexico where labor is cheaper.

Yet, Rodriques says he thinks the commission has finally carved out its own niche.

Realistically, he said, the U.S. branch has neither the financial nor political clout to get involved in the broad border questions.

The commission's future, Rodriques said, lies partly as a clearing house for major planning from Washington and Mexico City.

HE POINTS to such programs as better housing, a joint vocational school at Baja California open to American students, and coordination of emergency procedures for disasters, such as the 1967 floods in South Texas and northern Tamaulipas.

Another job the commission can do and still mind its political manners, Rodriques said, is assisting border twin cities in solving local problems of housing, education, recreation, sewage, transportation and jobs.

PROTESTANT LEADERS in strife-torn Northern Ireland accused the Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland, William Cardinal Conway, of heightening tension. Catholics charge militant Protestant spokesman Rev. Ian Paisley of fomenting trouble. While British troops kept the peace in Ireland, Bernadette Devlin, young, diminutive member of British Parliament from Northern Ireland, was touring the United States to raise $1 million to aid Catholic victims of the "holy war." She repeated her goal of a union between Northern Ireland, part of Great Britain, and the Republic of Ireland.

FIFTEEN PERSONS WERE EXECUTED in Iraq on charges of spying for Israel and the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. All citizens of Iraq, two were Jews and two were Christians. Israel condemned the executions as "barbaric."

FOREIGN MINISTERS OF THE 14 nations in the Arab League met in Cairo to plan retaliatory action against Israel for a fire the preceding week in Jerusalem's Al Aqsa Mosque and to consider Jordan's call for a summit meeting. Israeli authorities, meanwhile, arrested a suspected arsonist in the mosque blaze.

ARGENTINE WORKERS STAGED a nationwide strike Wednesday that crippled industry for 24 hours. The walkout, third in three months and labeled illegal by President Juan Carlos Ongania's regime, was to protest the military government's economic policies.

The Nation

Inflation, one of the major headaches of the Administration, will be with us for a while. That was the forecast last week by William H. Chartener, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs. Chartener said that even though there are indications the situation is improving, the country can expect cheapening of the dollar to continue through the rest of 1969. The President's Council of Economic Advisers presented a similar assessment when they met with Nixon last week.

Speaking of the economy if the war in Vietnam should end, Daniel P. Moynihan, assistant to the President for urban affairs, said earlier in the week that the idea a cessation of hostilities would free large sums for new social programs is an illusion. He predicted that budgetary savings would be consumed through the mid-1970s by current and proposed domestic and military programs and population growth.

PAUL McCRACKEN, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, agreed to an extent, but tempered his prediction by saying there would be some "elbow room" in the federal budget.

RUSSIA IS BUILDING nuclear-powered submarines at the rate of one per month and may soon surpass the United States in A-vessels, Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover told a House appropriations subcommittee in testimony released last week. Rickover, pleading for restoration of funds to the Atomic Energy Commission's spending proposals for nuclear-sub research and development, said Russia now has 375 submarines to 143 for the United States and that of the total, the Soviets have 65 atomic submarines to 82 for the U.S.

The West

The "happiest birthday" he'd ever had was the way Lyndon B. Johnson described his 61st. The former president was feted by President Nixon and his family at the White House West Wednesday in a day-long affair that also honored Mrs. Johnson. After a birthday luncheon in San Clemente, the Nixon and Johnson families flew north to the Redwood National Park where the President dedicated a 300-acre stand of great trees as Lady Bird Johnson Redwood Grove. Nixon praised Johnson as a president of "distinction and great courage" and Lady Bird as the "first lady of beautification" and said no president's wife had ever done more for conservation. Johnson said he was "proud to stand behind you (Nixon) in your quest for peace and prosperity at home."

LOS ANGELES COUNTY'S TAX RATE went up again Tuesday. The Board of Supervisors fixed the rate at $2.91 per $100 assessed valuation, 22½ cents higher than during the 1968-69 fiscal year. In adopting the new tax schedule, supervisors also approved a $1.774 billion operating budget.

A SMOGLESS LOS ANGELES BASIN by 1980 was the optimistic prediction last week by Dr. Lee A. Dubridge, President Nixon's science adviser. The former president of Caltech at Pasadena predicated his optimistic prediction on continued improvement of automobile engines and control of industrial emissions.

RATIFICATION OF A NEW CONTRACT by operating engineers Wednesday ended a 40-day strike that had paralyzed the construction industry in Southern California. The five-year pact gives 23,000 heavy equipment operators a $4.26-hourly increase during the life of the agreement. The strike had idled 300,000 construction workers in 11 Southern California counties.

AN UNDERGROUND NUCLEAR TEST at Yucca Flat, Nev., leaked a small amount of radiation into the atmosphere last week. Radioactivity was confined to the test site, the Atomic Energy Commission reported.

The War

The question of U.S. troop withdrawals from Southeast Asia was a focus of attention this week in peaceful Paris as well as in embattled Saigon and worried Bangkok.

Chief U.S. peace negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge indicated to Communist spokesmen in the French capital that further cutbacks in American strength in Vietnam will await a reduction in Red military activity.

Earlier in the week, State Department officials had denied rumors that troop withdrawals had been suspended because they might endanger South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu's Saigon regime.

In Washington, the State Department hinted that North Vietnam was in effect withdrawing troops from South Vietnam by reducing its infiltration of the southern provinces. The Defense Department conceded that infiltration this year is less than last year, but questioned the significance of the reduction.

BATTLE CASUALTIES announced Thursday for the week ended Aug. 23 were down with 190 Americans killed in action and 1,367 wounded.

THE UNITED STATES and Thailand announced that negotiations on the possible withdrawal of some U.S. troops from that country would begin Monday.

MARGARET SCHAFER COLLECTS BASEBALLS

LAKEWOOD HOUSEWIFE

Cubs' No. 1 'Lady Fan' Recalls Her '30s Teams

BY HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

Margaret Schafer cannot be described as a rabid baseball fan. The Lakewood housewife has lived in the area since 1955 and saw her first Dodger game last July. But she can remember when baseball was one of the most important things in her life.

In her native Chicago, Margaret was known as a No. 1 fan of the Cubs. Working as a waitress on the South Side, a hotbed of White Sox fans, Margaret lived dangerously as she tuned in the Cubs' games on the restaurant radio.

"It would really cause a commotion among the White Sox fans who were in the place," she said, "but the radio was behind the counter, and I operated it."

MARGARET, lived on the North Side (Cub country) and she followed her team fervently between 1932 and 1940.

"I was off work Tuesdays and Thursdays and during the season, when the Cubs were in town, I attended all their games on those days," she said.

Her cherished possession is a box of baseballs she keeps stored in a place of honor. The balls bear the signatures of almost all the Cubs players in the years 1932-40.

"Every year at the beginning of the season, I would go to a game early, while the team was taking batting practice," she recalled. "I'd fight with the other fans to get a foul ball and when I'd get one, I'd stand by the tunnel leading from the field to the Cubs' dressing room with the ball and a pen. As the players came off the field they'd autograph the baseball."

THE CUBS of the 30s got used to seeing the little lady with the baseball and pen at the start of each season and it became a ritual to sign the ball for her. Even the signature of the then commissioner of baseball, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, adorns six of the baseballs in her collection.

"The commissioner would come by and say, 'My, my, another baseball to sign, little lady?' ", she said, pointing to the signature of the commissioner on the balls which are now shellacked to protect the writing.

Margaret still follows the Cubs from a distance and thinks that their manager, Leo Durocher, is going to have a winner this year. "He hasn't traded off all his good players" she comments.

DISPLAYING her baseball collection to visitors, Margaret makes no comparisons between the current Cubs and the ones in the 30s, but she likes to recall the oldtimers' exploits as she points out the names of Gabby Hartnett, Billy Herman, Guy Busch, Charlie Grimm, Dizzy Dean, Larry French and many more.

As to going to her first Dodger game this year, Margaret explained that her husband has been ill since moving to California and it has cut down on her baseball activity.

"Some friends invited me to a Dodger game this season," she said. "It was great to see a big league game again. I don't recall who the Dodgers were playing that night, but I do know that it wasn't the Cubs. If it had been, I'd been to the game early, while the teams were taking batting practice, and got me another foul ball and a whole batch of new autographs."

Queen Mary's Voyages Relived in New Book

The 31-year voyage of the "Queen of Queens" — from her confetti-and-champagne beginning to her tears-and-tumult end at Long Beach — has been documented in a soon-to-be released book by former Independent, Press-Telegram reporter William Duncan.

The 287-page book, "R.M.S. Queen Mary, Queen of the Queens," was the product of 18 months research by the prize-winning writer, who was also a passenger on the ship's final voyage from Southampton, England, to her permanent home in Long Beach.

The 42-year-old author, who admits to being a "lousy sailor" who never did any stories about the Queen Mary before her purchase by the City of Long Beach, made up for it when assigned by his newspapers to cover the Queen's final voyage.

"I started researching before the Queen ever left on the final voyage and finished the basic history in England," Duncan recalls.

Then he went aboard, and from that time, Oct. 31, 1967, until the ship's gala welcome at Long Beach, Dec. 9, 1967, he filed two stories a day and ran ashore at each port to mail back pictures he had taken. With him aboard the ship was his wife, Ada, who was editor of the shipboard newspaper, "Ocean Bulletin" and who now publishes "Mary Memos" a monthly newsletter for former Queen passengers.

The book spans the years of the Queen's sea life, during which she carried more than three million luxury passengers, 800,000 American servicemen and thousands of war brides and their offspring. The miles she has sailed on the oceans of earth could have taken her 12 times to the moon and back.

In his 18 months of research, the former reporter personally interviewed thousands of persons, from crewmen to the GIs who rode her to war; from luxury passengers to stowaways, and from the Scottish shipbuilders to the longshoremen who handled her lines.

He documents her birth in a timber cradle at Clydebank, Scotland, through her plush luxury years, her bleak war years, her return to a jet-set post-war world, and her retirement to become a floating hotel-convention city on the Southern California coast.

Duncan, born in Georgia and father of five, resigned as a special assignment writer at the I, P-T to complete the book. He claims the most difficult part was researching the war years when the 81,237-ton vessel served as a troop carrier.

"There was almost nothing in public print on the Queen during those years, and most of the material had to be obtained from crewmen or GIs who were trooped across the Atlantic," Duncan says.

Although he received more than 100 replies from a newspaper advertisement asking for information about the Queen's war duties, "chance" played a big part in the research, he admits.

"I was having some work done on the sewer line at the house and was sidewalk superintendenting when the guy digging the ditch asked what I did for a living. I mentioned I was writing a book about the Queen Mary, and it turned out he had gone overseas on her. He gave me a great deal of insight into her troop-carrying days."

On another occasion, standing in a supermarket checkout line, he overheard a conversation in which one of the women had a British accent. By this time the one-time newspaper sleuth was following every lead.

"I asked her if she knew anything about the Queen Mary — she did. Her mother had sailed aboard her and knew a lot about the Queen's early days."

Duncan, who wrote the book at his home at 127 W. Madison Ave., Placentia, claims, however, much of the basic research also came from microfilms at the New York and London Times, and from the historic archives at the Cunard Line, former owners of the Queen.

"I cut out 20,000 words," Duncan says frankly, "because I felt I'd overwritten it. Now I wish I hadn't."

A graduate of Woodbury College in Los Angeles, Duncan served as an infantryman with the Fifth Marine Division during World War II and got his first job as a cub reporter with the Fullerton News Tribune in 1951. He joined the Press-Telegram a year later, and, except for a two year period when he published his own weekly newspaper in Orange County, wrote for the I, P-T until he resigned last year.

Winner of numerous Associated Press awards, he was presented with the Gold Medal, the top award at the California State Fair Press Awards Program, in 1965 for his series of articles on the plight of the American migratory farm laborer. The series also won special citation from AP. Another series on the military in Alaska won him a first place prize in the Association of the United States Army's annual news competition the same year.

Arab and Cuban Hijackers Strike

By DON HASTINGS
Staff Writer

The World

Aerial hijackers struck twice Friday. An Arab guerrilla couple forced the pilot of a Trans World Airlines jetliner bound from Rome to Tel Aviv to land in Damascus, rangements for the other 97 persons aboard to be flown Syrian police arrested all Jews aboard, but made arron to their destinations. The jetliner was heavily damaged by an explosion in the pilot's compartment shortly after it landed.

A Cuban who wanted to take his wife and three children back to their native land hijacked a National Airlines jetliner en route from Miami to New Orleans with 55 persons aboard. The plane was flown back to United States later in the day.

PROTESTANT LEADERS in strife-torn Northern Ireland accused the Roman Catholic primate of all Ireland, William Cardinal Conway, of heightening tension. Catholics charge militant Protestant spokesman Rev. Ian Paisley of fomenting trouble. While British troops kept the peace in Ireland, Bernadette Devlin, young, diminutive member of British Parliament from Northern Ireland, was touring the United States to raise $1 million to aid Catholic victims of the "holy war." She repeated her goal of a union between Northern Ireland, part of Great Britain, and the Republic of Ireland.

THE SKIPPER OF THE AUSTRALIAN aircraft carrier HMS Melbourne, Capt. John P. Stevenson, was cleared by court-martial of any responsibility for the collision of his ship and the American destroyer USS Frank E. Evans. Seventy-four Americans died in the June 3 crash during maneuvers in the South China Sea.

SYRIAN-ROMANIAN DIPLOMATIC relations were elevated its relations with Israel to embassy level. severed last week. Syria made the break after Romania

FIFTEEN PERSONS WERE EXECUTED in Iraq on charges of spying for Israel and the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency. All citizens of Iraq, two were Jews and two were Christians. Israel condemned the executions as "barbaric."

FOREIGN MINISTERS OF THE 14 nations in the Arab League met in Cairo to plan retaliatory action against Israel for a fire the preceding week in Jerusalem's Al Aqsa Mosque and to consider Jordan's call for a summit meeting. Israeli authorities, meanwhile, arrested a suspected arsonist in the mosque blaze.

ARGENTINE WORKERS STAGED a nationwide strike Wednesday that crippled industry for 24 hours. The walkout, third in three months and labeled illegal by President Juan Carlos Ongania's regime, was to protest the military government's economic policies.

The Nation

Inflation, one of the major headaches of the Administration, will be with us for a while. That was the forecast last week by William H. Chartener, assistant secretary of commerce for economic affairs. Chartener said that even though there are indications the situation is improving, the country can expect cheapening of the dollar to continue through the rest of 1969. The President's Council of Economic Advisers presented a similar assessment when they met with Nixon last week.

Speaking of the economy if the war in Vietnam should end, Daniel P. Moynihan, assistant to the President for urban affairs, said earlier in the week that the idea a cessation of hostilities would free large sums for new social programs is an illusion. He predicted that budgetary savings would be consumed through the mid-1970s by current and proposed domestic and military programs and population growth.

PAUL McCRACKEN, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, agreed to an extent, but tempered his prediction by saying there would be some "elbow room" in the federal budget.

RUSSIA IS BUILDING nuclear-powered submarines at the rate of one per month and may soon surpass the United States in A-vessels, Vice Adm. Hyman G. Rickover told a House appropriations subcommittee in testimony released last week. Rickover, pleading for restoration of funds to the Atomic Energy Commission's spending proposals for nuclear-sub research and development, said Russia now has 375 submarines to 143 for the United States and that of the total, the Soviets have 65 atomic submarines to 82 for the U.S.

The West

The "happiest birthday" he'd ever had was the way Lyndon B. Johnson described his 61st. The former president was feted by President Nixon and his family at the White House West Wednesday in a day-long affair that also honored Mrs. Johnson. After a birthday luncheon in San Clemente, the Nixon and Johnson families flew north to the Redwood National Park where the President dedicated a 300-acre stand of great trees as Lady Bird Johnson Redwood Grove. Nixon praised Johnson as a president of "distinction and great courage" and Lady Bird as the "first lady of beautification" and said no president's wife had ever done more for conservation. Johnson said he was "proud to stand behind you (Nixon) in your quest for peace and prosperity at home."

LOS ANGELES COUNTY'S TAX RATE went up again Tuesday. The Board of Supervisors fixed the rate at $2.91 per $100 assessed valuation, 22½ cents higher than during the 1968-69 fiscal year. In adopting the new tax schedule, supervisors also approved a $1.774 billion operating budget.

A SMOGLESS LOS ANGELES BASIN by 1980 was the optimistic prediction last week by Dr. Lee A. Dubridge, President Nixon's science adviser. The former president of Caltech at Pasadena predicated his optimistic prediction on continued improvement of automobile engines and control of industrial emissions.

RATIFICATION OF A NEW CONTRACT by operating engineers Wednesday ended a 40-day strike that had paralyzed the construction industry in Southern California. The five-year pact gives 23,000 heavy equipment operators a $4.26-hourly increase during the life of the agreement. The strike had idled 300,000 construction workers in 11 Southern California counties.

AN UNDERGROUND NUCLEAR TEST at Yucca Flat, Nev., leaked a small amount of radiation into the atmosphere last week. Radioactivity was confined to the test site, the Atomic Energy Commission reported.

The War

The question of U.S. troop withdrawals from Southeast Asia was a focus of attention this week in peaceful Paris as well as in embattled Saigon and worried Bangkok.

Chief U.S. peace negotiator Henry Cabot Lodge indicated to Communist spokesmen in the French capital that further cutbacks in American strength in Vietnam will await a reduction in Red military activity.

Earlier in the week, State Department officials had denied rumors that troop withdrawals had been suspended because they might endanger South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu's Saigon regime.

In Washington, the State Department hinted that North Vietnam was in effect withdrawing troops from South Vietnam by reducing its infiltration of the southern provinces. The Defense Department conceded that infiltration this year is less than last year, but questioned the significance of the reduction.

BATTLE CASUALTIES announced Thursday for the week ended Aug. 23 were down with 190 Americans killed in action and 1,367 wounded.

THE UNITED STATES and Thailand announced that negotiations on the possible withdrawal of some U.S. troops from that country would begin Monday.

MARGARET SCHAFER COLLECTS BASEBALLS

LAKEWOOD HOUSEWIFE

Cubs' No. 1 'Lady Fan' Recalls Her '30s Teams

BY HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

Margaret Schafer cannot be described as a rabid baseball fan. The Lakewood housewife has lived in the area since 1955 and saw her first Dodger game last July. But she can remember when baseball was one of the most important things in her life.

In her native Chicago, Margaret was known as a No. 1 fan of the Cubs. Working as a waitress on the South Side, a hotbed of White Sox fans, Margaret lived dangerously as she tuned in the Cubs' games on the restaurant radio.

"It would really cause a commotion among the White Sox fans who were in the place," she said, "but the radio was behind the counter, and I operated it."

MARGARET, lived on the North Side (Cub country) and she followed her team fervently between 1932 and 1940.

"I was off work Tuesdays and Thursdays and during the season, when the Cubs were in town, I attended all their games on those days," she said.

Her cherished possession is a box of baseballs she keeps stored in a place of honor. The balls bear the signatures of almost all the Cubs players in the years 1932-40.

"Every year at the beginning of the season, I would go to a game early, while the team was taking batting practice," she recalled. "I'd fight with the other fans to get a foul ball and when I'd get one, I'd stand by the tunnel leading from the field to the Cubs' dressing room with the ball and a pen. As the players came off the field they'd autograph the baseball."

THE CUBS of the 30s got used to seeing the little lady with the baseball and pen at the start of each season and it became a ritual to sign the ball for her. Even the signature of the then commissioner of baseball, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, adorns six of the baseballs in her collection.

"The commissioner would come by and say, 'My, my, another baseball to sign, little lady?' ", she said, pointing to the signature of the commissioner on the balls which are now shellacked to protect the writing.

Margaret still follows the Cubs from a distance and thinks that their manager, Leo Durocher, is going to have a winner this year. "He hasn't traded off all his good players" she comments.

DISPLAYING her baseball collection to visitors, Margaret makes no comparisons between the current Cubs and the ones in the 30s, but she likes to recall the oldtimers' exploits as she points out the names of Gabby Hartnett, Billy Herman, Guy Busch, Charlie Grimm, Dizzy Dean, Larry French and many more.

As to going to her first Dodger game this year, Margaret explained that her husband has been ill since moving to California and it has cut down on her baseball activity.

"Some friends invited me to a Dodger game this season," she said. "It was great to see a big league game again. I don't recall who the Dodgers were playing that night, but I do know that it wasn't the Cubs. If it had been, I'd been to the game early, while the teams were taking batting practice, and got me another foul ball and a whole batch of new autographs."

Queen Mary's Voyages Relived in New Book

The 31-year voyage of the "Queen of Queens" — from her confetti-and-champagne beginning to her tears-and-tumult end at Long Beach — has been documented in a soon-to-be released book by former Independent, Press-Telegram reporter William Duncan.

The 287-page book, "R.M.S. Queen Mary, Queen of the Queens," was the product of 18 months research by the prize-winning writer, who was also a passenger on the ship's final voyage from Southampton, England, to her permanent home in Long Beach.

The 42-year-old author, who admits to being a "lousy sailor" who never did any stories about the Queen Mary before her purchase by the City of Long Beach, made up for it when assigned by his newspapers to cover the Queen's final voyage.

"I started researching before the Queen ever left on the final voyage and finished the basic history in England," Duncan recalls.

Then he went aboard, and from that time, Oct. 31, 1967, until the ship's gala welcome at Long Beach, Dec. 9, 1967, he filed two stories a day and ran ashore at each port to mail back pictures he had taken. With him aboard the ship was his wife, Ada, who was editor of the shipboard newspaper, "Ocean Bulletin" and who now publishes "Mary Memos" a monthly newsletter for former Queen passengers.

The book spans the years of the Queen's sea life, during which she carried more than three million luxury passengers, 800,000 American servicemen and thousands of war brides and their offspring. The miles she has sailed on the oceans of earth could have taken her 12 times to the moon and back.

In his 18 months of research, the former reporter personally interviewed thousands of persons, from crewmen to the GIs who rode her to war; from luxury passengers to stowaways, and from the Scottish shipbuilders to the longshoremen who handled her lines.

He documents her birth in a timber cradle at Clydebank, Scotland, through her plush luxury years, her bleak war years, her return to a jet-set post-war world, and her retirement to become a floating hotel-convention city on the Southern California coast.

Duncan, born in Georgia and father of five, resigned as a special assignment writer at the I, P-T to complete the book. He claims the most difficult part was researching the war years when the 81,237-ton vessel served as a troop carrier.

"There was almost nothing in public print on the Queen during those years, and most of the material had to be obtained from crewmen or GIs who were trooped across the Atlantic," Duncan says.

Although he received more than 100 replies from a newspaper advertisement asking for information about the Queen's war duties, "chance" played a big part in the research, he admits.

"I was having some work done on the sewer line at the house and was sidewalk superintendenting when the guy digging the ditch asked what I did for a living. I mentioned I was writing a book about the Queen Mary, and it turned out he had gone overseas on her. He gave me a great deal of insight into her troop-carrying days."

On another occasion, standing in a supermarket checkout line, he overheard a conversation in which one of the women had a British accent. By this time the one-time newspaper sleuth was following every lead.

"I asked her if she knew anything about the Queen Mary — she did. Her mother had sailed aboard her and knew a lot about the Queen's early days."

Duncan, who wrote the book at his home at 127 W. Madison Ave., Placentia, claims, however, much of the basic research also came from microfilms at the New York and London Times, and from the historic archives at the Cunard Line, former owners of the Queen.

"I cut out 20,000 words," Duncan says frankly, "because I felt I'd overwritten it. Now I wish I hadn't."

Joffrey Ballet Presents Artful Work of Beauty

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

The City Center Joffrey Ballet's second repertorial offering, given Thursday and Friday in the Ahmanson Theatre at The Music Center, and scheduled to be repeated three times next weekend, consists of "Olympics," a revival of the original production of "The Three-Cornered Hat," and that erotic, multimedia happening, the sensation of the 1967-68 New York season, "Astarte."

"Astarte" is everything you have heard, and read, about it. It is a complete theatrical experience; a bringing together of film, dance, rock music, and lighting to describe a sexual encounter with undisguised candor; a gimmicky assault on the senses.

MORE important, it is a work of beauty and poignance, as artful as it is shocking, as touching as it is stunning. To analyze or synopsize it is inadequate, because its total is so much greater than the sum of each of its separate parts.

Trinette Singleton remains the moon-goddess of the title, the role she created, possessing, and being possessed by, her victim-lover, with a detachment bordering on the perverse. No clinging vine, this succubus; even at the work's two central climaxes (Joffrey's pun, not mine), her self-sufficiency wavers not. In the end — again, the choreographer's pun, and one at which even the most permissive eye may raise a brow — she has taken more, emotionally, than she has give.

Dermot Burke is the new male half of the cast, dances it as a fresh, rather than a jaded, experience, maintains dramatic tensions and virile strengths through every one of its 30 minutes.

The five-member Crome Syrcus fills the Ahmanson with more decibels than we thought it could hold; never mind — they know what they are about. Joffrey's choreography, Hugh Sherer's costuming, Thomas Skelton's light design and set, Gardner Compton's film — these cannot be separated; they are all of a piece. And that pun is all mine.

After Antonio's "Three-Cornered Hat," seen in the Pavilion just three years ago, the novelty of the Massine-Picasso original, which the Joffrey company has revived for the 50th anniversary of its premiere (July 22, 1919), is no more than just that — an historical novelty.

FRIDAY'S performance had the bonus of Alaine Haubert's stylized doll of a Miller's Wife. Edward Verso was the Miller, Basil Thompson the Corregidor. It was all very pleasant and un-Spanish. The local pit orchestra, conducted bloodlessly by Walter Hagen, played competently, but sounded punier than necessary.

The evening opened with "Olympics," which was reviewed here two days ago. In his third consecutive night at the torch-bearer, Scott Barnard looked just a bit pooped; the all-male corps did too. Still, we felt no regret in their performance. It was energetic and ebullient; even those folks who paid $8.80 a seat were getting their money's worth. And I finally realized whose music Toshiro Mayuzumi's eclectic score resembles: Lalo Schifrin's. Bad Lalo Schifrin.

Transport Blows 4 Tires, Lands OK

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — A Seaboard World Airlines jet cargo airliner made a safe emergency landing at Frankfurt's Rhein-Main Airport Saturday after four of its eight tires burst on takeoff from Ireland's Shannon Airport.

The plane piloted by Capt. Charles Clark, had left Frankfurt with 40 tons of cargo, stopped at Shannon to refuel and taken off for New York when the tires burst.

Teamsters Meet on Containerization

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A Teamsters union official said Saturday he had asked for a meeting of all local secretaries on the West Coast to discuss a proposed pact giving longshoremen jurisdiction over a major share of containerized ship cargo.

The Teamsters previously had threatened to "tie up the whole coast" if necessary to protect their rights to pack and unpack cargo containers.

The International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union and the Pacific Maritime Association reached agreement on the pact Wednesday. It must be approved by ILWU members.

It provides that after June 30, 1971, Longshoremen do the work of loading loose cargo into containers and unloading it at container freight stations on the docks.

Containerization techniques have grown rapidly in recent years as a means of cutting shipping costs. Most of the work is now done by Teamsters at locations away from the waterfront.

Tim Richardson, San Francisco Teamster Local 85 secretary, said Einar Mohn, director of the Western Conference of Teamsters, was being asked to call a meeting of coast local secretaries "to take action to prevent the transportation of any containers that are loaded in violation of our jurisdiction."

Richardson said the container problem was discussed by the coast secretaries Aug. 13 and "we all agreed to take whatever action was necessary to protect our jurisdiction, even if it was necessary to tie up the whole coast."

Joffrey Ballet Presents Artful Work of Beauty

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

The City Center Joffrey Ballet's second repertorial offering, given Thursday and Friday in the Ahmanson Theatre at The Music Center, and scheduled to be repeated three times next weekend, consists of "Olympics," a revival of the original production of "The Three-Cornered Hat," and that erotic, multimedia happening, the sensation of the 1967-68 New York season, "Astarte."

"Astarte" is everything you have heard, and read, about it. It is a complete theatrical experience; a bringing together of film, dance, rock music, and lighting to describe a sexual encounter with undisguised candor; a gimmicky assault on the senses.

MORE important, it is a work of beauty and poignance, as artful as it is shocking, as touching as it is stunning. To analyze or synopsize it is inadequate, because its total is so much greater than the sum of each of its separate parts.

Trinette Singleton remains the moon-goddess of the title, the role she created, possessing, and being possessed by, her victim-lover, with a detachment bordering on the perverse. No clinging vine, this succubus; even at the work's two central climaxes (Joffrey's pun, not mine), her self-sufficiency wavers not. In the end — again, the choreographer's pun, and one at which even the most permissive eye may raise a brow — she has taken more, emotionally, than she has give.

Dermot Burke is the new male half of the cast, dances it as a fresh, rather than a jaded, experience, maintains dramatic tensions and virile strengths through every one of its 30 minutes.

The five-member Crome Syrcus fills the Ahmanson with more decibels than we thought it could hold; never mind — they know what they are about. Joffrey's choreography, Hugh Sherrer's costuming, Thomas Skelton's light design and set, Gardner Compton's film — these cannot be separated; they are all of a piece. And that pun is all mine.

After Antonio's "Three-Cornered Hat," seen in the Pavilion just three years ago, the novelty of the Massine-Picasso original, which the Joffrey company has revived for the 50th anniversary of its premiere (July 22, 1919), is no more than just that — an historical novelty.

FRIDAY'S performance had the bonus of Alaine Haubert's stylized doll of a Miller's Wife. Edward Verso was the Miller, Basil Thompson the Corregidor. It was all very pleasant and un-Spanish. The local pit orchestra, conducted bloodlessly by Walter Hagen, played competently, but sounded punier than necessary.

The evening opened with "Olympics," which was reviewed here two days ago. In his third consecutive night at the torch-bearer, Scott Barnard looked just a bit pooped; the all-male corps did too. Still, we felt no regret in their performance. It was energetic and chullient; even those folks who paid $8.80 a seat were getting their money's worth. And I finally realized whose music Toshiro Mayuzumi's eclectic score resembles: Lalo Schifrin's. Bad Lalo Schifrin.

'Dr. Hank' Expects Cool, Calm Year at Poly High

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

Crisply, assuredly, principal Genero B. Garcia declares "We don't anticipate any trouble when Poly High School reopens Sept. 15.

"Students will be glad to get back," continues "Hank" Garcia, "glad to be back at Poly . . ."

His confidence is contagious.

Much of Dr. Garcia's positively optimistic attitude stems from the creative efforts in a summer just ending of many concerned Polyites. For further change, undramatic and subtle perhaps, is coming next fall to a campus that in its recent past has known much change.

A prime mover in all this is a permanent Poly Interracial Committee that grew from a temporary parents' group nervously self-convened while racial tensions crackled electrically across the school late in May. It met weekly throughout the summer, since Aug. 1 under chairmanship of Negro schoolman William Barnes, now a Long Beach City College assistant dean.

Pledged to on-going efforts through the new year in seeking lasting solutions to problems of national scope afflicting Poly in microcosm, PIC last week brought its first recommendations to the Board of Education—where they immediately were accepted in principle.

Approval of the proposals — first of many anticipated this year — is expected when the Board meets Monday. Implementing all recommendations would cost an additional $31,616, budget officers figure.

Ways and means to improve human relationships were given priority in this community-conceived proposal to help "insure proper physical and emotional security of the campus . . ."

Urged were:

—A human relations program for all Poly staffers to further develop and strengthen attitudes and skills necessary in dealing with complex social-racial questions.

While reinforcing a "team concept among the staff," such a project also would "foster confidence in the entire community and insure that additional positive steps are being taken to improve the learning atmosphere."

—Use of "teachable moments" in all social studies classes to deal with "subjects centering around human relations problems."

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

SUNDAY, AUGUST 31, 1969 SECTION B, PAGE B-1

As Garcia explains, classroom time would be found to air problems bothering students. Lack of such opportunities often have been cited by youngsters as a source of unrest among their peers.

To make these meaningful within an academic framework, PIC further asked that social science teachers be immediately brought together "to develop curriculum, methodology and skills in handling such discussions."

Social studies were chosen rather than some other field, Garcia says, since every student must fill certain course requirements.

And, he notes, beginning this fall at Poly only, two of the three social studies categories—college preparatory and basic — will be welded. Only the "E," of honors course, will remain separate.

—Creation of an in-school rumor control center effective Sept. 8 to "continue as long as deemed appropriate."

A parent-teacher-counsellor-student committee would man the center Monday nights in a faculty lounge. "Any parent who seeks information concerning any incident or problem . . . on the Poly campus" can go there "to find out the truth."

A large part of the human relations problem, "one of the dilemmas we find ourselves in," says a committee report, "is misunderstanding" by some students "regarding decisions or actions of teachers or administrators.

Rumor Control Center, Truancy Crackdown Set

To combat this "information gap" is the prime function of the weekly rumor control center.

The interracial committee also "fully endorses the district discipline code and urges its strict application at Poly High."

Garcia amplifies: "The code will be enforced equitably to the best of our ability."

One area of special concern to Garcia: "We must be more hardnosed about truancy or habitually tardy students."

He candidly admits "There will be claims that a double standards (of justice for Negro and Caucasian students) exists, but let me assure you, we'll be fair and equitable . . . in total enforcement of all school rules."

Chronic troublemakers—"fight starters" or "severely racially alienated students" in Garcia's terms—may be transferred to other Long Beach high schools.

Backstopping all thinking about the future is a just-released report by six school psychologists or counsellors who met in June with a 60-student racial cross-section to both counsel and delve into campus problems.

Plans Aired All Summer by Interracial Committee

A report signed by Katie Blavat, Peter Feddema, Arthur Kraft, Jerry Mitchell, Bennie Reams and Miriam Walsh, all involved in pupil personnel activities, notes there are three directions, "all of which must be followed," to improve racial harmony. These are:

Problem solving. "Legitimate grievances of minority groups should be presented in a rational manner, should be given careful consideration and should be granted when appropriate."

Communications and clarification. "There is a paper entitled, 'Status of Negro Students at Poly — at a Glance' indicating how much has been done, but does everyone know about it? The principal had condemned a hate sheet a few days before the breakout of fighting — but did everyone know that?

"Communications often lag between black and white, faculty and student, parent and child," they aver. "Clarification would do much to prevent frustration and heal anger."

Making friends ". . . What is needed is for black and white to get to know each other. . . finding out that each has similar feelings and underlying emotions."

Not anticipated is that the job will be easy, particularly since, "on an emotional level, many people use race hatred as an outlet for pentup anger (having) little or nothing to do with racial friction."

Detailed to teachers and administrators is a lengthy list of suggestions specifically aimed at the three areas. They urge that a long-range problem-solving plan now be drafted.

'IS IT SAFE TO DRINK?'

Row Rages Over Water in North L.B.

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

Contaminated water in North Long Beach?

Yes, say two residents of West Market Street.

No, say city health department officials.

Dr. I. D. Litwack, head of the department, declared Saturday:

"Standard tests for bacteria prove the water supply to the people there is potable. Our testing procedures are rigidly proscribed by the U.S. Public Health Service and we are checked by state health department inspectors."

However, F. L. Peters, 56 W. Market, and Tom Deatons, 68 W. Market, are yet to be convinced.

What do the Peters and the Deatons mean by contamination?.

"Brownish, scummy water from the bath tub tap," said Deaton.

"OILY, scummy water from faucets — makes a cup of tea undrinkable," said Mrs. Peters.

Both families say on occasion the tap water contains particles of what looks like tobacco. Other days it appears clear and clean.

Both families ordered bottled water within a few days after they moved into the neighborhood a month ago.

They are among 110 families whose water comes from Orchard Park Water Co. wells. This is one of five private systems in the city. The five companies serve an estimated two per cent of the residents. The rest use water from 85 city artesian wells and from the Metropolitan Water District.

Both private and city water systems are tested chemically and biologically each month by the City Health Department.

When Mrs. Peters' requests for health department tests went unanswered, she filled a gallon jug from the tap (first rinsing it with boiling water) and took it to a local laboratory Aug. 11 for tests.

RESULTS: "An excessive number of coliform bacteria; not safe to drink," said Twining Laboratories.

City Health Department laboratory tests Aug. 6 and Aug. 20 at the Peters' and four nearby homes were negative for the coliform bacteria.

What does the department mean by standard tests? "Testing follows U.S. Public Health Service rules," explained Dr. Litwack. "It includes 211 samples from throughout the city collected each month at the source — where the water enters the building."

Before running tap water into sterilized, capped, labled bottles, the faucet is cleaned with a butane burner, says Robert Hale, assistant director of environmental health. Water is run for a full minute before the bottle is uncapped and filled. In the bottle is a small quantity of sodium thiosulfate to arrest the disinfecting action of chlorine.

Within an hour the sample is decanted into five sterile tubes, each containing tryptose broth growing medium for coli bacteria. Tubes are incubated 24 hours at 92.5 degrees then checked for fermentation bubbles. They are checked again in 24 hours.

IF ANY bubbles appear, further tests are made. If positive identification of escherichia coli is made, environmental health is notified and additional specimins are obtained and tested. If these are positive, the location is traced from sample. If the contamination were traced to a water line, that line would be shut off and not used until two separate tests of two samples proved negative, says Hale.

So far, this has not happened in the more than three decades Dr. Litwack has been with the City Health Department.

What does happen is an initial positive test about every other month in one to four of the 1,055 tubes tested. In every case, a follow-up test of the same water from the same location has been negative, says Harold Armburst, director of the health department laboratory.

Why just the one test for escherichia coli?

"Of the four coli found in the intestinal tract E. Coli is the most resistant to chlorine," exmplained Armbrust. "The three other strains are also found in soil and air. E. Coli, two varieties, is found only in the intestinal tracts of warm-blooded creatures. It is a reliable indicator of contamination — the best we know," he said.

"The organism is not pathogenic; it does not cause illness," he added.

ALTHOUGH the City Health Department follows U.S. Public Health Service rules, city safeguards exceed those of the federal agency. Allowable under U.S. rules is a positive re-

DON'T brush off that distressful national discussion of waste disposal as something without local application. It's a big problem here with potentials so expensive as to make us cringe.

Long Beach has three years to go on a contract for dumping its rubbish and trash in the Wilmington area. Then it will have to look for disposal grounds which may be 18 or 20 miles away, and that could boost the costs per ton by 50 per cent, if we're lucky, and probably considerably above that.

That bi-monthly trash charge you pay would have to change.

STOP trash collection here and we'd soon be swimming in a sea of the stuff. The city produces 800 tons a day, or about 232,000 tons a year. As population grows, the rubbish output grows.

R. E. Kennedy, the man in charge of rubbish disposal for the city, admits he sometimes feels as if he's overwhelmed with trash. When rubbish pickup is halted for a day, such as a holiday, it takes about 10 days to get caught up.

He refuses to contemplate what it would be like if there was a protracted period without garbage and rubbish pickup.

IT MIGHT be interesting for some mathematicians among my readers to do a little figuring on this: How long would it take to cover the city's area with a rubbish a foot deep?

Rubbish production amounts to 2000 cubic yards a day.

All you need do is change that into cubic feet and spread it out over 48 square miles. I started to monkey with it and then got the bright idea of letting someone else work it out. I'm sure someone will respond.

Rubbish Collection Boss Kennedy wouldn't even speculate with me on it. "I don't like the picture you paint," he said. "It neither looks good nor smells good."

WAITING for a couple of friends for lunch at El Matador, Mexican restaurant in Belmont Shore, Tony Cillo decided to make the friendly gesture and pick up the tab.

So he asked the little gal waitress, "Do you take Carte Blanche?" carefully pronouncing it Kart Blanque.

"Carta Blanca?" she said. Tony nodded and she responded with a "yes, yes, yes."

Next thing Tony knew the gal had placed a bottle of brown beer in front of him.

He knows now there's an imported Mexican beer, brand name Carta Blanca. He knows how it tastes, too. He gave up on the Carte Blanche business, drank the beer.

Big J Due to Unload Ammo, Quit the Sea

Tuesday the battleship New Jersey sails from Pier E for 2½ days anchorage off Seal Beach Naval Weapons Station while her magazines, loaded with 16 and 5-inch projectiles, are unloaded.

She will sail Saturday morning for Bremerton, Wash., and deactivation.

Three months will be required to get the ship ready for decommissioning, including application of preservation techniques on all installed equipment, blocking all underwater openings and installation of eight dehumidifying machines.

These machines will keep the humidity at a constant 35 per cent.

After deactivation an inspection team will check the ship, every three months, for leakages, moisture collection and erosion.

Between now and Oct. 1 about a third of the ship's crew will be transferred or those with minimal time remaining will get early discharges.

The balance of the 1,600-man crew will be phased off the ship as the deactivation work continues — for the third time in Big J's proud history.

CSLB Aerospace Program Helps Teachers Motivate Their Students

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Hundreds of Southland schoolchildren will be doing better in reading, writing and arithmetic this year because of the aerospace education program at California State College at Long Beach.

What's the connection between kindergarteners and a rigorous college course in aerospace?

"Schoolchildren are fascinated with space because of the moon shot," says Mrs. Roberta Strachan, a Lynwood school administrator teaching in the aerospace program.

JAY ACKERMAN

"When we talk about the moonshot in our schoolrooms, the children are motivated to read so they can learn more about it."

The same's true for other disciplines, such as writing, she says.

A major function of the CSLB summer aerospace program is to equip kindergarten through college teachers with the knowledge they'll need to talk about aerospace in the classroom.

"We're in an aerospace age," says Dr. C. Thomas Dean, director of the program of applied arts and sciences. "Teachers want to be able to answer aerospace questions their students pose."

Dean proudly showed term projects lining the walls in lecture hall 151. Projects included a classroom display showing the uses of helicopters, a model wind tunnel to test stability of rockets and many models of the Apollo 11 spacecraft, the moon capsule and space suits.

"Many of these projects will be used in school classrooms this fall," Dean said.

The 18-year-old program, the largest of its kind among 100 in the U.S., has received several commendations from government agencies.

They include a leadership award in aerospace education from the Civil Air Patrol, a certificate from the Federal Aeronautics Administration and commendation as the best aerospace program in California from Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The program, which winds up this week, has 11 other faculty members besides Dean. They include administrators from Southland elementary and secondary schools and officers in the Air Force Reserve.

C. THOMAS DEAN

Guest lecturers in the course range from Charles F. Willard, who flew some of America's first airplanes in the second decade of the century, to representatives from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Students are varied, too.

"About two-thirds are teachers themselves," explains Prof. Jay Ackerman, a visiting faculty member from LBCC who's worked with Dean on the program for 14 years. "But many are from the aerospace industry.

"We had one Continental Airlines pilot who had just got back from the Da Nang airlifts in Vietnam."

One part of the program, he explains, is oriented toward giving students the skills they'll need to pass tests for their pilot's licenses.

"Scores of our students go on to get their private pilot's licenses," Ackerman says.

The aerospace program this summer took students from the lecture hall to the college industrial arts shops — where they worked on their term projects — to Edwards AFB, where they viewed astronaut training facilities.

'Dr. Hank' Expects Cool, Calm Year at Poly High

By RALPH HINMAN JR.
Education Editor

Crisply, assuredly, principal Genero B. Garcia declares "We don't anticipate any trouble when Poly High School reopens Sept. 15.

"Students will be glad to get back," continues "Hank" Garcia, "glad to be back at Poly . . ."

His confidence is contagious.

Much of Dr. Garcia's positively optimistic attitude stems from the creative efforts in a summer just ending of many concerned Polyites. For further change, undramatic and subtle perhaps, is coming next fall to a campus that in its recent past has known much change.

A prime mover in all this is a permanent Poly Interracial Committee that grew from a temporary parents' group nervously self-convened while racial tensions crackled electrically across the school late in May. It met weekly throughout the summer, since Aug. 1 under chairmanship of Negro schoolman William Barnes, now a Long Beach City College assistant dean.

Pledged to on-going efforts through the new year in seeking lasting solutions to problems of national scope afflicting Poly in microcosm, PIC last week brought its first recommendations to the Board of Education—where they immediately were accepted in principle.

Approval of the proposals — first of many anticipated this year — is expected when the Board meets Monday. Implementing all recommendations would cost an additional $31,616, budget officers figure.

Ways and means to improve human relationships were given priority in this community-conceived proposal to help "insure proper physical and emotional security of the campus . . ."

Urged were:

—A human relations program for all Poly staffers to further develop and strengthen attitudes and skills necessary in dealing with complex social-racial questions.

While reinforcing a "team concept among the staff," such a project also would "foster confidence in the entire community and insure that additional positive steps are being taken to improve the learning atmosphere."

—Use of "teachable moments" in all social studies classes to deal with "subjects centering around human relations problems."

As Garcia explains, classroom time would be found to air problems bothering students. Lack of such opportunities often have been cited by youngsters as a source of unrest among their peers.

To make these meaningful within an academic framework, PIC further asked that social science teachers be immediately brought together "to develop curriculum, methodology and skills in handling such discussions."

Social studies were chosen rather than some other field, Garcia says, since every student must fill certain course requirements.

And, he notes, beginning this fall at Poly only, two of the three social studies categories—college preparatory and basic — will be welded. Only the "E," of honors course, will remain separate.

—Creation of an in-school rumor control center effective Sept. 8 to "continue as long as deemed appropriate."

A parent-teacher-counsellor-student committee would man the center Monday nights in a faculty lounge. "Any parent who seeks information concerning any incident or problem . . . on the Poly campus" can go there "to find out the truth."

A large part of the human relations problem, "one of the dilemmas we find ourselves in," says a committee report, "is misunderstanding" by some students "regarding decisions or actions of teachers or administrators.

Rumor Control Center, Truancy Crackdown Set

To combat this "information gap" is the prime function of the weekly rumor control center.

The interracial committee also "fully endorses the district discipline code and urges its strict application at Poly High."

Garcia amplifies: "The code will be enforced equitably to the best of our ability."

One area of special concern to Garcia: "We must be more hardnosed about truancy or habitually tardy students."

He candidly admits "There will be claims that a double standards (of justice for Negro and Caucasian students) exists, but let me assure you, we'll be fair and equitable . . . in total enforcement of all school rules."

Chronic troublemakers—"fight starters" or "severely racially alienated students" in Garcia's terms—may be transferred to other Long Beach high schools.

Backstopping all thinking about the future is a just-released report by six school psychologists or counsellors who met in June with a 60-student racial cross-section to both counsel and delve into campus problems.

Plans Aired All Summer by Interracial Committee

A report signed by Katie Blavat, Peter Feddema, Arthur Kraft, Jerry Mitchell, Bennie Reams and Miriam Walsh, all involved in pupil personnel activities, notes there are three directions, "all of which must be followed," to improve racial harmony. These are:

Problem solving. "Legitimate grievances of minority groups should be presented in a rational manner, should be given careful consideration and should be granted when appropriate."

Communications and clarification. "There is a paper entitled, 'Status of Negro Students at Poly — at a Glance' indicating how much has been done, but does everyone know about it? The principal had condemned a hate sheet a few days before the breakout of fighting — but did everyone know that?

"Communications often lag between black and white, faculty and student, parent and child," they aver. "Clarification would do much to prevent frustration and heal anger."

Making friends ". . . What is needed is for black and white to get to know each other. . . finding out that each has similar feelings and underlying emotions."

Not anticipated is that the job will be easy, particularly since, "on an emotional level, many people use race hatred as an outlet for pentup anger (having) little or nothing to do with racial friction."

Detailed to teachers and administrators is a lengthy list of suggestions specifically aimed at the three areas. They urge that a long-range problem-solving plan now be drafted.

Row Rages Over Water in North L.B.

Round trip to prison is not public's ticket

WHAT ARE prisons for?

As the crime rate continues to escalate there is a growing demand for longer prison sentences.

But judges turn more and more to probation. Why?

In the first place, there is the matter of expense. In Texas, not noted for coddling convicts, it costs the state $8.50 a day to keep a man in prison; probation costs 85 cents a day.

Also, judges are becoming more unwilling to send criminals to "graduate school." Many convicts become hardened in crime and skilled in its techniques while in confinement. It is estimated that 80 per cent leave prison on a "round-trip ticket." Half of those from San Quentin return within five years.

PRISONS EXIST for three reasons: the rehabilitation, punishment — "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth" — and the protection of society from dangerous men. Society has long felt that rehabilitation is more important than punishment. The word "penitentiary" means a place where a man can become penitent. Prisons are correctional institutions.

Sadly, they often fail to correct. But many men — including some seemingly incorrigible types — do come out of prison to live honorable and useful lives.

There are some men, according to Joseph E. Ragen, former Illinois warden, who are so dangerous to society that they should never be let out of prison. Ragen strongly favors indeterminate sentences with release depending on change in the individual's attitude. Good behavior alone, he says, should not be the condition for release. Some hardened criminals are model prisoners because they hope to get out as quickly as possible.

Ragen believes that each individual must be considered as an individual. Sometimes all he needs is a little recognition and respect, values he never encountered on the outside.

DR. KARL MENNINGER, the noted psychiatrist, concurs in his controversial book, "The Crime of Punishment":

"The great majority of offenders, even 'criminals' should never become prisoners if we want to 'cure' them. What we want to accomplish is the reintegration of the temporarily suspended individual back into the main stream of social life, preferably a life at a higher level than before, just as soon as possible."

Criminals, they say, are people, not just a faceless mass of bad humans. Each man should be dealt with and, when possible, helped in terms of his own personality.

This is the ideal. Often it cannot be done because of overcrowding, lack of money, bad personnel.

There is no simple answer to the tragedy of crime. It does seem, however, that preventive measures — work with young people before they become serious offenders — is part of the solution.

FLORA LEWIS

SAN FRANCISCO — "Considering school is out," said the lady with the bullhorn, "it's really very good."

She shouted to the milling crowd to "keep the line moving, clear the way so the picket line can keep moving." Then she turned back and lowered her voice again.

She was short, a little stubby, clean but a bit disheveled with the air of a housewife getting everything ready for an outing. The occasion was a demonstration in honor of President Nixon's meeting with Korea's President Park here last week. It was spur of the moment as such things go these days. The lady explained that she and her friends were busy preparing for a big demonstration on Nov. 15.

Her cause was entirely to oppose the Vietnam war. It didn't occur to her, and with the best of reason as things are going, that there would be anything less to demonstate about in November than there is now. She was a member of San Francisco's "Mobilization," which she explained was an overall local committee that brought all kinds of anti-war groups together when needed.

"We want to make it a peaceful demonstration," she said, "that's the point. Peace."

SHE CALLED out again to keep the line moving. And then she went on. We just want to show how many are against the war. There must be 4,000 here already, and the speeches aren't for another hour. I hope there won't be any trouble."

The demonstration was in Union Square, across the street from the St. Francis hotel. Shortly before I went down to see it, I overhead a black reporter from one of the San Francisco daily papers calling his office from the press room. "The Black Panthers and the gangs and everybody's going to be there," he said excitedly. When he hung up, I asked if he really expected trouble.

He tapped a helmet and a gas mask on the press table in front of him. "I've been in too many of these things to take a chance. It always starts easy and good-humored, and then, suddenly . . ."

A rather sinister looking young black with a garish but otherwise inoffensive poster was at the entrance to the square. It was evening, but he wore dark glasses. He ignored the hippies, the young married strolling in to have a look, the giggling girls, the middle aged woman in a floppy straw hat with signs reading "People Are Dying" and "Bombs, bombs, bombs" pinned to the front and back of her sweater. He just stood there.

Then, at intervals of a few minutes, other young blacks came by and took his hand, or smiled and called out "Brother." He took off his glasses and grinned. His face turned out to be a cherubic, with clear bright eyes.

BUT MOSTLY there were whites, neat, sloppy, mini-skirted, panted, some ambling as though through a congenial amusement park and the rest passing out handbills or selling papers. There must have been 20 different groups with rival handbills and papers, about everything from the ominous International Industrial Conference which David Rockefeller is going to attend next month (demonstration scheduled to denounce imperialists in front of Fairmont Hotel on Sept. 15) to the nefarious plots of black nationalists and communist revisionists.

A pale, skinny boy offered me a copy of Challenge, for 10 cents, and asked very politely if I lived in San Francisco and had heard of the Progressive Labor party. I don't live in San Francisco and I know that's the Maoist group, and I bought a paper because he had been calling out, "read all about why the SDS split."

"It's for the working class revolution," said the vendor. "Are you interested?" "No," said the Swede and walked on.

A tense, eager young man climbed on the bandstand and asked the crowd to shout slogans "so Nixon can hear." He suggested as first slogan, "Bring the Troops Home." A longhair with a guitar slung over his shoulder laughed and called, "Bring the Cheerleader Down."

As I say, there were all kinds of people there, proseletyzing each other. But the San Francisco reporter was right. After a while, there were a lot more police, and anti-war was the only slogan, and there was trouble. It could be much bigger by November.

Cities can thank Metrobank

HUBERT HUMPHREY

ASKED TO NAME the three biggest problems facing America's cities, one mayor recently answered: "Money, finances, and revenue."

I hear the same story from mayors all over the country — and not just those from big cities. These mayors say they have reached the practical limits of their taxing powers. Further increases in the property tax will only drive more businesses and homeowners out of the city.

Mayors are concerned that any federal aid from the Nixon administration will be too little, too late. President Nixon has slashed education, health, and anti-poverty funds. The administration has let it be known that no funds may be available this year for such vitally needed community projects as sewage treatment plants.

But new community facilities are needed — police stations, water filtration plants, schools, low-income housing. With the need so great and with building costs skyrocketing, mayors want to get moving on these new projects as soon as possible.

IN THE PAST, cities have been able to sell bonds to pay for needed public facilities. The bonds are like a mortgage on a house — the city can build the facilities now and pay for them over 20, 30, or 40 years.

But now rising interest rates have dried up much of the municipal bond market. The White House sat idly by this past summer while the big banks raised the prime interest rate to 8½ per cent.

In Philadelphia, Chicago, Phoenix, St. Paul, San Antonio, and many other cities, improvement plans have been frustrated by tight money and rising costs.

THE WHITE HOUSE may be silent while the private bankers work their will, but America cannot watch its cities continue to decay. Billions of dollars in improvement and development funds are needed. Cities are at a crisis point, ready to explode.

But there is an answer. It is a new way to help communities borrow money to build needed public facilities. I call it Metrobank — the National Metropolitan Development Bank System.

Metrobank would be an alternative source of low interest credit for cities. It would raise money in investment markets throughout the nation. More important to local government, it would relieve the pressure on bond markets so that cities can pay less for money whether they borrow from Metrobank or issue municipal bonds. And this means lower property taxes.

Metrobank would sell federally guaranteed bonds and debentures on the national investment market, and then lend the money to local government at a rate a third to a half less than the rates of the federally guaranteed bonds. Congress would make up the difference in interest rates with an annual appropriation, just as it has done for the Farmers Home Administration, the Rural Electrification Administration, the Small Business Administration and other government banking operations. Because the federally guaranteed bonds would be taxable, the net cost would be low.

Metrobank would be authorized to make long-term loans of up to 40, 50, or 60 years for the building of community facilities — low income housing, slum clearance, schools, health centers.

Equally important, Metrobank would be able to make "soft" loans for up to 20 years if an area has been classified as depressed or where an increase in investment is in the national interest.

Metropolitan areas which generate a high level of activity would be served by their own Metrobank subsidiary. The balance of the bank's activities would flow through regional divisions.

Almost as important as its lending function would be Metrobank's ability to serve as an information source for federal programs. There is almost no greater need in America today than the coordination of the vast number of federal programs with the thousands of units of local government. Metrobank staffs could develop an understanding of local and regional problems and help communities work together to solve their common problems.

METROBANK should be capitalized at a minimum of $6 billion — half to be borrowed from the United States Treasury over a 10-year period and the other half to be raised by the sale of stock in the commercial market. Each user would purchase shares of Metrobank stock based on population within its jurisdiction.

This capitalization would be the reserve. Then Metrobank would sell bonds to private investors, and the money raised would be available to communities at low interest rates, with the difference in interest rates subsidized by the federal government.

This not only would give local government a powerful new financial base, but also would allow Americans to invest in the rebuilding of their cities. I think many citizens are concerned enough about the future of our cities to invest in Metrobank.

Baser things win

EDITOR:

Mrs. Ralph Dills ends her good letter to you, on the subject of a new divorce bill, by saying: "Under this new law every marriage will be completely at the mercy of the weaker and baser partner".

I don't like to seem hopeless about this matter, but when is this not the case — not only in marriage, and the making of laws, but in all things: If a child had the measles would it help to have a well child come and play with him? No. The well child would most likely get the measles; but this contact would not give a cure to the ill one.

There are many examples of the truth that, in this world, the baser things rule. Let me give just one more example: If you had a clean glass of water and a dirty one, and your poured clean water into the dirty, would it come clean? Never! If you poured one drop of dirty into the clean would it become dirty? See — the baser things rule!

Good long-hairs

EDITOR:

I get sick and tired of hearing my contemporaries condemn young people for having long hair, going barefoot, dressing differently, being "dirty", etc.

It seems to me we should be examining our own system of values and looking at young people and different ethnic groups objectively and lovingly.

For example, the "Today" program cited how those who came to the rock and roll program in New York state (the police estimated there were 750,000) as being for the most part loving, sharing their substance with each other, taking care of each other and the adults there behaved in a kindly manner. The report credited the lack of violence to the attitude of the police — even though they knew there was some drug or marijuana, they knew most of the young people came to hear rock and roll and were as orderly as they could be under the circumstances.

Contrast this with the reactions in Berkeley People's Park incident where some 400 were taken to a sort of camp and treated brutally by a sheriffs group (I cannot remember just which one but it was reported in your paper) and when the showdown came they were all proven not guilty by the courts. They did not have order maybe, but obviously they were within the law. My generation just does not read about the good long-haired young people — and the police too seem to react against anyone that has long hair and does not dress in the conventional manner. (I should say many police.

However, we might well look to the evils of adults, their cheating on income taxes, the victimizing of people who buy drugs -- prices and profits way out of line; the brutalizing of our young men to fight in Vietnam.

Let us take a new look at sin — at the ethics of Jesus, who was really a revolutionary — we are not doing God a favor by dressing up and going to church every Sunday.

The 'Blue Curtain'

EDITOR:

"The Blue Curtain" was one of the most blatantly irresponsible editorials ever to appear in your newspaper. The fact that it was placed on the front page makes it even more reprehensible. The Los Angeles Police Department has every legal and moral duty (not to mention legal and moral right) to withhold any evidence from the press which they (the Police Department) feel would be prejudicial to a prospective jury or detrimental to further investigation. In fact, the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration of Justice stated that " . . .a fair jury trial can be had only if the evidence is presented in the courtroom, not in the press, and jurors do not come to their task prejudiced by publicity."

The public's "right to know" will be honored during the trial phase of any criminal proceedings, and by no means imposes any demands on the police department to release any information at this time. As for the silencing of rumor mills, it is obvious from past experience that more information will only serve as grist for such mills (usually operated by some 'newsroom lawyer' who thinks she knows more about criminal investigation than a police lieutenant).

Dog sled of civil rights slips on the icy tundra

WASHINGTON: It's school time again, and around here that means considerable fussing about school integration, particularly in the old South. Since the Supreme Court gave it a monumental shove in 1954, school integration has moved like a dog sled over tundra — fast considering the environment, but too slow for those hurrying to justice.

On subsequent days last week, an administration civil rights stalwart predicted the dog sled would soon go lickety-split, and a band of lawyers in the Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department in a mild show of disloyalty, met privately and moaned that the sled was being slowed down.

Leon Panetta, who heads the civil rights office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare — where all that school aid money is stored — said HEW, and the Justice Department would soon file more suits than in the past against school districts slow to integrate. Panetta believes in speedier integration and said Justice would be moving against 40 or 50 districts "in the near future."

THE NIXON administration's technique is to rely on court suits to get recalcitrant districts to comply, rather than lean on the Johnson administration's method of withholding funds. The Nixon administration's argument is that school officials in the South are allowed to save face by losing in the courts and that, by continuing with funds, poor children won't be deprived of federal benefits.

One Justice Department official believes that the period of "real" desegregation has arrived, and that by 1971 only a few difficult problems will remain. Of the 4,400 school districts completely segregated in 1954, when the Supreme Court issued its landmark decision, only 400 remain untouched. He feels 1968 was the "freedom of choice" year for those opposed to integration, and that 1969 is the "nitty gritty" year.

CURRENTLY, the whole state of Georgia is being sued on the question by Justice, even though nearly half of that state's school districts have achieved some desegregation. Mississippi is the slowest, naturally, but the majority of its districts have been hauled into court. Some 104 southern districts are now working with the Office of Education at HEW to draw up plans acceptable to federal courts.

NICK THIMMESCH

Desegregation situations are getting trickier, with demands for white students to be put in all-black schools, black teachers to teach in schools formerly considered all-white, and white teachers to be installed in schools once considered black. This kind of nitty-gritty can get abrasive. In Bogalusa, La. this week U.S. marshals, dispatched by federal court order, protected Negro teachers assigned to a school which formerly was for whites only. Integration is a vexing problem in the North too, and Justice has suits in half a dozen cities outside the South.

When it comes to integration, HEW, Secretary Robert Finch is like the turtle in the well who doesn't mind slipping back a foot for each two that he advances. That's why Finch let districts in South Carolina and Mississippi off the hook this year, much to the dismay of the civil righteous at Justice.

Round trip to prison is not public's ticket

WHAT ARE prisons for?

As the crime rate continues to escalate there is a growing demand for longer prison sentences.

But judges turn more and more to probation. Why?

In the first place, there is the matter of expense. In Texas, not noted for coddling convicts, it costs the state $8.50 a day to keep a man in prison; probation costs 85 cents a day.

Also, judges are becoming more unwilling to send criminals to "graduate school." Many convicts become hardened in crime and skilled in its techniques while in confinement. It is estimated that 80 per cent leave prison on a "round-trip ticket." Half of those from San Quentin return within five years.

PRISONS EXIST for three reasons: the rehabilitation, punishment — "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth" — and the protection of society from dangerous men. Society has long felt that rehabilitation is more important than punishment. The word "penitentiary" means a place where a man can become penitent. Prisons are correctional institutions.

Sadly, they often fail to correct. But many men — including some seemingly incorrigible types — do come out of prison to live honorable and useful lives.

There are some men, according to Joseph E. Ragen, former Illinois warden, who are so dangerous to society that they should never be let out of prison. Ragen strongly favors indeterminate sentences with release depending on change in the individual's attitude. Good behavior alone, he says, should not be the condition for release. Some hardened criminals are model prisoners because they hope to get out as quickly as possible.

Ragen believes that each individual must be considered as an individual. Sometimes all he needs is a little recognition and respect, values he never encountered on the outside.

DR. KARL MENNINGER, the noted psychiatrist, concurs in his controversial book, "The Crime of Punishment":

"The great majority of offenders, even 'criminals' should never become prisoners if we want to 'cure' them. What we want to accomplish is the reintegration of the temporarily suspended individual back into the main stream of social life, preferably a life at a higher level than before, just as soon as possible."

Criminals, they say, are people, not just a faceless mass of bad humans. Each man should be dealt with and, when possible, helped in terms of his own personality.

This is the ideal. Often it cannot be done because of overcrowding, lack of money, bad personnel.

There is no simple answer to the tragedy of crime. It does seem, however, that preventive measures — work with young people before they become serious offenders — is part of the solution.

Trouble is only creed they share

FLORA LEWIS

SAN FRANCISCO — "Considering school is out," said the lady with the bullhorn, "it's really very good."

She shouted to the milling crowd to "keep the line moving, clear the way so the picket line can keep moving." Then she turned back and lowered her voice again.

She was short, a little stubby, clean but a bit disheveled with the air of a housewife getting everything ready for an outing. The occasion was a demonstration in honor of President Nixon's meeting with Korea's President Park here last week. It was spur of the moment as such things go these days. The lady explained that she and her friends were busy preparing for a big demonstration on Nov. 15.

Her cause was entirely to oppose the Vietnam war. It didn't occur to her, and with the best of reason as things are going, that there would be anything less to demonstate about in November than there is now. She was a member of San Francisco's "Mobilization," which she explained was an overall local committee that brought all kinds of anti-war groups together when needed.

"We want to make it a peaceful demonstration," she said, "that's the point. Peace."

SHE CALLED out again to keep the line moving. And then she went on. We just want to show how many are against the war. There must be 4,000 here already, and the speeches aren't for another hour. I hope there won't be any trouble."

The demonstration was in Union Square, across the street from the St. Francis hotel. Shortly before I went down to see it, I overhead a black reporter from one of the San Francisco daily papers calling his office from the press room. "The Black Panthers and the gangs and everybody's going to be there," he said excitedly. When he hung up, I asked if he really expected trouble.

He tapped a helmet and a gas mask on the press table in front of him. "I've been in too many of these things to take a chance. It always starts easy and good-humored, and then, suddenly . . ."

A rather sinister looking young black with a garish but otherwise inoffensive poster was at the entrance to the square. It was evening, but he wore dark glasses. He ignored the hippies, the young married strolling in to have a look, the giggling girls, the middle aged woman in a floppy straw hat with signs reading "People Are Dying" and "Bombs, bombs, bombs" pinned to the front and back of her sweater. He just stood there.

Then, at intervals of a few minutes, other young blacks came by and took his hand, or smiled and called out "Brother." He took off his glasses and grinned. His face turned out to be a cherubic, with clear bright eyes.

BUT MOSTLY there were whites, neat, sloppy, mini-skirted, panted, some ambling as though through a congenial amusement park and the rest passing out handbills or selling papers. There must have been 20 different groups with rival handbills and papers, about everything from the ominous International Industrial Conference which David Rockefeller is going to attend next month (demonstration scheduled to denounce imperialists in front of Fairmont Hotel on Sept. 15) to the nefarious plots of black nationalists and communist revisionists.

A pale, skinny boy offered me a copy of Challenge, for 10 cents, and asked very politely if I lived in San Francisco and had heard of the Progressive Labor party. I don't live in San Francisco and I know that's the Maoist group, and I bought a paper because he had been calling out, "read all about why the SDS split."

"It's for the working class revolution," said the vendor. "Are you interested?" "No," said the Swede and walked on.

A tense, eager young man climbed on the bandstand and asked the crowd to shout slogans "so Nixon can hear." He suggested as first slogan, "Bring the Troops Home." A long-hair with a guitar slung over his shoulder laughed and called, "Bring the Cheerleader Down."

As I say, there were all kinds of people there, proseletyzing each other. But the San Francisco reporter was right. After a while, there were a lot more police, and anti-war was the only slogan, and there was trouble. It could be much bigger by November.

L. A. C. SAYS

75 years of progress for labor unions

By L. A. COLLINS, Sr.

AS LABOR DAY is celebrated Monday, it will be the 75th year of such honoring of the nation's organized labor groups. The holiday was not set aside for such groups, but rather to honor all the workers of the nation. But it has come to be accepted as a day when the unions parade and hear speeches to indicate how greatly they have improved the working conditions and standard of living of their members.

There were fewer than a million union members on that first Labor Day. They were poorly paid men working 60 or more hours a week — at wages rarely more than $2 a day. There were no pensions, or medical care — few had paid vacations — no coffee breaks or paid holidays. Short sighted employers in most cases had little regard for the welfare of their employes.

There were tragic conflicts such as the Homestead, Pa., strike in which strikers and a small army of Pinkerton detectives fought a 13 hour pitched battle with guns, clubs and rocks. The strikers lost and many were punished, with great bitterness against all employers. It was out of the tragic confrontation that two years later Congress voted to set aside the first Monday in September to honor the workers.

WE HAVE COME a long way since those days. Employers were forced to recognize the rights of workers to organize and bargain as a group. But 35 years later there were only about 3 million members of labor unions. In the depression days of the 1930s Congress passed the Wagner Act guaranteeing rights to unions and setting the 40-hour work week and the 40-cent-an-hour minimum wage scale.

That 40 cents minimum 35 years ago has grown to $1.60 at present. But skilled workers such as the plumbers have been receiving over $8 an hour, including fringe benefits. It is estimated they will be getting over $9.50 an hour or more from contracts following their strike.

This is but one example of increased pay and fringe benefits being applied to the construction industry. During the past five years these benefits have gone up an average of about 10 per cent a year. Plumbers working full time would be earning about $19,000 a year. The skilled workers in all industries are now in the $10,000 a year or more class and strikes are threatened for annual increases of 10 per cent or more in many industries.

THIS HAS ALL been possible because of union organization. It came about because management failed to take steps to give workers the benefits of the great expansion and prosperity of the many years before the Wagner Act was enacted. But now that so much has been achieved by and for the workers there is danger that the great power of unions will be as ruthless and unsound as was management in those dark days for labor.

Today we find our economy facing great dangers caused by inflation — which is largely caused by the ever increasing cost of production and service costs. The 74 million civilian employed persons have the greatest spending power ever known in history. It has caused the value of the dollar to decrease as prices of all goods and services skyrocket.

The danger now is that government, which made it possible for unions to gain these great advances, may be forced to restrict unions and management to avoid a serious recession or depression. This would be by government controls over wages, prices and profits. It will come unless unions accept responsibility for holding their demands to a minimum until the inflation is stopped. That is a warning each labor leader and union members should recognize as Monday's Labor Day is celebrated.

Burger to twirl his cloak a bit

From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — Chief Justice Warren Burger apparently is determined not to follow the example of his predecessor, Earl Warren, by wrapping himself in a mantle of remote Olympian dignity, both on and off the court.

Burger has indicated in talks with friends that he sees no necessity for staying aloof from all non-judicial activities and isolating himself — as Warren was sometimes accused — behind the marble facade of the Supreme Court building.

"He feels the necessity for respect and dignity that any judge must have, and he certainly doesn't plan to be just one of the boys," explained a friend. "But he doesn't have any desire to isolate himself from the people whose laws he must help interpret."

CAPITAL CHATTER

BURGER, A WORLDLY man who likes to travel, collect antiques and drink fine wine, naturally has found his life changed drastically by his elevation to chief justice.

But he doesn't intend to let anyone tell him how to act as chief justice. Friends say he is especially irked by ciriticism in the news media over his refusal to quit as trustee of the Mayo Foundation in Rochester, Minn.

Burger, who is paid an annual honorarium of $2,000 plus expenses from the foundation associated with the Mayo Clinic, has indicated that he is determined to remain as one of six public members — including former president Johnson — of the foundation board.

IN ADDITION to being on the board of trustees of the Mayo Foundation, former president Johnson has remained on the wall of the Rayburn House Office Building barbershop in Washington.

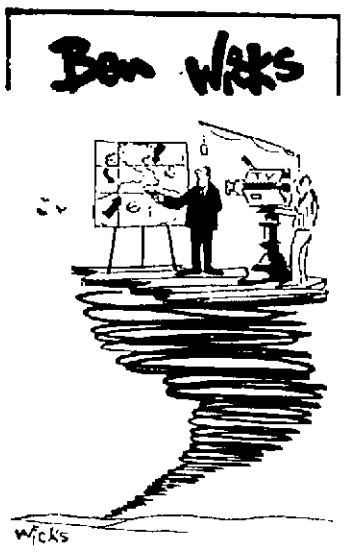

Johnson's portrait still stares at barbershop customers — including many GOP congressmen — despite the fact that his portrait has been replaced by Richard Nixon's on the walls of almost every government office.

MEMBERS OF the Women's National Press Club in Washington are fuming because they've been snubbed by one of the highest ranking women in government — Israel's Prime Minister Golda Meir.

Mrs. Meir was scheduled to speak to the women press types during a visit to Washington late next month, but cancelled the appearance in order to speak to the all-male National Press Club.

SOME OF THE biggest legal guns in Washingon are lined up behind the large foundations to fight house-passed tax reform proposals which the Senate Finance Committee will take up next week.

The foundations are worried about proposed changes in tax laws which they say will force them to drop half of an estimated $200 million in grants they hand out each year for domestic projects and national affairs studies.

Half of secretary better than none

From Our L. A. Bureau

IT'S EASY to get the notion these days that somebody in Sacramento or Washington calls every morning and tells the county how many people to hire.

Consider, for instance, a paragraph from a letter recently written by Supervisor Warren Dorn:

BILL MAYER

"A study for my office ... indicates that there has been an increase of 14,368 positions in the last three budget years. Of these new positions, 98.7 per cent, or 14,182, have been forced on the county payroll by state and federally mandated programs. Only 1.3 per cent, or 186, positions from this total have been added over a three-year period by the Board of Supervisors in those departments where we have full discretion."

"MANDATED" IS A WORD used more commonly by lawyers than politicians, but all it means is "ordered." And there are, indeed, federal and state programs, and laws to enforce them. The best known, probably, are those dealing with welfare, where Washington and Sacramento can talk big, and do, because they supply a large part of the budget.

So they tell the county it must hire one social worker for every 60 families on relief, and one supervisor for every five social workers, and so on.

But that accounts for only about half the people who work in welfare. What about the others?

THE QUESTION brings to mind the experience of somebody who once was news secretary to Dist. Atty. Evelle Younger.

"I need a full-time stenographer," said the press agent.

"What about Pat Rollerson?" he was asked.

"I only have half of Pat," the news writer answered. "I'm tired of sharing her with Earl Osadchey, and if he's going to be special assistant to the D. A., he shouldn't have to share a stenographer with anybody either. It doesn't give us any status."

"Sorry, Mayer," the press agent was told. "The Chief Administrator's Office says we can't have any more clerical help this year, so half of Pat is all you get."

You can argue all week that the D. A. is a mandated department, but it won't do any good. It won't get one bit of relief for a stenographer who has to type a report for one boss while she's running off a press release for the other.

WARREN DORN

ENFORCING THE LAW is another thing the county has to do. The state constitution says so. But Sheriff Peter Pitchess has been so pained by the hiring restrictions imposed on him that he has sometimes appealed personally to the Board of Supervisors for more deputies.

Coroner Thomas Noguchi has done that too.

At those times Supervisor Dorn listened sympathetically, and he has voted, along with the other supervisors, to ease the strain. He knows what the board can do and what it can't.

What he is after, with all those statistics about county hiring, is more federal and state money for welfare so property taxes can be reduced, and probably nobody will quarrel with that. The question is how much good is done if any Sacramento bureaucrat can shoot down all the figures with a pop gun.

THE OLD HOME TOWN is making progress, but a three-story building is still described in the weekly Trombone as a high-rise.

OUR OWN VIEW is that the decline of passenger travel on the railroads began with the disappearance of the kind of little old lady who always had a shoe box full of fried chicken to share with the folks sitting around her in the chair car.

WE'RE CONFIDENT about the moon in regard to one thing. Even under conditions of relative weightlessness, candy bar vending machines couldn't work any worse up there than they do down here.

THE MAN at the next desk recalls that in 1935, when Social Security went into effect, he was more social, but less secure.

Columnists on the opinion pages are chosen to represent diverse viewpoints and do not necessarily reflect the editorial position of this newspaper.

Here's the whole truth about sex without the plain brown wrapper

THE TRUTH about sex is that it was NOT invented by Helen Gurley Brown in the spring of 1956. One theory held that along about then, after a wretched winter, she answered a magazine ad which advised:

"Earn while you learn! Have fun and profit at home writing about sex!"

Investigation has proven this an unfounded rumor. Helen Gurley Brown merely elevated to the slick ladies magazines, such as her own Cosmopolitan, and into hard-bound books the sort of handy sex hints which up to that time had been confined to Confidential and other titillating movie gossip mimeographs.

IT WAS MISS BROWN who discovered you can sell 4,229,000 copies of any magazine containing an article with this title: "How Jackie Deceived Her Man Sam." It is OK to go to the next-to-last paragraph before you reveal Jackie hoodwinked her Uncle Sam by taking her taxable income overseas.

But so much about Sex and the Singular Girl. Back to the invention.

Sex goes back farther than lots of people want to admit. In fact, the farther you trace it the duller it gets.

The simplest form of it was a cell which multiplied by dividing. In other words, the simple cell fell in love with itself, got married after a short romance, then hustled off to Nevada for a divorce. This, to everybody but scientists, is considered a dumb way of having kids.

SCIENTISTS AS A class are a sneaky bunch who spend their office hours peering through microscopes at the private lives of cells. If you thought Louis Pasteur was famous only for heating milk to the point where it doesn't taste good, you are mistaken. In the world of the big domes, Louis is known for his "celebrated research" which "served to establish that living organisms, within the scope of competent observation, come into being exclusively as products of other similar organisms."

This calls for translation. What it means is that if you start with Pa and Ma Beatle you are likely to end up with a lot of little beatles, which will serve you right.

This is a direct slam against Aristotle, who believed in spontaneous generation. He thought all those little bugs suddenly showed up in the rain barrel just for the hell of it.

BUT PERISH the thought that a girl cell always needs a boy cell to raise little cells. There are mystifying references in the encyclopedias about asexual (without sexual activity) reproduction. Also there is stuff about how the zygote, or fertilized egg, "divides by repeated cleavage." It sounds like what you would expect at a cocktail party with all the girl cells wearing those low-necked gowns.

Evolution, which is just a long way of saying sex, has been around a spell. Next time you go down to the beach, look for a brachiopod. It's a tiny animal in a shell with tentacles reminding of a peewee octopus. The brachiopod Lingula family has looked just about the same for 500 million years. That's why the teenage Lingulas just sit there waving their tentacles in protest against the establishment.

One reason some sharks are so mean is that their looks haven't improved any since the Jurassic Age started 180 million years ago.

WE HAVE tiptoed among the fish and bivalves long enough. What about procreation of people? Frankly, as a group, they were slow to catch on. For ages, they thought children just happened, like measles.

To this day there are tribes in which none of the parents claim any of the little ones. They send them to kindergarten in the day nurseries and warn them — once — about coconuts. After that if one gets clomped on the head by a coconut he is graduated.

This brings us to Sex in Today's World. The thing about Sex in Today's World is that it appears to have changed very little from Sex in the Ordovician Age, which is when the brachiopod Lingula started waving their tentacles, 500 million years before Helen Gurley Brown. They knew a good thing when they saw it and have kept it up right through Aug. 30, 1969.

So what's new?

He also said:

"You may be interested in knowing that my son has used monies earned through newspaper delivery and collection to totally pay for Scouting program, including equipment, monthly dues, monthly campouts, and two-week-long term campout."

75 years of progress for labor unions

By L. A. COLLINS, Sr.

AS LABOR DAY is celebrated Monday, it will be the 75th year of such honoring of the nation's organized labor groups. The holiday was not set aside for such groups, but rather to honor all the workers of the nation. But it has come to be accepted as a day when the unions parade and hear speeches to indicate how greatly they have improved the working conditions and standard of living of their members.

There were fewer than a million union members on that first Labor Day. They were poorly paid men working 60 or more hours a week — at wages rarely more than $2 a day. There were no pensions, or medical care — few had paid vacations — no coffee breaks or paid holidays. Short sighted employers in most cases had little regard for the welfare of their employes.

There were tragic conflicts such as the Homestead, Pa., strike in which strikers and a small army of Pinkerton detectives fought a 13 hour pitched battle with guns, clubs and rocks. The strikers lost and many were punished, with great bitterness against all employers. It was out of the tragic confrontation that two years later Congress voted to set aside the first Monday in September to honor the workers.

WE HAVE COME a long way since those days. Employers were forced to recognize the rights of workers to organize and bargain as a group. But 35 years later there were only about 3 million members of labor unions. In the depression days of the 1930s Congress passed the Wagner Act guaranteeing rights to unions and setting the 40-hour work week and the 40-cent-an-hour minimum wage scale.

That 40 cents minimum 35 years ago has grown to $1.60 at present. But skilled workers such as the plumbers have been receiving over $3 an hour, including fringe benefits. It is estimated they will be getting over $9.50 an hour or more from contracts following their strike.

This is but one example of increased pay and fringe benefits being applied to the construction industry. During the past five years these benefits have gone up an average of about 10 per cent a year. Plumbers working full time would be earning about $19,000 a year. The skilled workers in all industries are now in the $10,000 a year or more class and strikes are threatened for annual increases of 10 per cent or more in many industries.

THIS HAS ALL been possible because of union organization. It came about because management failed to take steps to give workers the benefits of the great expansion and prosperity of the many years before the Wagner Act was enacted. But now that so much has been achieved by and for the workers there is danger that the great power of unions will be as ruthless and unsound as was management in those dark days for labor.

Today we find our economy facing great dangers caused by inflation — which is largely caused by the ever increasing cost of production and service costs. The 74 million civilian employed persons have the greatest spending power ever known in history. It has caused the value of the dollar to decrease as prices of all goods and services skyrocket.

The danger now is that government, which made it possible for unions to gain these great advances, may be forced to restrict unions and management to avoid a serious recession or depression. This would be by government controls over wages, prices and profits. It will come unless unions accept responsibility for holding their demands to a minimum until the inflation is stopped. That is a warning each labor leader and union members should recognize as Monday's Labor Day is celebrated.

SERVED HER 'SENTENCE'

Trial Buff Holds Judge in Contempt

ANNA SPRINGER . . . She Wanted to Know
—Staff Photo

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

In the six months that sprightly Mrs. Anna Springer did penance for an offside remark in a Santa Ana Superior Court, she learned who her friends are — if she didn't already know.

One of them is not Judge Byron K. McMillan, who banned her from the courts last February for six months because of what she said to herself — but which was plainly overheard during tense questioning in an armed robbery case.

"What's that got to do with this case?" she muttered when an attorney posed a question she didn't think was pertinent. The attorney objected, and the judge found her in contempt.

"I'm not one to hold a grudge," she insisted — and then disclosed that she has at least a little one.

"I think that he (Judge McMillan) did a most unruly thing. He could have taken me in chambers, and given me a lecture.

"But he wanted to punish me; he knew that going to court was my life."

She said she has visited the courts almost daily "since my husband Harvey dropped dead of a heart attack 31 years ago."

A friend, seeking to help to assauge her grief, had suggested that she "do something, like going to court to see what's going on."

She became so engrossed in it that it became a project for her. She'd whip through her housework in her small apartment, and then trudge up to the Orange County Court House.

Before long, she became a familiar figure, and she knew everybody — and almost everybody knew her. Especially in the criminal cases: "that's where the action is!"

The day after her "sentence" was up, she was deluged with attention.

Superior Court Judges Robert P. Kneeland and Raymond Vincent "ordered" her into their courts for a visit — and she complied with pleasure.

Some friends found out it was her 88th birthday — and so there was a happy birthday luncheon.

Newsmen swarmed around her, and photographers took her picture — going in and out of the courts.

All except Judge McMillan's courtroom.

"I have no intention of going there," she said tersely.

That's contempt.

sult in 10 per cent of all samples. In Long Beach that would be a total of 105 compared with the occasional one to four reported by Armbrust.

Federal rules also allow a positive showing in two of the five tubes from a sample. However, the city health lab does follow-up tests every time it finds a fermentation bubble.

"Of all the areas of public health we cover, water inspection is perhaps the most vital," says Dr. Litwack. "The health of the entire community is at stake. We are the responsible testing agency.

"In addition to regular laboratory testing we have constant inspection of mechanical devices which prevent backflow. Chlorination at the city treatment plant is strictly regulated and constantly tested. MWD, from which the city water department buys part of the supply, follow the same procedures," he explained.

What might be the cause of the seeming contamination in the Peters and Deaton taps?

Health department and water department officials declined to speculate.

However, a Market Street neighbor, one without water problems, suggested: "Maybe a rusty pipe or a water heater that's about to go."

$3 MILLION PROGRAM

P&G Plans Curbs on Port Pollution

The Procter & Gamble Manufacturing Co. has announced plans for a $3 million environmental control program which will prevent waste discharges from its Long Beach plant into the harbor.

The company presented to local and state agencies a comprehensive plan for renovating and expanding the plant's waste water collection and pre-treatment systems so that all liquid waste can be transported to and treated by the Los Angeles County Sanitary District.

Noting that a corrective program became possible only with the apparent arrest of subsidence in the plant area, the company also revealed plans for a separate $1 million project to repair subsidence-caused damage to plant buildings, roadway and rail spur systems and underground fire mains. Both projects are scheduled for completion during 1971.

Under the environmental control project:

Plant sewers severely damaged by subsidence will be restored to a suitable grade leading from plant grounds to the sanitary district sewer on West Seventh Street.

A recirculating cooling water system will replace the present use of cooling water from the ship channel, thus eliminating the discharge of once-through cooling water to the channel.

A new settling and skimming basin will be constructed to provide pretreatment of all process waste waters for removal of floatable animal or vegetable, fats or oils before the waters are discharged to the sanitary district sewer.

1970 Laguna Arts Show in Works

The world-famed Laguna Beach Festival of Arts, which closed out its most successful season Aug. 24, is readying for the 1970 show.

Six artists were nominated for the 1970 grounds admittance jury for the Festival, and their places on the committee will be decided by ballot to be mailed out soon.

Festival of Arts exhibitors and unsuccessful applicants for space in the 1969 show will be eligible to vote for artists of two modern and two traditional schools, plus one alternate juror in each category. The festival's board of directors will then choose three more, plus one alternate to complete the seven-man team.

Festival business manager Robert Leppert said that the composition of the grounds admittance jury is to insure as wide a representation of art work as is possible to achieve.

Novice Diver Has Brush With Death

A 22-year-old La Mirada man making his first deep sea dive became entangled in a bed of kelp off Santa Catalina Island Saturday and nearly drowned.

The diving student, Keith Bottow, of 4527 Stage Road, was flown to Avalon by a sheriff's helicopter after deputies were summoned to the boat "Lou-Lou" off Emerald Bay.

Deputy Dennis Richards, the helicopter pilot, and his partner, Deputy William Angoine, landed near the boat — situated between the island's isthmus and west end — and administered resusitation to Bottow.

Then they flew him to Pebbly Beach, where Bottow was taken by ambulance to Avalon Hospital. He was in satisfactory condition.

SERVED HER 'SENTENCE'

Trial Buff Holds Judge in Contempt

ANNA SPRINGER . . . She Wanted to Know
—Staff Photo

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

In the six months that sprightly Mrs. Anna Springer did penance for an offside remark in a Santa Ana Superior Court, she learned who her friends are — if she didn't already know.

One of them is not Judge Byron K. McMillan, who banned her from the courts last February for six months because of what she said to herself — but which was plainly overheard during tense questioning in an armed robbery case.

"What's that got to do with this case?" she muttered when an attorney posed a question she didn't think was pertinent. The attorney objected, and the judge found her in contempt.

"I'm not one to hold a grudge," she insisted — and then disclosed that she has at least a little one.

"I think that he (Judge McMillan) did a most unruly thing. He could have taken me in chambers, and given me a lecture.

"But he wanted to punish me; he knew that going to court was my life."

She said she has visited the courts almost daily "since my husband Harvey dropped dead of a heart attack 31 years ago."

A friend, seeking to help to assauge her grief, had suggested that she "do something, like going to court to see what's going on."

She became so engrossed in it that it became a project for her. She'd whip through her housework in her small apartment, and then trudge up to the Orange County Court House.

Before long, she became a familiar figure, and she knew everybody — and almost everybody knew her. Especially in the criminal cases: "that's where the action is!"

The day after her "sentence" was up, she was deluged with attention.

Superior Court Judges Robert P. Kneeland and Raymond Vincent "ordered" her into their courts for a visit — and she complied with pleasure.

Some friends found out it was her 88th birthday — and so there was a happy birthday luncheon.

Newsmen swarmed around her, and photographers took her picture — going in and out of the courts.

All except Judge McMillan's courtroom.

"I have no intention of going there," she said tersely.

That's contempt.

EARL WILSON'S BROADWAY

Meredith McRae Family 'Modern'

NEW YORK — Meredith MacRae came to town and began talking about one of the most modern families in America — hers.

"I was on 'What's My Line?' with my sister Heather," Meredith said. "She had a fight with Henry Morgan on the Merv Griffin show and so she didn't speak to him. Why? Well, she thinks he's an uptight old man. He got kind of miffed when she said that.

"I don't object to my sister taking her clothes off in 'Hair,' I think it's cool," Meredith, the oldest daughter of Sheila and Gordon MacRae, herself a famous actress, said. Then she spoke of her brothers Bruce 13, and Gar, who's 20 and has been married a year.

"Both my brothers have hair to their shoulders," Meredith continued. "Gar refuses to cut his and it makes it kind of hard for him to get a job. He's got just the right hair to play in 'Hair' but they have a long waiting list to get into that cast."

MEREDITH, vivacious and blonde, began boasting about her husband, actor Greg Mullavey, whom she married in a Hindu ceremony at Big Sur in April. They both wore white. Brother Bruce, with hair to his shoulders, handed out roses.

"Greg," Meredith said, "played a group therapy psychologist in 'Bob & Carol and Ted and Alice' and also the lead in "The Marigold Man.'

"Greg and I went to a group therapy 'Institute for Living' where the men and women take nude baths together, to do research. The idea is if you strip yourselves you reveal more of yourselves and are more honest with each other.

Meredith's husband helped draw the conversation around to Meredith and her emoting with Joe Namath, playing his girl friend in "Norwood," just finished.

"For publicity, I had to put flowers around his neck, and give him a kiss, like with a winning horse. Joe said, 'I think I'm in love,' then he saw my ring.

"He kept saying 'Oh, I'm really terrible, aren't I?' But I thought he just did it beautifully in that scene where he had a live chick in a car and had to put it in the trunk and close the trunk and hand me the key. We talked about his problems and he chose his career which I felt was real groovy. I expected him to be real conceited which he isn't."

MEREDITH SAID " 'Petticoat Junction' is a kind of my main thing I'm going into my fourth year" — but there are so many other things . . . records, nightclubs, and she's spokeswoman for a soft drink — that she's one of the busiest actresses in Hollywood.

"Daddy" (Gordon MacRae), who gave Meredith a half-sister after his marriage to Liz Schrafft — her name's Amanda and she's 15 months old — is the conservative in the family but they could never claim he's uptight or old. He's quite groovy at times.

"Mother's more liberal," Meredith said. "Daddy's against nudity. We went to see 'Hair' with Heather in it. He thought Heather was great. But of course Heather didn't go nude that night."

THE WEEKEND WIND-UP' . . . David Hemmings chipped an ankle bone playing softball in Hyde Park — and still has some scenes to do in "The Walking Stick" . . . Secret Stuff: An actress who once got as much as 750Gs for a picture is broke . . . Comedian Pat Cooper, who'll star at the Copa Sept. 18, once picked up fares there as a hackie . . . Eddy Arnold's approaching his 60,000,000th record sale (topped only by Crosby, Presley and the Beatles) . . . Eddie Fisher'll record a tune by another singer — Paul Anka.

Van Heflin's dtr. Kate is being romanced by Robert Westbrook, author of "Magic Garden of Stanley Sweetheart" . . . Alec Guinness, now finishing "Cromwell," says nobody's ever offered him the role he wants most — as a clown . . . Duke Ellington, at the Rainbow Grill, introduces his vocalist: "And now Tony Watkins, doing his impression of Tony Bennett doing his impression of Tony Watkins" . . . There'll be an Australian company of "1776."

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Rodney Dangerfield admits he wasn't popular as a child: "Other kids wouldn't play with me. On the seesaw, I had to sit on both sides."

WISH I'D SAID THAT: A man insisted he'd really gone on the wagon: "I've even given up the Dean Martin show."

REMEMBERED QUOTE: "All of us would do better tomorrow if we'd begun working on it last year."

EARL'S PEARLS: Dick Cavett claims you can always tell an out-of-towner in Manhattan: "When the sign says 'Don't Walk,' he doesn't walk."

Comic Marty Allen, movie-making in London, got a call from his wife Frenchy in London. She gossiped for 10 minutes, till Marty yelled, "Hey, Frenchy, get off the phone or we'll have to sell the house!" . . . That's earl, brother.

Auditions Slated by Light Opera

Auditions for the Long Beach Civic Light Opera's production of Flower Drum Song will be held at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at 518 E. Fourth St. Oriental singers and dancers are needed for the musical which opens Oct. 31. Singers should bring their own music in the key they sing in.

Texas Girl Invades Ring to Fight Portuguese Bulls

LISBON (UPI) — Edith Evans, a tall blond Texan, has scars on her legs, a healthy fear of bulls and the distinction of being the second woman in history to invade the Portuguese bullring.

Miss Evans, 25, of Rock Springs, Texas, said Saturday she had been invited to appear in Lisbon's Campo Pequeno bullring next month.

THE ATTRACTIVE blue-eyed Miss Evans claims to be the first American bullfighter on horseback, male or female, and in a land where this type of bullfighting originated she has caught the crowd's fancy in her first three performances, all outside the Portuguese capital.

Miss Evans said in an interview Friday in the Lisbon newspaper Diario Popular she killed 100 bulls in a series of performances in Mexico.

Faces 'Bite' for Concealing Keno Winning

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: The gains you make during the year ahead will be permanent, more extensive than you now think probable, provided that you are willing to exert yourself. Romantic interests seem to fracture but are not the major issue at present. Today's natives are many-sided in nature and can usually spin a tall tale with no visible effort.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You are almost certain to have a chance to use your past achievements as tools for further advance today. Practical details come first, but go at them in a cheerful, expansive mood.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Get busy and work out the details of some improvement in your situation; make alternative plans for action now and near future.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): The temptation is to explain too much, make more comments than the situation requires, so that others become confused over what you really want. People listen to you now.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Think bigger today. Make your plans known; ask associates to pitch in to put your program over. Your mate partner is lively with doings now — stay alert, ask pertinent questions fro mtime to time.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23): Reach out for a share in a new venture today. Show off your craftsmanship, the dignity of your work and its results. Make it an evening of serious study, with some concern for future contingencies.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Consolidate your position as you move forward, remembering you are setting a pace and a model for coming months. The keyword now is gathering.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Get an early start and clear off your routine chores and the backlog of unfinished business. Expect your free time to be interrupted by friends.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Cooperation is the pattern of the day. Start early, take your best stance, and work out the results with zest and good humor. You can now reorganize your personal and business affairs more readily than usual.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Going over the old familiar may help now with today's stresses. Some bread you cast upon the waters a long time back may now come home to you — with added bonus. Take it graciously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): New interests influence you today. Make an early start and put your full strength into them. A small party rounds out the evening.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Parents are more readily fathomed today. Consultations with experts are strongly favored. Your resources tend to develop healthy increase.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You needn't go far from home to find all that is essential or readily usable. Whatever you say is likely to be heard in some special context you may not fully appreciate.

Ram Revenge in San Diego, 24-14

SAN DIEGO — Roman Gabriel threw for one touchdown and plunged for another and Ron Smith electrified a record crowd with a 78-yard punt return Saturday night as the Rams beat San Diego, 24-14, in a preseason football game.

A crowd of 53,071, including President Nixon, saw the game between the National Football League Rams and the American Football League Chargers.

The Rams scored all their points in the first half and then held off the Chargers.

Rams	10	14	0	0—24
Chargers	0	7	7	0—14

FIRST QUARTER

Rams 10, Chargers 0. Although the Rams failed to pick up a first down the first period, the Angelenos built up a 10-0 cushion on David Ray's 39-yard field goal and Ron Smith's dazzling 78-yard punt return.

Ray put the Rams on the scoreboard when Mo Poltios forced Russ Smith to fumble on the Charger 39. Four plays later Ray booted his three-pointer, his second as a Ram in two attempts this summer.

Ron Smith then stunned the partisan crowd with his punt return, ending three weeks of frustration when long runbacks were nullified by penalties. Smith was sprung initially by Alvin Haymond's block.

The Chargers held a 4-0 advantage in first downs, 39-11 margin rushing while John Hadl outpassed Roman Gabriel 51 yards to 6. But as one press box wag shouted: What's the score?

SECOND QUARTER

Rams 24, Chargers 7. Gabriel caught fire the second quarter and made monkeys of the Chargers' defense. After Partee put the Rams in a hole with a 53-yard punt, Gabriel drove his mates 76 yards in nine plays. The rugged quarterback connected on four passes without a miss in the drive — 11 yards to Bill Truax, 13 to Wendell Tucker, 4 more to Tucker and 9 to Jack Snow.

After Larry Smith broke two tackles and swept 17 yards to S.D.'s 5, Gabe slashed four yards on a keeper to the 1 and then rammed the final yard for the score to push the visitors ahead, 17-0.

Driving a Plymouth-powered fuel dragster, Wolf was clocked at 231.36 mph bettering the event's previous high of 229 mph last year.

PULLS GROIN MUSCLE

Shaky Shutout by Osteen

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

The Dodgers' pitching, already a trifle up in the air with the loss of bullpen whiz Jim Brewer, got another scare Saturday night at Dodger Stadium when Claude Osteen had to leave with a pulled muscle while working on his fourth shutout of the month.

Osteen breezed seven innings-plus but pulled a groin muscle in the eighth, requiring Pete Mikkelsen to come in and complete the shutout, 2-0 over Philadelphia for the Dodgers' fourth win in the last five starts.

After the game trainer Bill Buhler disclosed the injury didn't appear to be serious but couldn't be sure yet if Gomer will be able to take his next turn, scheduled for Wednesday night against the Mets.

"The same thing happened a couple of years ago," Osteen said, answering inquiries about the injury. "It was at Cincinnati and I was working on a shutout then, too. But that time was a lot worse. I just hope I don't miss that next turn."

Even so, Osteen got the win, his 18th for the high mark of his career.

And Mikkelsen, taking up the slack in the pen when Brewer was sent to the hospital, responded with a perfect relief job for his third save of the year. Mikkelsen's now worked 14 games since the All-Star break and has given up but seven runs while winning three.

Aside from Osteen's plight, it was a grand evening.

Willie Davis added to his hitting streak, now at 27 games in a row, and the Dodgers shuffled to within a game of the lead in the National League's jammed-up Western Division.

As for Willie's streak, which now matches Duke Snider's 27 game spree in 1953, Davis got an assist from the scorer, Dick Robinson of the Pasadena Star-News, and Willie D. admits it.

"It was a gift, I know that," Willie smiled. "But that infield is awfully

Baltimore Panic Subsides as Orioles Stagger Angels

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

BALTIMORE — The good life ended Saturday night.

Baltimore's downtrodden Orioles, losers in eight of their last 11 games and only a mere 12½ lengths in front of the Detroit Tigers in American League East, staged a momentary revival and brought some peace of mind back to Maryland when they slipped the Angels a 6-3 setback.

Maybe it was panic. Maybe it was pride. Or, maybe the Angels simply ran out of miracles. Whatever the motivation, Earl Weaver the Oriole manager, was smiling for the first time in a week when he said, "That's more like it."

Incredible as it may sound, the people who inhabit the shores of Chesapeake Bay were discussing things like doomsday and the collapses of the '51 Dodgers and the '64 Phillies after the Angels won Friday's twi-nighter and stretched their winning streak to six.

Manager Weaver reluctantly announced that 112 victories and a new American record was no longer of vital importance and that the prime objective was the clinching of the pennant. As far removed as the Tigers are from contention, the Birds thought they were beginning to pick up the faint sound of footsteps approaching from the rear.

Baltimore went into Saturday's game with 30 playing dates remaining.

Weaver took one hard look at the schedule and declared, "We'd better win 20." If they do, that will give the Orioles 109 victories and alas, no new record to go along with the pennant.

"It would have been nice," Weaver admitted, "but no more discussing records until we get this thing wrapped up."

The Birds rattled four Angel pitchers for 11 hits and brought Lefty Phillips and Co. back to earth.

Not to be outdone, however, the Angels managed to make an imprint on the record book when ageless Hoyt Wilhelm teamed up with battery mate Joe Azcue in the seventh inning.

The result was three passed balls charged to Azcue on successive pitches that allowed Brooks Robinson to advance from first

HE HAS HEART OF A TIGER

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers catcher Bill Freehan suffered a "fibrillation" of the heart in Saturday's game against Seattle, but team physician Dr. Russell Wright said it was nothing to worry about.

"It has happened to him many times since he was a child," Wright said. "And when it has happened that often to someone like Bill it couldn't be fatal."

A fibrillation, according to the dictionary, is "very rapid irregular contractions of the muscle fibers of the heart resulted in a lack of synchronism between heartbeat and pulse beat."

THE 27-YEAR-OLD Freehan suffered it while he was on deck in the sixth inning with Al Kaline at bat. Kaline had a pinch-hit single to tie the game 3-3 and Freehan got excited.

"My heart started going thump, thump, thump," he said, patting his hand rapidly over his heart. "I went into the dugout and Dr. Wright squeezed my neck as treatment and then I went to bat."

Then the All-Star catcher belted a double to left field to drive in the winning run as Detroit won, 4-3.

"I squeezed the carotid artery which prevents the blood momentarily from going to the brain," Dr. Wright said.

"I still had a pain in my chest when I hit the double," Freehan said. "But I've had it since I was a kid. It's not a heart attack, or anything like that."

5-STROKE MARGIN FOR AMATEUR TITLISTS

Hefty Melnyk Buries Foes in Sand

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sopping the pressure in his 235-pound frame like a sponge, Steve Melnyk charged to a one under par 32-38—70 Saturday to win the 69th annual U.S. Amateur Golf Championship by five strokes.

The 22-year-old Melnyk, university of Florida senior, posted a 72 hole total of two-over-par 286 as he left his closest pursuers, Vinnie Giles and Allen Miller buried in the 187 sand traps of Oakmont Country Club's demanding 6,670-yard course.

"All I kept saying to myself was just try and par every hole," Melnyk said. "You never know how much of a lead is enough of a lead."

Melnyk's 72-hole score as the third lowest ever posted at Oakmont and placed in some pretty good company. Ben Hogan, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus posted 283s, and Phil Rodgers and Bobby Nichols 285s in U.S. Open competition over the course.

Giles staggered home second for the third successive year, the first in the history of the tournament

ROCK ISLAND REPORT:

They Hate the Nitehawks . . but Love Hopkins

NICK HOPKINS
'Not Interested' in Baseball

Sometimes it takes a trip away from home to really discover what's at home. Such was the position of Connie Mcairs, long-suffering spouse of Red Mcairs, manager of the Long Beach Nitehawks, who are on the verge of capturing another national softball title.

In her letter upon Sheraton Plaza stationary from Rock Island, Ill., Connie had these remarks. Oh, in advance we'd like to mention that we're dumbfounded that Rock Island, a simple railroad stop, has a Sheraton establishment.

Take note, Conrad Hilton.

"Thought you may enjoy seeing the articles in the Rock Island Argus," penned Connie. "Our Nitehawks draw the largest crowds. The people come to root against us, but THEY DO COME. Sometimes it is hard being a wife sitting in the stands listening to the remarks. You keep still, though."

Connie's comment reminds of the first season that

HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Ginger Drysdale watched her husband pitch. A slight woman, Ginger wanted to belt every obnoxious fan in sight.

Don cooled the situation with this simple remark. "Honey," said the Big D., "just ask them how much money they're taking to the bank each week." Ginger laughed, then cooled. She no longer had rabbit ears.

Continues Connie: "A wife keeps cheering against tremendous odds. We have three wives here with eight children, plus two loyal fans who have followed the Nitehawks for many years.

"Also, after being here for seven out of nine years, we have made a few kind and loyal friends. So last night was a thrill to win against Green Bay. Believe me, the Nitehawks have put Long Beach on the map for the area here in the Midwest.

"The people around here still are talking of last year's marathon of winning the tournament in one day by playing five games. The articles I've enclosed I wanted to share with you."

KEY FIGURE in Rock Island, as of the writing, is Nitehawk shotstop Nick Hopkins, who mattriculated from Wilson High and was with two major league baseball organizations.

Rock Island sports editor Murray Hurt puts it this way:

"World tournament fans have grown accustomed to watching Hopkins glide gracefully to the ball, glove it and effortlessly throw to first.

"It's something of a shock, then, to learn that during Nick's minor league days, he was a 'good-hit, no-field' shortstop."

Hopkins, a young 32, always hit well in the minors and can point to a .324 mark with Greensboro in 1956 as proof.

Then, Nick has a point which several other younger men should consider today: "Actually, I was too immature at the time when the pros signed me for hardball. At the age — 18 to 20 — kids just don't realize what they're doing. Too many of them, me included, just go out for a good time. What is important is this is their way of making a living.

"I really think I could have made the majors good if I'd taken the game seriously." So do many others, Nick.

NICK WAS SIGNED by the Boston Red Sox out of Wilson High and roamed from 1955-58 from Corning, Greensboro and then to Albany. Obviously, he had problems in those days. "The Giants bought my contract, then I got married and didn't want to play anymore."

That's how a wife will affect one.

"Then," continued Nick, "the Giants contacted me three or four times in three years, but I just wasn't interested. But I'm plenty interested in softball. I think it's the greatest game in the world.

"I couldn't hit a lick when I first tried softball. I'd always been a righthander. Finally, I went to the other side. It took me four or five years to really get onto it," remarked Hopkins. "But it really gives you a big advantage in reaching first base."

Shades of Maury Wills and Chuck Stevens.

WHEN YOUR TEAM leaves town, you learn things. Nick has been the backbone of the Nitehawks for several seasons, but the Rock Island reporter hit the nail on the head when he spelled out Hopkins' specifics.

"He probably plays the deepest shortstop in softball," wrote Hurt. Now I don't know how deep a shortstop has to play. Even Wills doesn't have the answer. But Mr. Hurt phrases it this way:

"At times it looks as though Hopkins is playing short left-field. And it doesn't seem possible that he could throw out a runner from that distance."

Nick's response: "I like to come in on everything I field. Playing deep I can get to balls that normally would go through for hits, and I'm still quick enough to come in for the soft ones."

Green Bay can vouch for Hopkins' ability to cut off hits. He ranged far behind third for a high-hopper that seemed a certain double. It went for an out. The next inning he went the other way, racing almost into center field to glove a ball and convert it into an out.

They love Hopkins in Rock Island, and small wonder.

Tigers Collect McLain's 21st

DETROIT (AP) — Denny McLain won his 21st game and Bill Freehan drove in the winning run with a double as Detroit edged Seattle 4-3 Saturday.

The Pilots got five hits and their three runs off McLain in the first three innings before he settled down to hold Seattle hitless the rest of the way.

The victory upped McLain's major league leading record to 21-6. He won 31 games last year and also won 20 in 1966.

The Tigers trailed 3-2 in the sixth when Jim Northrup greeted reliever John O'Donoghue with a double and Willie Horton walked. Pinch-hitter Al Kaline singled off Bob Locker with one out, driving in Northrup with the tying run and Horton scored the go-ahead run when Freehan doubled.

The Wilson High graduate hit Mike Garratt for a 19-yard score and Greg Jones on a 34-yard touchdown. He totaled 156 yards in the 2½-hour workout.

Mickey Cureton led the rushers with 88 yards in nine carries, while Bob Manning covered 63 yards in eight tries.

Coach Tommy Prothro, however, was not pleased with the workout. The Saturday afternoon workout capped a week of two-sessions-a-day drills. The Bruins will have today off.

METS WIN IN 10TH, 3-2

Clendenon Ends S.F. Streak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Donn Clendenon ripped a two-out homer in the 10th inning, giving the New York Mets a 3-2 decision over San Francisco Saturday and ending the Giants' winning streak at nine games.

The triumph, coupled with Chicago's win over Atlanta, kept the Mets 3½ games behind the Cubs in the National League's Eastern Division and the Giants still on top in the Western.

Clendenon's ninth homer of the year sailed over the right center field wall. It came on a two-strike pitch by loser Gaylord Perry.

The Giants had tied the score 2-2 on Willie McCovey's run-scoring double in the seventh. Then San Francisco had two runners thrown out at home plate in the next two innings.

Pinch runner Ken Henderson was cut down at the plate in the eighth after hesitating before trying to score on a fly to short right field by Jim Davenport.

In the ninth, Bob Burda singled with one out and McCovey dropped a hit down the left field line. Burda tried to score on the play but was thrown out by Rod Gaspar. Then McCovey was doubled at third trying to stretch his two-base hit.

ANGELS LOSE TO O'S—

to home with the final Oriole run of the evening. It also allowed Azcue to grab a share of the dubious mark for most passed balls in an inning.

Previous claimants to this standard were three Baltimore catchers — Gus Triandos, Joe Ginsberg and Charlie Lau — all of whom were battling Wilhelm's knuckleball at the time. The National League record is four, held by Ray Katt of the Giants. Needless to add, Wilhelm was the pitcher on that occasion, too.

The Angels erased 1-0 and 3-1 deficits but ran out of rallies after the Orioles shelled Clyde Wright for two runs in the sixth on back-to-back doubles by Dave Johnson and Andy Etchebarren and Merv Rettenmund's sacrifice fly.

ANGEL ANGLES: First Baseman Jim Spencer was taken to Union Memorial Hospital for overnight observation after being hit on the top of the helmet by a Tom Phoebus pitch in the first inning. . . . Preliminary reports said Spencer appeared to have escaped serious injury.

It's Rudy May against Mike Cuellar in today's game which will have a 2:30 starting time on the West Coast. . . . The Angels have won 19 and lost 13 since the All-Star Game, the best record of any team in the American League West. . . . Dave McNally may have a 17-5 record but he has not presented any problem for the Angels. . . He is 6-2 against the Halos and has permitted 14 runs and 28 hits in 18 2/3 innings for a less-than-modest 6.63 ERA. . . . Rick Reichardt was not in the starting lineup Saturday and more medical tests are in the offing for the Angel left fielder today . . . . Rick will be given a thorough checkup after complaining of headaches, dizziness and possible kidney trouble between games Friday.

ANGEL OF DAY

BILL COWAN, an emergency replacement for Jim Spencer, socked third homer of year in 6-3 loss in Baltimore.

Cubs Start Fast, Hold Off Braves

ATLANTA (UPI) — Glenn Beckert's sacrifice fly scored Don Kessinger with the deciding run in the seventh inning Saturday and reliever Phil Regan held off Atlanta the rest of the way as the Chicago Cubs edged the Braves 5-4.

Kessinger, who drove in a run earlier with a triple, led off the seventh with a double, and moved up when Larry Maxie uncorked a wild pitch. Beckert then lifted a sacrifice fly to left and Kessinger scored easily.

The Cubs got three runs in the first inning after two were out when Billy Williams doubled, Ron Santo singled and Ernie Banks hit a two-run homer, his 21st of the season and the 495th of his career.

Hank Aaron hit his 37th home run of the season and 547th of his career in the seventh for the Braves.

85,532 See Pack Come Back, Percival's Kicks Crush Bills

Combined News Services

CLEVELAND — Fleet Travis Williams scored two touchdowns to lead the Green Bay Packers to a come-from-behind 27-17 victory Saturday night over the Cleveland Browns before the largest crowd ever to see a game in Cleveland — 85,532.

The attendance at the game, second half of the annual pro football doubleheader, broke the old record — 84,918 — set in last year's doubleheader.

In the first game the Chicago Bears defeated the Buffalo Bills, 23-16, as Mac Percival kicked five field goals and Gale Sayers ran for one touchdown.

Percival connected on field goals of 25, 33, and 16 yards in the first half as the Bears took a 17-13 lead. He added field goals of 31 and 27 to put the game out of reach in the second half.

The Bills' great rookie, O.J. Simpson, was overshadowed by unhearalded Bobby Thornton, 14th draft choice from TCU. Thornton ran a kickoff back 97 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter, Simpson helping him with a brilliant block near midfield. Thornton also returned a kickoff 63 yards just before the end of the half.

Simpson gained eight yards on three carries and caught two passes for 26 yards while Sayers gained 11 yards on three carries and caught three passes for 25 yards in the game. Both players sat out the entire second half. Simpson returned two kickoffs for 36 yards and 27 yards.

STARS OF 1950s LISTED

Otto, Sam, Crazy Legs . . . and Pro Football Bloomed

Combined News Services

NEW YORK — Now for the instant replay.

Watch closely and you'll see Bobby Layne, Raymond Berry, Crazy Legs Hirsch, Bill George.

Here it is again in slow motion: Roosevelt Brown, Chuck Bednarik, Gino Marchetti, Lou Groza.

The isolated camera is on the greatest players of the 1950s as selected by the National Football League on one of its all-star teams for each decade since pro football's birth 50 years ago.

Norm Van Brocklin didn't wear a Fu Manchu or white shoes, but he got the job done every Sunday.

Pro football was in a lower tax bracket then, but it was hardly lacking in excitement.

Free substitution brought about the development of specialists, first on offense and then on defense, and within the decade the game underwent a marked revolution.

Otto Graham, the quarterback for the Cleveland Browns, represented the field general who could march his forces downfield with precision.

Sam Huff, the middle linebacker for the New York Giants, became synonomous with violence

That clash of precision offenses against violent defenses stirred the crowd appeal that has made pro football probably the No. 1 spectator sport in the country.

Late Rally by Eagles Nips Giants

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles, behind the alert play calling of Norm Snead and the bulldozing running of Tom Woodeschick and Harry Wilson, overcame a 11-point third quarter deficit and beat the New York Giants, 24-17, Saturday in a National Football League exhibition game.

A Palmer Stadium crowd of 47,000 saw the Giants, leading 10-3 at halftime, move to a 17-3 lead late in the third quarter on a 22-yard touchdown run by Joe Morrison.

But on the first play after the kickoff Woodeschick ran 38 yards to the Giant 42 and five plays later Wilson smashed up the middle to make the score 17-10.

The contest marked the professional debut of Leroy Keyes, the heralded Eagle rookie from Purdue who signed a three-year contract last week.

Keyes appeared only twice, both on kickoff returns, and did not touch the ball.

Slow Start, but Namath Tops Vikes

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Joe Namath, finding his form in the third quarter, led the New York Jets to a 24-21 decision over the Minnesota Vikings Saturday night.

Namath completed only 6 of 15 passes in the first half, but one of those was a 76-yard scoring toss to Don Maynard. He hit George Sauer with an 11-yard scoring toss in the third period while completing 7 of 9 passes in the drive.

Namath, who played three quarters of the contest, finished the night with 13 completions in 24 attempts for 219 yards.

The Vikings went all the way with quarterback Gary Cuozzo and he completed 15 of 32 passes for 186 yards.

Unitas Discovers To Err Is Human

MIAMI (AP) John Unitas shook off a schoolboy mistake Saturday night and drove the Baltimore Colts to two touchdowns — one on a 98-yard march — to ignite a 23-10 pre-season win over the Miami Dolphins in the Orange Bowl.

The 36-year-old Unitas erred on Baltimore's first series and it put the National Football League champions in a 7-0 hole. His quick, standup pass to Willie Richardson was picked off by Miami's Jimmy Warren at the Colts' 17 and Warren sailed untouched to score.

Barney Return Ignites Detroit

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI — Quarterback Bill Munson threw for two touchdowns and defensive back Lem Barney raced 72 yards with a blocked field goal to lead the Detroit Lions to a 21-20 exhibition football victory over the Washington Redskins Saturday night.

The Redskins charged back with less than two minutes to go when Gerry Allen went over from two yards out after Brig Owens had intercepted a Munson pass. But an onsides kick by the Redskins failed and Detroit ran out the clock.

The Lions came from behind twice after Washington quarterback Sonny Jurgensen threw for a touchdown and Charlie Gogolak kicked two extra points, with the winning score a 23-yard pass to Mel Farr from Munson.

The Redskins had dominated most of the game until late in the third period when the Lions' Paul Naumoff and Mike Lucci blocked a Gogolak field goal attempt.

Barney gathered in the blocked kick on his own 28 and raced untouched down the sideline to score.

Munson had hit Charlie Sanders with a four-yard scoring pass late in the second quarter.

RAMS RAP CHARGERS—

series to rookie Marty Domres, Hadl returned to direct the S.D. attack. After flipping a 44-yard pass to Lance Alworth, the Rams dug in and Partee's 31-yard field goal effort sailed wide and the Rams still led, 17-0. Partee also had a 49-yard fielder blocked at the outset of the period.

The chargers came right back following Pat Studstill's 33-yard punt. Aided by a personal foul penalty on Deacon Jones and a 20-yard pass interference infraction on Richie Petitbon which stationed the Chargers on the Ram 3, Hadl flipped a soft pass to Alworth with 1:44 left in the half. Keith Lincoln added the extra point.

The Rams immediately went into their Chinese fire drill offense and stormed 56 yards in seven plays, Gabriel capping the march with a five-yard dart to Truax in the end zone. During the battle with the clock, Tommy Mason slashed 16 yards on a draw and Snow made a dazzling grab for another 19-yard advance. After Gabe was spilled for a five-yard loss by Houston Ridge on the S.D. 15, the cool working QB rifled a 10-yard spiral to Larry Smith with 10 seconds left. On the next play Truax clutched Gabe's throw to give the Rams a hefty 24-7 lead.

During the second period, the Rams picked up 10 first downs Gabe completed 12 of 16 passes in the half for 97 yards and Hadl was 10 of 19 for 153 yards.

THIRD QUARTER

Rams 24, Chargers 14. Just when it seemed the Chargers were ready to concede the Governor's Cup to L.A., Hadl and Gary Garrison combined on a 72-yard touchdown pass-run which brought the stadium's cannon-brigade to life. Hadl fired sion in the right flat and the Long Beach product gave Willie Daniel a couple of fakes, stepped clear of his grasp and broke upfield with no one touching him in his foot race to the goal line. Lincoln's PAT left the Chargers trailing, 24-14, with 11:17 left.

The Rams failed to pick up a first down the next time they had possession and San Diego threatened again, crunching all the way to the Ram 10 before Lincoln blew a 17-yard field goal with 2:02 remaining in the period.

BABES IN THE BUSHES

RICH ROBERTS

IDAHO FALLS, Ida. — It's a night game but it starts at 7:30 when the sun is still high because the people go to bed early in Idaho Falls.

Soon the shadows will stretch into a warm summer evening and the lights atop long wooden poles will come on, drawing the insects — and, on a good night, maybe 200 fans.

"They have to spray us before every game," says Rich Bailey. "The gnats bite right through your sanitaries."

Dave Chorley, Bailey's outfielding buddy, laughs. "When I catch a fly ball I have a habit of opening my mouth. Afterward I have to cough 'em up."

This is where it starts, here in the minors, in rookie leagues like the Pioneer League subsidized by the majors, providing a route to the pot of gold rather remote for two youngsters who had been living under the rainbow all their lives.

Less than three months ago Chorley and Bailey were Millikan High teammates. Suddenly one summer they are pros. Someday they may be Angels. But that's rushing it. As their brief baptismal season winds up this weekend, they are still getting used to being pros.

"I'm 17, and it was the biggest step I'd taken. All of a sudden, here I am . . . on my own."—Dave Chorley.

"It's not quite the same," says Chorley, who received a bonus of between $25,000 and $30,000 from the Angels. "I mean, baseball in high school, you play twice a week and you really get up for the game mentally. Here you play every day and sometimes it's hard . . . especially doubleheaders, when you get beat 18-1 the first game and you're tired and dead and then have to play another game."

"You get up in the morning and it's the same routine every day," says Bailey. "You eat and you're at the field and you come home and you go to bed and there isn't much to do in between. It's still fun . . but we're working at it now."

CHORLEY AND BAILEY are 17 . . . as Bailey says, "Babies." Idaho Falls is a quiet, pleasant city astride the Snake River where major road and rail traffic meets in southeastern Idaho. But it isn't Southern California. It isn't home.

"I thought it'd be worse," confesses Bailey. "I thought we'd be staying in an outhouse or something. I thought Idaho Falls was a country store and that's about it.

"What was really bad, though, was that I flew up here all by myself, stepped off the plane and went right to the ballpark. There was a doubleheader that night. I sat through it and it was about eight hours long and we got slaughtered 20-2 and 19-3, or something like that. My eyes were open but I was asleep on the bench."

Chorley says, "It was easier for me because I had a friend up here. When I came, Rich was waiting on the curb for me. He took me and showed me all the places to go, like if you want to get pizza or mess around after a game.

"But it gets progressively worse. After a bad game sometimes you think, 'Aw, I wish I was home. I don't want to play ball any more.' "

"But you're not up here on a vacation," Bailey interjects with mock enthusiasm. "You're up here to work! That's the biggest thing to get accustomed to — your summer being gone. I miss the beach and stuff, just being around the house, laying there watching color TV . . . but I miss my girl friend the most."

Chorley contemplates his tall glass of milk and muses, "At home I could just go to the refrigerator and take out some cold milk and a sandwich. A lot of places up here the milk's too warm. Isn't that a crazy thing to miss . . . cold milk?"

ONE THING the Idaho Falls Angels offer is a chance to travel, to places like Caldwell, Idaho; Billings, Montana; Salt Lake City or Ogden, Utah. By bus.

"That was my biggest hangup when I got here," says Bailey. "There were so many guys. On a bus guys would have to sleep in the aisle."

The club's longest bus ride, to Billings, takes about eight hours. Sometimes it seems longer.

"We had the worst ride the other night," Chorley says. "We hit a skunk and dragged it with us all the way home. It smelled up the bus and guys kept their heads out the windows, even though it was 40 degrees outside."

Bailey makes a face: "I've never smelled a skunk before. Guys were sticking pillows over their heads. It was just terrible. You couldn't breathe."

Chorley and Bailey had little idea what they were getting into.

"I talked to a lot of people before I signed," says Dave. "I was ready for it . . . I think . . . but you can't imagine what it will be like."

It's a big moment when the signature goes onto the contract.

"That's what it is," says Bailey, dramatizing again. "You sell your soul!"

Bailey says he chose the Angels because "they were in the cellar and you'd have a real good chance of getting up there quickly."

"It was being away from home that was really the big thing. Gosh, I was going into a world unknown."—Rich Bailey.

Chorley says, "I never thought about that. To be real honest with you, I signed because I got the money I wanted. I never thought of the team."

THE PROCESS of signing still fascinates the youngsters.

"That first night the scout was at your house from about 7 to midnight," Rich says to Dave, "and then he came to my house from 1 to 5 in the morning."

"He came over about every night," Dave says, "and he'd stay . . . stay right through . . . you know, we were supposed to be eating, but he'd stay right through and he'd talk and talk. He was a real nice guy but he just scared me off."

Later Chorley worked out an agreement with Dick Walsh, the Angels' general manager who "really impressed me."

Before he knew it, Dave was in Idaho Falls. "I'd been playing for Salta in the Collegiate League and we played the day before, so I kept forgetting this was my first time up in pro ball. But I got a single."

Bailey recalls it vividly. "You get up to the plate and you realize, 'Well, you're starting a career.' I walked."

'Robinson's Revenge' Blow to Detroit U.

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: Like most stories which hit the headlines suddenly, Spencer Haywood's signing a professional contract with the ABA's Denver Rockets, despite having two years of college eligibility remaining, was a real shocker.

Haywood, the 6-8 center who was the hero of the United States' basketball victory in the Olympic Games, quit the University of Detroit last week to sign a five-year contract with the ABA Denver Broncos for $200,000 and some fringe benefits.

However, there have been reports circulating for the past four months that Haywood would never use his two remaining years of eligibility at Detroit because Will Robinson had been bypassed when a new coach was selected last spring to succeed Bob Calihan, who was kicked upstairs to the post of athletic director.

Haywood's departure from Detroit already has been labeled "Robinson's Revenge," by Detroiters.

Will Robinson is Haywood's legal guardian as well as the prep coach who developed his basketball skills at Pershing High in Detroit. Haywood led Pershing to the state championship in 1967.

Robinson then advised him to go to Trinidad JC in Colorado for seasoning and then was responsible for giving him the final green light to go to the University of Detroit.

LAST SPRING WHEN DETROIT DECIDED to change coaches, Robinson was one of the first to apply for the job . . . and according to our information he was among the four finalists.

Detroit's dean of student affairs who headed the selection committee reveals that when Robinson didn't get the job, he vowed that Haywood would not play another season for the Titans.

Others say that Robinson told several other school officials, including those on the selection board, the same thing — that he was certain Haywood would not play another season for Detroit unless he got the job.

And, according to Haywood, it was Robinson who set the figure he should ask to turn professional.

"He signed for just a fraction of what he's truly worth," says one NBA executive. "If Haywood had played and done as well in his last two years at Detroit, he could have commanded "at least a million dollars," he estimated. As a sophomore, Spencer led the nation's collegians in rebounding and also won all-America honors.

DURING A BRIEF VISIT TO SAN DIEGO and Del Mar a few days ago, we learned that Elvin (Big E) Hayes is buying an $86,000 home in La Jolla.

A revised contract given Hayes, former Houston ace, by the San Diego Rockets puts him very close to the $200,000-a-year bracket . . .

The father of Walter Hazzard, formerly of UCLA and the Lakers and now with the Atlanta Hawks, has just been named president of Philander Smith College, a United Methodist school in Arkansas. Before his new assignment, the elder Hazzard had been pastor at one of Philadelphia's largest churches . . .

Cal football coach Ray Willsey sees a wild four-team race in the Pacific-8 this fall among USC, Stanford, UCLA and his own Golden Bears. He singles out the Trojans as the ones to beat.

WORD ALONG THE BASEBALL GRAPEVINE is that ex-Dodger Frank Howard, now with the Washington Senators and making an estimated $90,000 a year, will ask for a three-year contract next season calling for $125,000. Further word: he won't get it . . .

The name most often heard in connection with the Philadelphia Phils' managerial post next year is Frank Lucchesi, skipper of the Phillies' Pacific Coast League farm at Eugene, Ore., which, incidentally, has a commanding lead in the loop's Southern Division race.

Lucchesi, who has been in the Phils' farm system for 10 years, is highly regarded. His best recommendation for the Philadelphia job is that he managed hard-to-handle Richie Allen through one highly successful minor league season . . .

With television's ban on cigarette commercials going into effect next year, the networks and the major league clubs are frantically trying to find substitute sponsors.

In the past the main sponsors have been beer, gasoline and cigarette companies. One TV man says that the likely replacements for cigarettes will be cigars and pipe tobacco.

ONE OF THE BEST CRACKS OF THE YEAR was delivered a few days ago when a fellow revealed, "I woke up this morning with the weirdest feeling. Suddenly, I didn't care if Joe Namath ever played football again.". . .

The Detroit Tigers were responsible for one of the top oddities of the 1969 baseball season the past week in Oakland. In three games with the A's, the Bengals scored 12 runs, . . and every run was accounted for by a home run. . . .

Joe Hicks was scheduled to referee the Auburn-Clemson game on Oct. 11 but was recently switched to another game for a very good reason: his daughter married Auburn quarterback Pat Sullivan this summer. . . .

Dizzy Dean is still laying 'em in the aisles with his explanation of why he left school after the third grade: "If I would have gone on to the fourth grade, I would have passed my daddy."

MELNYK WINS—

to be runner-up three times in a row.

The 26-year-old Giles, recent Virginia Law School graduate, shot a final round 37-34—72 and wound up with a seven-over-par 291. He was two strokes ahead of Miller, the University of Georgia insurance major, who took a 37-37—74 on the final 18 holes for a 293.

Melnyk faltered a little on the back nine as he did in every round but the first, but his big lead was enough of a cushion.

"I'm scared of that back nine," he said. "Those five or six holes — I bogeyed 11, took a double bogey on 13 and bogeyed 16."

Melnyk, the 1969 Western Amateur champion led all the way in the four-day tournament. He started with a one-under par 70 Wednesday, added rounds of 73 Thursday and Friday and wrapped it up with pressure-packed 70 Saturday. He said after the initial round he was a good front runner and then went out and proved it.

The 6-foot-1 Melnyk took all the suspense out of the tournament with a four-under-par 32 on the front nine Saturday. After bogeying the first hole for the fourth day, everything was downhill for the bulging Georgian.

By the time he made the turn playing opposite Giles, he had increased to eight his lead over the two runnerups. They started the day with Melnyk at 216 and Giles and Miller at 219. While Melnyk, who had eagles on the 534-yard fourth, was charging successfully, Giles and Miller succumbed to the fast greens and well-bunkered course. In fourth place at 295 with a final round 37-33—70, was Robert Zender, Skokie, Ill., a 26-year-old stock broker. Tied at 296 were John Farquhar of Amarillo, Tex., and Tommy Watson of Shawnee Mission, Kan., Dr. Ed Updegraff, veteran Walker Cup player from Tucson, Ariz., was next at 297, with England's Rodney Foster and former champion Charley Coe deadlocked at 298.

HEARTWELL RAISES $300 FOR GIRL'S HEART SURGERY

The Heartwell Men's Club have raised $300 to underwrite expenses for a 12-year-old girl who will undergo open heart surgery.

Kathy Hoveywill will have surgery performed Monday at the Balboa Naval Hospital and Heartwell rallied to support her.

She will present trophies to the winners of a best-ball tournament starting at 7:30 this morning.

Brewer's 66 Takes Lead

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Gay Brewer, who claims he suffers from success, fired a sizzling 4-under-par 66 Saturday for a two-round total of 7-under-par 134 and the 36-hole lead in the $100,000 Greater Hartford Open Golf tournament.

Brewer was one shot ahead of Phil Rodgers and Bob Lunn, who carded identical 67-68 scores for the two round totals of 135.

Jack Nicklaus, Al Balding, Bert Greene and Dave Hill stayed in contention with 36-hole scores of 136.

Brewer, 1967 Masters champion and Ryder Cup member, overcame bogeys on the first and ninth holes with three birdies, including a 30-foot putt on the fourth, for a front-nine total of 2-under-33.

The 13-year pro out of Dallas, Tex., said he is playing well after finally "recovering" from the success of his Masters win.

"The committments that go along with the honor affected my playing," he said.

Brewer, who has not won a tourney since that Masters victory, although he has won $40,112 on the current tour, said. "I've been playing a lot better in the last two months."

Rodgers, who was paired with Brewer and Mac McClendon, credited Brewer with helping him score his 68. His round included the tournament's first eagle with "three perfect shots" on the par-5 502-yard second hole.

He dropped a 25-footer for a bird on the fourth and narrowly missed a 20-footer for a par 4 on the 12th. Rodgers, who called his two rounds "one of the best I've ever had," said Brewer's pointers in the clubhouse prior to Saturday's round helped him.

BILLIE JEAN ADVANCES

Laver, Ralston, Ashe Winners

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Rod Laver, claiming, "You can't live on a reputation," registered his 26th consecutive victory Saturday to gain the fourth round of the $137,000 U.S. Open Tennis Championships along with Americans Arthur Ashe and Dennis Ralston.

The red-haired Australian, who hasn't lost a match since the week before Wimbledon and is seeded No. 1 here, moved closer to completing the first grand slam by a professional as he beat Jaime Fillol of Chile, 8-6, 6-1, 6-2, on the center court of the West Side Tennis Club.

Ashe, the defending champion from Gum Spring, Va., lost a service duel with Jim Osborne in the first set but recovered to wear down the Hawaiian, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2, and Ralston got his wish for a showdown with Laver by subdueing Tom Gorman of Seattle, 11-9, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

It was a great day for the American women as they qualified four women in as many matches for berths in the quarter-finals.

Billie Jean King, the No. 3 seed from Long Beach, showed the way by routing Denise Carter of Los Altos, Calif., 6-1, 6-3.

Laver, who has not been beat since he lost to compatriot John Newcombe in the Queen's Club tournament in June, has captured six consecutive titles since then. He started off shakily against the unseeded Fillol, dropping his very first service of the first game, but he wasn't broken again throughout the match.

"I felt I was hitting the ball quite well," Laver said. "I served well and that makes it easier."

Fillol, although eight years younger than his 31-year-old opponent, said he was tired out by Laver's game by the second set.

"I never played against anyone who returned so fast," said the recent graduate of the University of Miami. "I was hoping he would not return my service."

Ralston, the 16th-seed from Bakersfield, flatly stated earlier this week, "I hope I stay alive long enough to meet Laver. I'd like to be the one to stop the grand slam." He almost blew his chance by getting off to a slow start against Gorman but he struggled through for the victory.

Ashe, who is seeded fourth although he is the defending champion, also started slow and dropped his first set against Osborne. But he was effective with his strong serve and got his big points with it when he needed them.

DODGERS--

tough. Anyway, with this batting style, I think I'm capable of .330 this year — that's my goal — and next year, .400."

Davis' only hit of the evening came in the sixth inning, his third time at bat. It was a hard grounder right at Richie Allen at first base. Richie scooped it, then lost it and, after a delay, the play was ruled a base hit.

DODGER OF DAY

TED SIZEMORE drove in Dodgers' first run and scored second in 2-0 victory over Philadelphia.

The Dodgers got the only runs of the game in the fifth.

Jerry Johnson, who'd lost to the Dodgers and Osteen two weeks ago in Philly, had permitted just two singles through four innings.

But he walked Jim Lefebvre to open the fifth. A passed ball allowed Frenchy to reach second and Ted Sizemore, continuing his hot hitting, singled to left-center to score Lefebvre and snap the scoreless duel.

Osteen, who had two singles himself for the night, lined one to right that sent Sizemore to third. Maury Wills then scored Sizemore with an infield out.

The Phillies, meantime, got nowhere against Osteen who's allowed the enemy only eight earned runs his last 58 2-3 innings. He's already hurled three shutouts this month and was well on his way to a fourth when he was forced to the bench in the eighth.

Comer rang up eight strikeouts in his seven-plus rounds, the most he's whiffed since he nailed 10 Giants last month. Osteen fanned Richie Allen three times and Mikkelsen got him once.

"My control was much better tonight," Osteen said after he left the game. "I was driving hard toward the plate and, I don't know, maybe that's the thing that did it. The leg in which I pulled the muscle is the one I push off with so that makes it all the worse.

Osteen's ERA dropped to 2.45 with his seven shutout innings but the thing the Dodgers are interested in now is the infirmary report.

DODGER DOINGS: Reliever Jim Brewer, still in traction at Centinela Valley Hospital, says he's feeling better and he thinks the back is loosening up some. Trainer Bill Bakker anticipates another couple of days of traction for Brew. He's been in traction some 48 consecutive hours.

In the 17 games prior to Saturday, Ted Sizemore had hiked his batting average 72 points, from .248 to .276 . . . Teddy, a solid candidate for National League rookie honors, has played in all but three of the Dodgers' 129 games . . . The Kids beat the Dads, 15-0, in the pre-game contest Saturday.

Dodger pinch-hitters are averaging .285 (before Saturday's game), with 44 hits in 154 tries . . . Len Gabrielsen is the leader at .357 (10-for-28) and also has five RBI and one homer as a pinch swinger . . . Maury Wills has hit safely in all but 16 of the 74 games he's played as a Dodger . . . Saturday's centennial celeb was former Cincinnati Red great Myron (Mike) McCormick.

McLaren, Hulme Race Favorites

ELKHART LAKE, Wis. (UPI) — If practice runs were an indication, the road America course could be in for quite a beating today.

Three drivers, including the invincible duo of Denis Hulme and Bruce McLaren, broke the one-lap course record in qualifying for the Canadian-American Challenge Cup series race.

Renault Captures South African Rally

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP) — A Renault, driven by Chris Swanepoel and Gus Crous, was the first across the finish line Saturday in the 12th annual international South African rally, regarded by many as the most brutal race of its kind for both man and machine.

Only nine of the 73 cars which started the event Tuesday finished. An Alfa Romeo was second and a Volvo third.

Aronow Wins Speedboat Title

COWES, England (UPI) — Don Aronow of Florida, with a record speed of 66 mph, virtually clinched the world champion powerboat championship Saturday when he won the Daily Express Cowes-Torquay-Cowes 236-mile race in 3 hours, 33 minutes.

Aronow, the designer of "Cigarette," the winning boat, said, "Everything went beautifully. I only really opened up later."

"I sprained my elbow last week and I would have been very uncomfortable if it had been any rougher."

When Good Ends Get Together, It's a Ball

BILLY PARKS
Hobnobs With Trojan

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Football coaches contend there is no substitute for experience and Cal State Long Beach all-America Billy Parks couldn't agree more.

"I was in a situation where I really learned a lot this summer," Parks reported while going through fall drills at Cal State Long Beach.

"I became good friends with USC's end, Bob Chandler, and we worked out together all the time."

Chandler and Parks, along with 49er quarterback Shawn McKinney, worked out at least three times a week at a park in Culver City through July and August.

"It was really great," Parks reports. "There were other athletes there. Our defensive backs came up now and then and if we had a four-on-four game, I'd catch as many passes in two hours as I would in a normal week of practice.

"Chandler was a big help to me. He was a defensive halfback and he has 4.6 speed, so whenever he was matched against me, he would tell me if I was giving away a particular pattern. We'd always try and help each other. We hope we'll both be better for it."

Better for Parks would border on the fantastic. In two years at Cal State, Parks has caught 147 passes for 2,495 yards and 20 touchdowns.

In his first two years, however, Parks was often able to run "ad lib" patterns. Is that something that will change this year?

"I really don't think so, too much," Parks says. "I don't think it will be too much of an adjustment. Coach (Chuck) Boyles has fantastic patterns with several alternatives to each so I don't think I'll have much difficulty in getting open."

Parks is currently going through his first sessions with the new 49er football staff after missing spring drills with a broken ankle.

He will be among 67 athletes who transfer practice from Cal State to Terminal Island this afternoon.

Is he optimistic about this season's football team?

"I really am," Parks admits. "I've never been as occupied with football as I am now. It's that way with a lot of the guys on the team.

"Did you see some of the linemen in the squad meeting? They're huge.

"And look at the coaching staff. Coach (Jim) Stangeland, coach Boyle, coach (Bill) Miller and coach (Ernie) Johnson all have experience. They're all specialists. I don't think there's a defense they don't know how to score against."

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Veterans' Shoots Get Official OK

This country has heard much about the "bad" side of guns in the last few years. I have pointed out consistently in all that time that there is a "good" side, namely for guns used for sporting purposes, such as hunting legal game, trap and skeet shooting.

Out of all the gun legislation proposed — some accepted, some rejected — there came one California law this year that is very good. Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr. pushed through his measure to have the Fish and Game Commission authorize special hunts for servicemen and veterans. Gov. Ronald Reagan signed the measure without much fanfare, yet the bill means much to disabled veterans.

It gives the commissioners the right to issue special permits for disabled veterans to shoot legal game from vehicles. Marler pointed out that many handicapped veterans, some even amputees, still enjoyed hunting, and that the program might mean much in their rehabilitation.

The bill, which becomes Section 317 of the Fish and Game Code, becomes effective 61 days after adjournment of the California Legislature's veto session, now in progress.

So, the measure won't do the disabled veterans much good this year. However, special hunts such as these have been arranged in the past and wardens have turned their backs, even though they realized such a plan was not legal. The Knights Landing Sportsmen's Club, in Northern California, has been supervising such hunts for years.

AS THE ALBACORE MOVE NORTHWARD and fin their noses at most of us, look for more activity at ports north of Long Beach. H & M of San Diego, which seems to run boats in every direction in its search for fish, has decided to go into competition with some central coastal ports by buying Cabrillo Landing at Santa Barbara.

H & M plans to move its H & M 85, its Spitfire (an oldtimer around this harbor and Pierpoint Landing) and a newly purchased boat, Lorraine II, to Santa Barbara, where skippers will continue their runs for albacore as the fish move northward. A large school was sighted late last week 20 miles south, southwest of Santa Rosa Island.

Pierpoint, of course, already has made its plans for running its big 85-footers out of Virg's Landing at Morro Bay just as soon as the albies show in that area in enough quantities to justify "albacore specials."

Those darned albacore are just as unpredictable as salmon, once the salmon reach the ocean. Just as an example of something that nobody ever expected, a boat out of Oxnard got into a school of migrating salmon the other day off Point Mugu.

When day was done and the count made, the Channel Islands Sport-fishing Landing had 25 salmon aboard. The smallest weighed 20, the largest 34.

SPEAKING OF SALMON, JED WELSH, Long Beach tackle manufacturer, is back from a peddling trip in the San Francisco Bay region. Jed claims he didn't fish on the entire trip, and that I don't believe. That nutty fisherman would drop a hook in a bucket of water in the middle of Death Valley.

Anyhow, Jed says anglers in San Francisco Bay are taking salmon and striped bass in large numbers, particularly at a spot called Deep Hole. Jed says he doesn't know where that is. Another ha ha!

He continues: "The boats that are fishing outside the Golden Gate are really slaughtering salmon with frozen herring rigs and the three-pound drop-off sinkers. It isn't the sportiest type of fishing and sometimes it can be costly.

"The three-pound sinkers cost about a buck each. When anything hits the bait, even a jellyfish, the sinker drops off and the angler starts reeling in whatever it is. The boat doesn't stop and the other 12 or 14 passengers keep watching their own rigs.

"You don't pump in a fish; you just turn the handle of the reel. If you start pumping, the skipper yells at you, 'Hey, you Southern California rube, don't do that; you'll lose your fish. We don't fish that way up here.' "

IN MORE REMARKS ABOUT FISHING outside the Gate, Jed says:

"When you get the salmon close to the boat, the skipper gets out a net large enough to rescue three drowning men. If you suddenly bounce your fish on the deck as we do bonito and barracuda off Long Beach, the skipper again screams at you: 'Hey, Rube, we don't treat kings and chinooks like that. Whereya from, Long Beach or Los Angeles?'

"Oddly enough, the salmon fishermen, 12 to 15 on a boat and trolling rigs at the same depth (about 35 feet), really get mad if they hook a striper, or madder yet if a stray halibut comes up and takes a nip at the bait. They usually curse their luck, saying unprintable words, when they catch striped bass and halibut. They also bemoan that buck they lost when the sinker fell off and went to the bottom.

"There are lots of salmon off Half Moon Bay and not far out, but the goofy anglers there want rockfish. They will go through a school of salmon to catch a sackful of rockfish of any kind.

"At times, a small boater will get out into the thick of the salmon school and come in with a limit in short order while the rockfish guys are knocking themselves out trying to fill their sacks."

That's Jed's story and I am wondering how he knows so much about the salmon fishing if he just went north to peddle the terminal tackle that he manufactures.

Grambling vs. Alcorn A&M in Coliseum Classic

With special dispensation from the NCAA to start practice a week early, the Grambling College, La., and Alcorn A&M, Miss., football squads are preparing for their clash at the Coliseum Friday night, Sept. 12.

The game will pit the nation's two top-ranked black college gridiron teams. Last year Alcorn A&M scored a shocking 28-13 victory over Grambling and went on to win the conference and national championship.

The game will be sponsored by the Los Angeles Urban League, with proceeds going to its many charity causes. Billed as the Freedom Classic, the evening also will feature the famed Grambling marching band. This 135-man group also rates as a perennial national champion in its field.

Grambling claims the national black college football title five of the past six years.

ALL THINGS CONSIDERED . . .

Computer Tabs Dodgers

By BUD GOODE

Remember the line, " . . . because of the nail the shoe was lost . . . because of the shoe the horse was lost . . . and because of the horse the war was lost?"

In the National League West there are five contenders. Four of them are going to lose the race.

What are the contenders' weaknesses—the one "horseshoe nail" which will cost them the pennant?

For Cincinnati and Atlanta it is clutch pitching. The Reds are allowing 33.1 per cent of all opponent base runners to score, weakest in the league. Atlanta allows 32.6 per cent of opposition base runners to come home. Only Cincy is weaker.

COMPUTER CORNER

Compare the Reds' poor 33.1 per cent clutch pitching figure with the other contenders — Dodgers (27.7), San Francisco (29.1), and Houston (29.8). The Reds and Braves are more than 5 per cent weaker than the other contenders.

You can't win a pennant with pitchers who are last in line.

The horseshoe nail for the Dodgers, San Francisco and Houston is the lack of power hitting. Computer Corner poured the season statistics into our Univac sports analyzer to measure the percentage of hits which go for extra bases. These weighted figures for the contenders put Cincinnati on top with 12.5 per cent; San Francisco, 9.5 per cent; Atlanta, 9.4 per cent; Houston, 8.4 per cent, and the Dodgers, 8.3 per cent.

Only St. Louis (8.2) and San Diego (7.6) are weaker than L.A.

FORTUNATELY FOR the Dodgers, San Francisco and Houston, power hitting is not the most important batting factor.

Using Computer Corner's figures, Atlanta and Cincinnati are scratched from contention in the National League West, leaving the field to San Francisco, the Dodgers and Houston. The Dodgers have the edge.

Atlanta and Cincinnati managers are advised not to fold, staple and mutilate this report.

Lakewood Boy National Jr. Skating Champ

Young Curt Craton's career is rolling right along toward the 1972 Olympic Games.

Craton, 14, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Craton, 20109 S. Fallon Ave., Lakewood, has returned from Little Rock, Ark., where he and his partner, Karen Chute 12, of Orange won the Junior CRATON Dance title in the annual North American Roller Skating Championships.

Craton is pointing toward the '72 Olympics at Munich where roller skating will be added to the Olympic agenda.

Inboards Go at Stadium Labor Day

The annual Pilot Club of Long Beach Labor Day Regatta Monday at the Marine Stadium, sponsored by the Southern California Speedboat Club, is a big mouthful to swallow, but that official title means more to Long Beach than just different types of small boats, all inboards, racing around a course.

There have been all kinds of races at the Marine Stadium this year, some good, some bad, some excellent, but the Labor Day program probably deserves more attention than all the others. It is for charity, with the major portion of the money going to help the handicapped through California Rehabilitation Industries, Long Beach El Cerrito Hospital and other agencies needing help in the Long Beach area.

The Pilot Club actually is an organization of women and is classified as a service organization for business, professional and executive women in Long Beach. The club is 25 years old and its basic principles are service and friendship.

The annual Labor Day Regatta is just one of the ways the members raise money for charitable work. They will be giving much of their time on Labor Day to the promotion of the events.

As for the races, top event of the day will be the National for the K-Inboard Unlimited Runabout Class. The record is held by Charles Hammill, Hollywood, who set the mark of 66.914 mph in April of this year.

Other circle races scheduled for the afternoon program will be the SK and E Racing Runabouts, Crackerboxes and Hydros ranging from 150 to 850 horsepower. Elimination heats start in the morning, with the real battles beginning at noon.

Fiat 124 Spider with dual overhead cams. Styled by Pininfarina. High output engine. 5-speed forward, fully synchromeshed transmission. 4-wheel disc brakes. Radial tires.

Lakers Telecast 24 Games on Road

Twenty-four of the Lakers' 41 road games will be televised, including four against San Francisco and two against Milwaukee, which features Lew Alcindor.

Only Atlanta, which plays in a gym not suitable for color television, will not be seen. Every other NBA club will be on at least twice, except Detroit.

KTLA, channel 5, will handle the play-by-play with Laker announcer Chick Hearn doing a simulcast on KABC (790) radio.

The Lakers also play 41 games at home, including 19 on Friday and 17 on Sunday. The Sunday games start at 7 p.m., the others at 8.

Sixteen of the Lakers' home games will be held in February and March. In the same span, they will play only five times on the road.

The Lakers open camp Sept. 18, following an intra-squad game at Long Beach City College Sept. 9. They play 11 exhibitions, including a TV game from Phoenix Oct. 3 and a home game against San Diego Oct. 6. That Forum date is part of a doubleheader with Phoenix and San Francisco.

13,599 See N. Brother Romp Home

By DAVE DANIEL

Nuther Brother captured the juvenile male championship of the Los Alamitos quarter horse racing season Saturday night with an easy, expected win in the $12,000 Los Ninos purse.

The bay son of the famed Go Man Go was a prohibitive 1-5 favorite in the race and paid only $2.60, $2.40 and $2.10 for his 17.9 clocking before 13,559 fans.

With Robert Adair picking up his second win of the evening, Nuther Brother ran his record to six wins in eight starts and moved his earnings past the $40,000 mark. Longshot Moolah Rocket was a length behind the winner and paid $7.80 to place while second favorite Kansas Jet, which suffered his first career loss, was third and returned $2.80.

Kipty's Goldangel won the seventh race and paid $11.40.

Classy Toni was the first of three longshots in a row that opened the night's card as early comers wagered $86,610 on the daily double — easily the highest amount this year and the eighth highest in the 18-year history of the track.

Classy Toni paid $31 with Terry Lipham up and then Harley Crosby booted home Sam's Night Out for a $16.20 return and a $433.20 daily double.

Three Calls, ridden by James Riley, continued the high-priced payoff totals with a $23.80 return in the third race as favored Dial Fast was second in the 549-yard event.

It wasn't until the fourth race when Gotta Bar Too won that a favorite got in the winner's circle. With Ronald Banks, a two-time riding champion at the Orange County track, up, Gotta Bar Too paid $5.60 for a swift 17.9 clocking over 350 yards.

Adair, the current leader and defending champion, won the marathon 870-yard fifth race aboard Blazing Harry for a $18.20 payoff.

Four horses — the winner, Billy Gabbart, Pacific Storm and King of Ten, staged a stirring, stride-for-stride, side-by-side stretch run coming off the turn together.

Banks won the riding title during the spring 1962 meeting and was the only rider to break up Charley Smith's domination of the jockey championship. He captured the crown again at the spring 1966 meeting. Smith won it every other time from the fall of 1961 to the fall of 1967 — a total of 11 championships.

Smith took the sixth race aboard Trucklin Man for a $15.20 return as favored Mi Pie was out of the money.

RICH RUIDOSO RACE MON.

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) —Ten fast 2-year-olds will run Monday in Ruidoso Downs' $600,000 All-American Futurity, billed as the richest horse race in the world.

Three Ohs won $160,373 for owner D. G. Strole of Abilene, Tex., in last year's All-American for quarter-horses, better than $8,000 a second for the 20.06-second, 400-yard sprint.

This year's top qualifier of 101 entries in the trials is Miss Three Wars. Owned by Paul Travis of Leonard, Mich., she won her trials heat in 19.96 seconds.

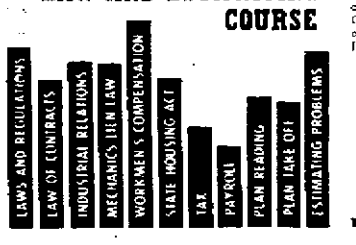

Bruiser at Forum

Dick the Bruiser, one of pro wrestling's superstars, has been signed to meet Verne Gagne at the Forum Saturday night.

Playing DMZ Outfield Dangerous

The letter was delivered to Shea Stadium.

It was written by an Army corporal serving near the DMZ in Vietnam and said:

"Dear Mets:

"The other day some of the guys in my outfit were playing ball and one of them hit the ball into an area mined by the VC. Since none of us wanted to be a hero and play John Wayne, nobody went after the ball and now we can't play.

"That is why we are writing to you to ask if you could please send us a ball."

The problem was taken care of by the Mets.

GOLFER Arnold Palmer says he is looking forward to doing things he hasn't done in years — such as going to football games — if a hip ailment prevents him from returning to the pro golf tour this fall.

GOLF'S all-time leading moneywinner said he would sit down with his physician Tuesday for a re-examination. But he said it would be no great catastrophe if his return to the tour is delayed.

ATOMIC WINGS FLIES; $1,192.20 DOUBLE

DEL MAR—Living up to her name, Atomic Wings flew to an upset victory Saturday in the $65,225 Del Mar Debutante, registering what is believed to be the fastest time in history by a 2-year-old filly for six furlongs, 1:08 3-5.

Under a stirring ride by jockey Donald Pierce, Atomic Wings gamely fought off the stretch bid of favored Minstrel Miss to tally by 1¼ lengths after leading virtually from the break.

Despite a victory early this summer over Minstrel Miss in the Junior Miss Stakes, Atomic Wings was slightly overlooked in the wareging and returned $21, $7 and $4.20. Minstrel Miss, sent postward at 4-5 by her supporters in a crowd of 15,769, returned $3 and $2.40 and Regal Wine $3.

Sonny Dress took the second race in a resounding $139.80 upset to complete a $1,192.20 daily double, largest of the meeting, from Tre's Pal, $13.20 winner of the opener.

Fast Hilarious Pulls Upset In American 'Cap

United Press International

Fast Hilarious, a speed horse with no reputation for staying power, upset the experts Saturday night and led from wire to wire to capture the 1⅛-mile American Derby at Arlington Park in a photo finish over Night Invader.

Fast Hilarious, winning for the 10th time in 25 starts, drew the No. 1 post position in the 10-horse field in the $100,000 stake and, carrying 114 pounds with jockey Laffit Pincay, got out of the gate first and never was headed.

Gallant Bloom pulled away from Shuvee in the backstretch and then hauled down Pit Bunny midway through the stretch to win the $50,000-added Gazelle Handicap by 3½ lengths at Belmont Park, virtually clinching the 3-year-old filly championship.

The sleek daughter of Gallant Man left little doubt about who was the best horse on the track as she left Shuvee, supposedly her keenest rival, far back and easily disposed of the front-running Pit Bunny to win going away.

Pit Bunny finished second, three lengths ahead of the late-rushing Shuvee.

Fort Marcy, rested more than a month, returned to familiar stomping grounds and closed with a rush under vigorous urging of jockey Manny Ycaza to nip Balustrade at the wire and win the $30,000-added Kelly-Olympic Handicap run over the turf course at Atlantic City.

Fort Marcy, the 1967 grass champion, broke seventh from the gate and didn't make his bid until half of the 1⅛ miles had been run.

The solidly-built gelding by Amerigo moved into third in the backstretch and picked up momentum rounding the stretch turn.

DISSOLUTION WITHOUT DISILLUSION ?

By DIANNE SMITH

"To have and to hold from this day forward . . ."

So states part of most vows repeated during marriage ceremonies, and there were 280,000 performed in California last year alone. That the blissful happiness doesn't last forever is evidenced by the 116,000 divorces in the state during the same period. Another 130,000 are predicted this year.

Statistics show one in every three marriages ends in divorce court.

Until the past legislative session, this process often led to bitter and explosive courtroom battles in California, as one or the other spouse tried to prove fault in order to be awarded divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

After hearing the evidence, a judge would grant a divorce to either the plaintiff or defendant. Under the new law reform, there is no divorce, merely a dissolution of the marriage due to irreconcilable differences. The two parties appear in court as petitioner and respondent.

DURING THE DEBATE in Sacramento on the merits and demerits of the bill, (the final form was drafted by a conference committee of Assembly and Senate members) much controversy was generated.

The Assembly version was introduced by Long Beach Republican James E. Hayes, while the Senate counterpart was the work of Watsonville Republican Donald L. Grunsky.

One group of women who claimed the bill was a man's law and would destroy the institution of marriage held a marriage license burn-in outside Hayes' Long Beach office.

However, a sampling of opinion among Long Beach-Harbor area residents showed favorable reaction to the new law which now awaits Gov. Ronald Reagan's signature. When he signs it, the law goes into effect Jan. 1, 1970.

The compromise bill follows the original Hayes version with amendments by Grunsky and is designed to avoid bitter courtroom duels between husband and wife, which often find the children forced to take sides.

As Assemblyman Hayes pointed out, "This is not a man's law, it is not a woman's law. It is a children's law."

LONG BEACH Attorney Robert B. White, whose specialty is divorce proceedings, said the new legislation merely puts into law what already has been practiced by some judges, particularly in the South District.

A veteran of 33 years in the legal profession, White said the new law won't make divorce any easier and may keep California residents in California rather than going to Nevada or Mexico.

"I think it's a good law. The purpose of the interlocutory period is to allow the husband and wife a chance to reconcile. The new law will save a lot of bickering. There's a better chance of reconciliation if the couple doesn't have to air problems in open court," added the attorney, who served on the Blue Ribbon Committee of the Los Angeles County Bar Association which analyzed the law and made suggestions for changes.

All legal representatives interviewed said the elimination of fault in divorce proceedings would expedite cases through the courts.

Judge pro-tem Rolland Truman of Long Beach Superior Court said he expected to see few contested divorces under the new law.

Attorney White said it will end the "cluttering up of the court system by divorce cases," noting a judge should be able to determine a case in 15 or 20 minutes instead of days or weeks.

"He'll only have to look at financial matters and

ACTRESS JOAN HOTCHKIS ANTICIPATES FALL

. . . prior to filming a new TV series, she helped restore memorabilia found in Rancho Los Alamitos. Her family has donated the historic ranch to the City of Long Beach.

By JUDY COOL

"I'm considering taking a one-day course in a nudist colony."

Well, alright, when an actress makes a statement like that you accept it as a professional ploy to grab headlines.

When the declaimer is the great-granddaughter of John W. Bixby, renowned developer of Rancho Los Alamitos, and the daughter of Preston Hotchkis, a Presidential appointee to the United Nations, you aren't exactly prepared for such a pronouncement.

But that's what Joan Hotchkis said in a recent interview. And more.

"My background (the family, private schools and degrees from Smith and Bank Street College) laid stress on outer form at the expense of inner feeling," auburn-haired Miss Hotchkis explained.

"I'm proud of my family but accept the fact that my expression was blocked. It's important to me that I now find personal meaning rather than social approval."

Perhaps it was her present assignment as the leading lady in NBC-TV's new family series, "My World and Welcome To It," that motivated her, as she put it, "to discover myself." More likely it's a desire to "become the person I really am instead of the person people think I should be.

"No one wants to get close to Miss Adequate," Miss Hotchkis said. "I believe I've been a goodie-goodie long enough."

HOW IS SHE going about changing herself? By taking a series of private and group lessons. The diminutive, 116-pound actress has just finished a course in fighting — not the karate kind — the verbal version.

"I didn't know how to talk back to anyone, much less defend myself," she contended. "Now I think I'm getting the guts to stand up for what I consider to be real and risk social disapproval."

Presently she's participating in a program with 15 other people where they test their impact on one another. These four-hour, once-a-week sessions are critical, no-holds-barred discussions designed to force each person to take

Who cares about age? Wilson alums do!

POLY HIGH COED OF 1925

. . . incorrectly identified as Wilson student of 1941, caused furor among alums of World War II vintage.

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

Hell hath no fury like a woman labeled older than she is.

Proof is the deluge of phone calls from indignant, outraged women the morning after a photo of a 1925 Poly High School coed appeared in the I, P-T with a caption erroneously identifying her as a 1941 Wilson High student.

"If you don't print a retraction, a group of us '41 Wilson High alums are going to wait for you outside the newspaper."

"I'm insulted!"

"I was horrified when I saw THAT picture."

"My daughter already thinks I belong to the horse-and-buggy era — NOW the paper prints a World War I maiden, calling her a 1941 coed!"

This is a sampling of printable comments that were shouted into my ear by incensed Wilson alumna of 1940 vintage.

Extra operators were called to man the I. P-T switchboard. All employes were alerted to voice soft apologies to weeping women, use humor with belligerent callers and speak in soothing tones to more threatening types.

Amidst the bedlam, this reporter took four aspirins, donned ear plugs and searched through picture files to uncover the source of the faulty caption.

The culprit turned out to be a mischievous gremlin who dwells deep in the printing press.

Reactions to the explanation ran along similar lines:

"Hmmmmmph, what kind of excuse is that?"

"Well, why doesn't that gremlin

Guys out to look--gals to lunch

A NEW SEASON is upon us, the Out to Lunch sign is up and women are flocking like lemmings to see what the next fashion will be.

Lunch 'n fashion has been the female reply to the male golf-on-Wednesday . . . and often proves equally expensive.

The Wednesday golf game expands to Saturday, while the ladies seem to prefer munching and musing any day.

One day on the visual intake circuit provided me with some habits in habitats of the look-and-lunch set.

Victor Hugo's red-on-red surroundings were plush enough for the California Mannequin's furs and furbelows.

The dining room was predominantly male with infusions of neatly dressed females. Nothing startling in fashions seen in the audience, but the wearers expressed interest in the return-to-the-30s look in clothes and hair styles.

The powers at Ball, Hunt, Hart and Brown had to answer their own phones while the full office force took a long lunch at Victor Hugo's to wish fellow employee Susan Chuck, (Mrs. Bob Wells) merry matrimony.

Combining business with visual pleasure was Albert V. Cocking, president of Geotronics who brought business associate from Maryland, Julien Forget. Both men approved of fashion shows and liked the models clothed. No topless buffs they.

The men like to have their wives join them occasionally for lunch even though it usually means a new outfit.

ALWAYS fashionable Wilma (Mrs. Dave) Bryant lunched at Buffum's Terrace room where her red, white and blue middy over white pleated skirt could have placed in the show.

Admittedly checking the "look" for a forthcoming around the world vacation wardrobe, Wilma noted: "Everything comes up jumpers!"

A "MOD" LY attractive foursome, Carla Chiodi, Mike Machkowsky, Elliot Sax and Jan De Lozier were "pant"ing over lunch at May Co.

"The long suit in fashion at May Co. is still pants but the lunchees were miniskirted.

TWENTY-FIVE years might seem like a long wait for a wedding cake but Marion and Shearl Neel agree it was worth it.

The brief ceremony in the minister's home during the war years allowed no time for the traditional reception so family and friends gathered to give them a belated three-tier-with-bride and-groom - cake on their anniversary.

Their son Bill and his fiancee, Carmela Goins, zipped mom and dad off to an early breakfast while those same good friends transformed the patio for a party.

Friends from rival banks (Marion is a Bank of America exec.), the Dick Shoemakers and Ken Clarks, put away their abaci in favor of forks.

The good neighbor (and family) policy not only included an open house for 70 and a later buffet for 50, but cleanup!

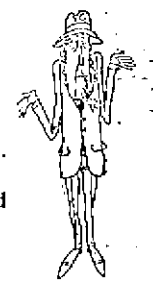

VANILLA 'N CHOCOLATE CHEMISE TO CHARLSTON IS ACCOMPANIED BY THE APPROPRIATE MUSIC FROM THE GUITAR OF JOEL VALDIVIA AT VICTOR HUGO.

ULTIMATE in mufflers is 11 feet of ocelot fringed with red fox by Giorgio De Sant-Angelo for Buffums'.

APPRECIATIVE young audience finds May Co. version of the thrilling thirties well represented by modified mobster pantsuit and sinister fedora.

Vows solemnized in religious rites

Andersen-Robinson

A quiet ceremony Saturday morning in Aloha Chapel united Victoria Lorraine Robinson, daughter of Mrs. John Robinson, 413 E. Sunset St. and the late Mr. Robinson, and Andrew David Andersen, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Andersen of Kerrville, Tex.

Sandra Pope was maid of honor and Ben Luce was best man.

A reception at the home of the bride's mother followed the ceremony. The couple then left for a honeymoon trip to Kerrville where they plan to make their first home. Mrs. Andersen is a graduate of Jordan High School.

McCabe-Rose

Nuptial vows were exchanged Saturday afternoon in First United Methodist Church, Palo Alto, by Shirley Ann Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rose, 5209 Ebell St., and James Guy McCabe.

The bride was attired in a full length gown for her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCabe of Modesto. The bodice was of Venise lace, and the skirt of silk organza with chapel train.

Diane Rose attended as her sister's maid of honor. Serving as best man was Ronald Schmickley while Bonnar Cox ushered.

Mrs. McCabe attended Wilson High School and was graduated from Millikan High School. She is an alumna of University of Redlands where she affiliated with Alpha Sigma Pi. Her husband is a graduate of UC Berkeley.

Following a trip to San Francisco the couple will live in Palo Alto.

Clark-Nelson

A trip to Northern California followed the Saturday evening nuptials at Bethel Lutheran Church of Natalie E. Nelson, daughter of Mrs. William Christian, 261 E. Bort St., and Edward A. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Clark of Compton.

The bride wore a Victorian style gown of lace with ruffles at the neckline and long sleeves. Satin piping trimmed the waist and bodice and the Watteau train cascaded to chapel length.

Mrs. Jerry E. Murphy was matron of honor while Jacquelyn Nelson, sister of bride, was bridesmaid.

Jerry E. Murphy stood as best man. Steven Mathisen and Wally Reed seated 125 guests. Cynthia Horner was flower girl, and Carl Murphy was ring bearer.

Mrs. Clark is a graduate of Jordan High School. Her husband is an alumnus of Dominguez High School and attended Compton Junior College.

A reception at the church and a later party at the home of the bride's parents honored the newlyweds.

Gillman-Woodruff

In the presence of 300 friends and relatives Lenore Jeanne Woodruff married Rodney Earl Gillman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Gillman, 1100 Ridgewood, in Calvary Baptist Church Saturday evening.

The daughter of Mrs. Orville V. Woodruff, 344 E. Harding St. and the late Mr. Woodruff, wore a Victorian gown of candlelight organza and Venise lace.

Sue Woodruff, sister of bride, was maid of honor. Also in attendance were Mrs. Kenneth Giocoletto, Caroline Schmidt, Marla McKee and flower girl, Lori Spiak.

Cliff Coalson was best man. Dennis Johnson, Del Barrett and Max Souder served as ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillman are graduates of Jordan High School and are seniors at California State College at Long Beach.

Following a reception at the church the newlyweds departed for Northern California. They will make their first home in Long Beach.

The Long Beach Branch of Pen Women will serve as co-hostess with the Hollywood branch.

A reception honoring Ramona Graham Cook, national president, will take place at the opening session.

Workshops on writing, poetry, television and radio script preparation, photojournalism, lecturing and interviewing will occupy Saturday.

Mrs. Henry Stone of Long Beach has prepared three rooms of art exhibits for viewing during the day.

National officers and chairmen will be honored during Sunday's breakfast gathering.

Winners of the letters, art and branch history scrapbook contests will be announced following the closing luncheon.

A limited number of non-members may attend by contacting Mrs. Isabel Dunwoody, 4427 Briercrest, Lakewood.

Changing her image not an easy task

a good hard, realistic look at himself.

It was obvious, as she gracefully moved around her Paramount studio dressing room preparing a light, continental lunch for guests, that these group councils are working. The running candor of her remarks proved it.

Such as: "I'm not the marrying kind. I tried it once and am grateful to have a daughter (who's 7½-years-old) as a result. I need freedom and independence. Marriage to me is a burden. Besides, I'm just too involved with myself."

Another outlet, this time physical, is being tried by Miss Hotchkis in her psychic transformation. It's a form of dancing called "primal movement" based on yoga and other Eastern influences.

"It's discipline without rigid form," she advised. "With your eyes closed you emulate the movements of a fish or a snake. I find it enervating and it helps my concentration — even though people on the set first laughed at me when I'd practice between scenes.

"Here's another example of the narrow mindedness of my early training," she went on. "My background was very puritan, very Anglo-Saxon. No one admitted that the body has expression. I'm interested in learning how to use mine as an expressive instrument."

THERE WERE frequent indications, however, that she's not quite on solid ground with all that she professes. After some of her observations she'd laugh nervously with, "Perhaps I shouldn't have said that," or "I'm working my way through on that one."

In any event, the study of the mind is not new to her. A psychology major at Smith with a master's degree in education from Bank Street College, soft-spoken Miss Hotchkis taught at a public day care center and a progressive private school in New York.

She quit both one summer and decided to become an actress training under Sanford Meisner and then Lee Strasberg. Eventually, she became a member of the Actors' Studio.

Since then she's appeared in such Broadway plays as "Advise and Consent"; in summer stock with "Mary, Mary" and "Streetcar Named Desire" and in television's "Hallmark Hall of Fame," "Armstrong Circle Theatre" and "Bewitched."

SOAP OPERA buffs will remember her playing the lead role of Myra Lake in "Secret Storm" for two years.

"My parents didn't mind," she recalled. "They loved me and wanted me to find my way. Father didn't think I had the talent, but we agreed I should give it a try. At the end of the first year I knew I belonged in the profession: I felt at home and alive. Now if I can only cope with my hang-ups—"

MRS. DONALD W. CASKEY

Caskey-Tollefson

A trip to Las Vegas and Yellowstone National Park followed the Saturday evening nuptials of Gayle Marie Tollefson and Donald Wesley Caskey in Our Savior's Lutheran Church.

Among 500 friends and relatives witnessing the ceremony were parents of the couple, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald O. Tollefson, 212 Mira Mar Ave., and Mrs. Viviane Caskey of Pacific Palisades and B. W. Caskey, 2339 Knoxville Ave.

The bride wore a floor length gown featuring an empire bodice with free-floating Alencon lace panels. Peggy Tollefson, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Completing the entourage were Janet Schwartz, Jane Bateman, Christi Tannehill, Analee Wuilkuhle, Betty Wright and flower girl, Lisa Tollefson, sister of bride.

MRS. MICHAEL W. DORNE

DEAR ABBY

Tell mom news yourself now!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last winter I had some extensive surgery and can have no more children. Fortunately I have a little six-year-old son. I didn't tell my parents about my operation at the time because they live far away, couldn't have come anyway, and besides my mother has a heart condition and I didn't want to upset her.

Now my parents are coming to visit me, and I plan to keep quiet about my operation. I've told all my friends and neighbors who know (and that includes about half the town) to please not mention it to my folks. Knowing my mother, she is sure to ask, "When are you going to get busy and have a little sister or brother for Junior?" I don't want to worry her about my condition, but what can I say that will be acceptable? DEPENDING ON YOU

DEAR DEPENDING: Tell your mother the truth. If it's her heart you're concerned about, she'd be better off hearing the news from you at a time of your own choosing than from an absent-minded friend whose mouth works faster than her brain. And if you don't have at least one, you're the lucky exception.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it considered "improper" for a young man and his steady girl jointly to give gifts to either of their relatives or to mutual friends?

Johnny and I are both 18 and we don't have a lot of money, and we can get nicer things if we share the cost.

We have been told that this is "improper" until we are married — or at least officially engaged. What is your opinion? PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: When a gift is sent from a couple it is naturally assumed that the couple is in fact a "couple" legitimately. Joint gifts from officially engaged couples, yes. From "John and Mary," who happen to be going together, no!

DEAR ABBY: This is how my husband put an aggresive young secretary in her place. She asked him if they could have lunch together sometime. He said, "Certainly," so the next day he handed her half of a peanut butter sandwich. STILL LAUGHING

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

VFW card party

Golden State Auxiliary 279, Veterans of Foreign Wars, will host a luncheon and card party Tuesday at Veterans' Memorial Building, Broadway at Cedar Avenue. Proceeds from the 11:45 a.m. event will go to the VFW National Home.

Don Ho opening night benefits Gamma Phi

Gamma Phi Beta alumnae will be among first nighters at the Greek Theater Sept. 8 when Hawaii's favorite son, Don Ho, opens a singing engagement at the outdoor amphitheater.

The event will be the 15th annual charity benefit of the Intercity Council of the sorority.

South Bay festivities will begin with a Hawaiian theme cocktail party at the Rolling Hills home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rice. Following cocktails, the alumnae and their guests will board chartered buses for a picnic dinner in Griffith Park before the show.

Chairman of the benefit is Mrs. Thomas Day of Palos Verdes. Assisting her with arrangements are Mmes. William Furlong of Harbor City, Dale Leisy of Los Alamitos, Robert Mitchell of Sierra Madre and Robert Lee of Palos Verdes Peninsula.

More than $50,000 has been donated in the past 15 years by Gamma Phi Betas as a result of their charity night. Proceeds go to Good Samaritan Hospital and Torrance Memorial Hospital.

Karpin on bridge

by Fred L. Karpin

In all competitive endeavors, there are times when the underdog wins and the favorite loses. Similarly, in bridge, there are occasions when the correct "percentage" play fails, while the against-the-odds play turns out to be the winning one.

The deal shown here is a case in point.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

With West opening a low diamond, declarer was confronted immediately with a problem that could not be deferred: was West leading away from the diamond king?

If so, the winning play would be to play low from dummy. If not, a low card from dummy would enable East to capture the trick with the king; and the success of the contract would then depend on avoiding the loss of a trump trick.

SINCE WEST was a good player, it was a 50-50 proposition as to whether he was leading away from the king or not. But it is a 62 per cent chance that the seven outstanding hearts were divided 4-3.

If this distribution did exist, then South could play the diamond ace, and promptly cash the queen, king, and ace of hearts.

NORTH

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡
Pass	2 ◇	Pass	3 ♡
Pass	3 NT	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠

The diamond queen could then be discarded on the third heart lead.

So declarer availed himself of the percentage play. As can be observed, East ruffed the third heart lead. South overruffed, of course, but he now had to lose a diamond trick and a trump to the king.

It is obvious that if South had played a low diamond from dummy on the opening lead, his queen would have captured the trick, and the slam contract would have been fulfilled.

Unfortunately for South, this happened to be a day when a 50 per cent chance turned out to be better than a 62 per cent chance.

MRS. R. HANSEN

HAWAII, NORTHERN CALIFORNIA TRIPS

Couples repeat vows

Searson-Steffen

A home in Huntington Beach awaits Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Grant Searson (nee Gloria Jean Steffen) following their honeymoon in the Hawaiian Islands.

Married Saturday afternoon in Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Los Alamitos, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar K. Steffen, 801 Lees Ave. She was attired in a princess style gown of Lutesong satin with chapel train. Reembroidered Chantilly lace accented the sleeves and bodice.

Gail Steffen was her sister's maid of honor. Patricia Acree and Linda Bucknam attended as bridesmaids.

Grady Stewart served as best man for the son of Mrs. William McBride, 3621 Pacific Ave. Donald Steffen, brother of bride, and Timothy Sweeney seated guests.

A reception honored the newlyweds at the church.

Cunningham-Wilcoxon

A quiet wedding ceremony Saturday in Las Vegas, Nev., witnessed by 30 guests, united Linda Gale Wilcoxon, daughter of Mrs. Virgina M. Wilcoxon and R. G. Wilcoxon of Lakewood, and Gary Lawrence Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Cunningham of Tacoma, Wash.

The bride wore a short, A-line gown of silk ottoman with lace tiered sleeves. Her sister, Shirley Wilcoxon was maid of honor while Howard L. Cunningham, brother of bridegroom was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham are graduates of Millikan High School and attended Long Beach City College.

After a honeymoon in Las Vegas and San Francisco the newlyweds will live in Westminster. They will be honored at a reception at Calls Fine Arts Center on Sept. 27.

Hansen-Brass

Carmel is destination of a wedding trip by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hansen (nee Penelope Lynn Brass) who were married Saturday afternoon in Blessed Sacrament Church, Westminster.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lorn Brass of Huntington Beach wore an A-line gown of imported silk organza. The empire waist was accented with baby blue satin ribbon and Venice lace highlighted Victorian neckline and cuffs.

Lynn Loth was maid of honor while Mrs. Jeffry Nash and Christine Stowe were bridesmaids.

Richard Lapham served as best man for the son of Mrs. Elwood Hansen of Gardena and the late Mr. Hansen. Jeffrey Nash and William Brass seated 140 guests. Elwood Hansen, brother of bridegroom was ring bearer.

Mrs. Hansen attended California State College at Long Beach where she was on the Dean's and President's Lists. Her husband is a graduate of CSCLB where he affiliated with Circle K and was on the Dean's List.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents before they left for Carmel. They will live in Gardena.

UCLA students wed in Presbyterian rite

Married Saturday in First Orthodox Presbyterian Church were Terry Ann Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Hammond, 4617 Goldfield Ave., and Carlos M. Yordan Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos M. Yordan of Berlin, Germany.

The bride wore an empire gown of saki cloth with standup collar. It was trimmed with appliqued daisies and had a detachable chapel train.

Barbara Black was maid of honor. Attending as bridesmaids were Jana and Shelley, Hammond, sisters of bride, and Katherine Kleinkauf.

Robert Clark served as best man while David Hammond, brother of bride, Dennis McNeal and Gregory Maciulla seated 200 friends and relatives.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony. After a trip to Carmel, Monterey and San Francisco the couple will reside in Westwood.

MRS. C. M. YORDAN JR.

Regatta set to go

With a roar of engines and a spray of water, 11 classes of inboard power boats will race through Long Beach Marine Stadium Monday in the 23rd annual All-Inboard Speedboat Regatta.

The Labor Day event is being sponsored for the 13th year by Long Beach Pilot Club and conducted by Southern California Speedboat Inc. It is sanctioned by the American Powerboat Association.

Qualifying heats will begin at 8:30 a.m., with racing scheduled to begin at noon.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and children under 12 are admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Regatta chairman is Mrs. Mildred Morris. Assisting her are pilots, Mmes. Chodie Ray, Vernon E. Trott, John Halden, Mark Miner and Anna Louise Gruber along with members of the Anchor Club at Jordan High School.

Anchor Club is a service club sponsored by Pilot Club for high school junior and senior girls of good scholastic standing. Led by Judi Rusteun, president, the members will sell programs, greet visitors and award trophies.

GETTING READY FOR THE RACE

. . . Helmets, a must for speedboat drivers, are tried on by Anchor Club president Judi Rusteun assisted by woman competitor Mary West of Pleasant Grove, Utah, and Mellis Herron.

PEDDLING PROGRAMS FOR REGATTA

BETWEEN PARENT & TEENAGER
by Dr. Haim G. Ginott

BESTSELLER NOW SERIALIZED

Not every youth has adopted long hair and granny glasses and not every father is a compulsive preacher; But scarcely a home in the land is untouched by wounds of the parent-teenager relationship.

Dr. Ginott, out of his many years of experience working with parents and teenagers in guidance and psycho-therapy, has written a wonderfully easy-to-read book that should help to bridge today's "generation gap".

Now you can read the 24-part serialization of this famous book. Funny yet painful. Wise and intimate. Don't miss it!

IF MANAGEMENT AND UNIONS WON'T MEET---

How can the curtain rise at the Met?

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 — It may be a war of nerves, but informed people do not think so, and as of this moment they are betting that the curtain of the Metropolitan Opera will not rise on Sept. 15. Some are talking about December, and others believe that there may be no season at all. In the meantime the negotiations between labor and management will have all but come to a halt.

As in previous years, each side is accusing the other of arrogance and bad faith. And each side honestly believes that it has God on its side. The Metropolitan Opera, in a financial squeeze, is horrified at the wage hikes that musicians and chorus members are asking. The musicians and chorus members claim that they are underpaid, and some of them demonstrably are. Both sides will have to meet somewhere in the middle, but right now neither is taking the first step.

All this is indicative of the mess that American musical organizations currently find themselves in. Cultural organizations are faced with a dismal future of rising costs, lessened income, longer seasons and potential bankruptcy. The problem looks all but insoluble, and it is compounded by stupidity in certain top levels of labor and management. Throughout the country there are high officials of symphony orchestras who know and care nothing about music, who detest unions and who secretly would like to see those troublemakers and agitators get a kick in a place where it would do the most good.

NOR HAVE UNIONS made it any easier, and some of their policies are aimed to kill. Unions, for instance, have virtually priced out of the market any domestic recording of opera and symphony. Some union officials are as small-minded as their opposite numbers on symphony boards. And a lot of them are geared not to the needs of orchestral musicians, who are artists, but to the musicians who play in roadhouses and other places of entertainment. That is where the majority of the membership of the various musicians' locals lies. For some years there has been talk of symphony musicians breaking away and forming a craft union of their own.

THE BIG FIVE of American orchestras — Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, New York and Philadelphia, in alphabetical order — are approaching the problem differently. They are not talking merger, but cooperation. Worried about the future, they have been meeting to discuss mutual problems. And they have much to discuss. A set of figures published by them last May shows that since 1963-64 costs have increased by 59 per cent while operating revenues have risen only by 44 per cent. Annual losses have risen from $300,000 to $1.6 million over the same period. The projection for the 1971-72 season indicates an aggregate operating deficit approaching $8 million. This may be equivalent merely to the cost of three helicopters used by the army, but it nevertheless is a lot of money.

How to survive? The conclusion of the big five calls for the complete cooperation, for "A setting in which the presidents and general managers would share ideas and make decisions on questions facing the orchestras — individually and as a group." A program for fund-raising will have to be developed to obtain more funds from the federal government, foundations and corporate donors. These efforts will have to be coordinated. In addition, management and musicians will have to work more closely together.

IT IS INTERESTING that the report of the big five carefully steers away from the touchy subject of government subsidy, aside from one line about seeking more federal funds. Some orchestra managers and presidents believe that government subsidy creates more problems than it solves; and, in some of the more conservative sections of the United States, government subsidy is equated with creeping socialism. The reasoning is faulty, for the government seems to be subsidizing everything in sight — farmers, railroads, airlines, steamship companies, oil companies — and there is no cry of creeping socialism from those beneficiaries.

Whether or not the managers like it, the time is going to come when the various governments — federal, state and local — are going to step in. That, or watch some fine cultural groups go under. It is preposterous that this country does not have in operation the equivalent of the Canadian or British Arts Council. The costs are miniscule, the advantages overwhelming. We do have a kind of Arts Council in Washington. It was headed by Roger Stevens, who resigned when the new administration came in. Nobody has been named to replace him.

Whoever does come in will find that Congress, in its infinite goodness, has provided him with $7 million to minister to the cultural needs of the entire country. During the same period, Austria, with a population of 7.3 million (less than New York City), will be laying out $20 million for its state-owned theaters alone.

CHAMPIONS NAMED

SYMF winners merit concerts

Chamber music winners in the Southwestern Youth Music and Dance Festival which concluded last Sunday at Long Beach City College Auditorium will be presented today in concert at Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. The free program will begin at 2:30 p.m.

Other top winners — of the Furjanick and amateur championship awards — will perform with Long Beach Symphony Orchestra next season under direction of Alberto Bolet.

The festival drew 1,068 participants from Oakland to San Diego.

Furjanick Award winners of $400 each were Susan Svercek, 18, pianist, and Pamela Gates, 27, vocalist. In the orchestral instruments category, the $400 prize was divided between Karen Lindquist, 21, harpist, and Peter Rejto, 19, cellist. Rejto also received the $100 A. B. McReynolds Award for the best string contestant in the festival.

AMATEUR championship winner of $200 was Ralph Alberstrom, 17, pianist.

Chamber music winners who will perform today are, in the trio division, Peter Kent, 18, violinist; Ralph Alberstrom, 17, pianist; and Ken Ishii, 16, cellist. In the sonata division are Peter Kent, 18, violinist; and Patricia Dobiesz, 17, pianist.

Lively launching for LBAA year

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Determined to launch its new exhibition season with a lively show, Long Beach Art Association today opens "Motion and Commotion" in its gallery, 800 E. Ocean Blvd.

Winners, chosen by Betty Ingram of Los Alamitos, are: Loyce Carhart, best of show, "Peace;" Robert Adams, second, "Enveloping Light;" Anna Hayes, third, "Wire." Honorable mentions went to Randy Morich, George Morser and Eleanore Smith.

At the LBAA's Art Fair in Bixby Park, held in conjunction with the International Sea Festival, best of show was awarded to Richard Stine. Loretta De Grandis captured second and Marco Sassone, third. Esther Miller was judged painter of the best nautical theme.

REDESIGNED with "300 percent change," the first International Tactile Art Symposium at California State College, Long Beach, will reopen briefly.

The symposium, under the direction of CSLB associate professor Dr. August F. Coppola, attracted national attention during its original showing in July. It was structured for constant change, with participants modifying and adding exhibits.

Response, literally, was overwhelming, with hundreds of persons lining up to experience the show — an experiment in communication.

The symposium will reopen Thursday and will continue through next Sunday from 4 to 8 p.m. Admission, however, will be by invitation or reservation only. For further information, call the comparative literature department at the college and ask for Jeanne Edmondson or Frances Granger.

TOP WINNER in the Los Angeles All City Outdoor Art Festival was Ed Duin of Hollywood who was awarded the $1,175 Purchase Prize. Arnold Meschkes of Beverly Hills and Karen Mortillaro of Silverlake won 1,000 each.

The total of $10,000 in purchase awards was donated by Home Savings.

Other winners include Willie Suzuki of Torrance, $315 for a lithograph, and Dick Swift of Long Beach, $225 for an intaglio.

'Romantic speculation'

. . . Back in 1491, sea captain Christopher Columbus set out to prove the world was round and to find a trade route to the riches of the Far East. For this, he enlisted the help of Queen Isabella of Spain. Meredith Willson of "Music Man" fame put these circumstances together in "1491, a Romantic Speculation" which will have its world premiere by L. A. Civic Light Opera Tuesday in The Music Center Pavilion. Above, John Cullum as Columbus, Jean Fenn as Isabella.

Richbourg's paintings startling and arresting

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Paintings" by Lance Richbourg at the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., are as startling and arresting a body of work as I have laid eyes on in the last five years.

Max Beckmann, the late German "New Objectivity" painter explained in an address in London in 1939 his non-participation in abstract forms: "The real is unreal enough." Richbourg's work is akin to Beckmann's approach in other aspects.

Richbourg warps space indications and forms of persons and objects, not according to any system, but according to the way he sees the real.

WHILE THE ARTIST notes chic and stylish details of dress and coiffure, there is also a sense of tackiness. Liberties are taken with color which is "super real." Most vivid is No. 9, "Red Plastic Chair," an inflated one in reflecting lacquer reds, almost unbearably red.

Richbourg's subjects, seen in geometric planes and froms, slightly militantly, standing out from the highly decorative backgrounds.

There is a montage of portrait heads, 43 of them in the East Gallery. Each is done in such a unique style as to communicate 43 individuals.

The painter conveys his hard, bright visions with superb technical mastery and yet injects a quality of human intuition that is nigh mystical.

This "must see' exhibt continues through Sept. 21.

'Pajama Game' to initiate musical theater workshop

A Musical Theater Workshop will be offered for the first time this fall by Long Beach City College. Open to persons interested in all phases of musical comedy production, the workshop class (Creative Arts 81) will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays starting Sept. 17 in Room 422 on the Liberal Arts Campus.

The first production of the Musical Theater Workshop will be "Pajama Game," by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross. Herbert Caesar will direct.

Vocal auditions for lead roles and the chorus will be held by Wayne B. Gard, vocal director, from 7 to 10 p.m. Sept. 17 and 24 and from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 28, in Room 422 on the Liberal Arts Campus.

AUDITIONS for dancers are scheduled by Mrs. Dawn Sare, choreographer, from 7 to 10 p.m. Sept. 17 in Room 422, 7 to 10 p.m. Sept. 24 in Room 1013 (women's gymnasium), and 2 to 5 p.m. Sept. 28 in Room 1013.

Arrangements for auditions at other times may be made by calling Gard or Mrs. Sare at the college after the start of the fall term on Sept. 15. Persons interested in other areas of music theater production may obtain further information from Caesar.

To enroll in Creative Arts 81, interested persons should make appointments to register in the Student Personnel Office on the Liberal Arts Campus.

Iron Butterfly to fly in Bowl

The Iron Butterfly will clank its wings one-time-only — Friday night — in Hollywood Bowl. Members of the popular group are Doug Ingle, organist; Ron Bushy, drummer; Erik Brann, guitarist; and Lee Dorman, bass guitarist.

Two-week stand

Singer Frankie Laine, an international favorite for 25 years, will open a two-week engagement at the Cocoanut Grove of the Ambassador, Los Angeles, Tuesday. There will be one show nightly Mondays through Thursdays at 10 p.m.; two on Fridays and Saturdays at 9:30 p.m. and midnight; closed Sundays.

Newley at Greek

Singer - actor - composer-comedian Anthony Newley will appear at the Greek Theater for six performances Sept. 14 through 20.

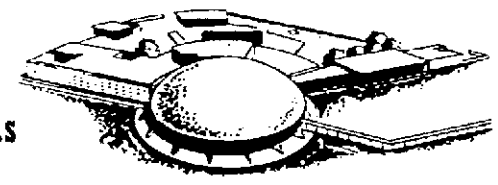

Camerata to perform Saturday

A chorus of 16 members of Camerata dei Musici will entertain Saturday evening at a wine tasting party in the gardens of the home of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Waters, 1465 La Perla Ave.

Tickets for this annual fund-raising event of the Camerata are $2.50 and may be purchased at the door. During the year, the group of musicians gives admission-free programs of seldom-performed works.

Frank Pooler will direct the chorus in the 30-minute program Saturday. Among selections is a group of folk songs arranged by Marie Pooler, for which Doris Henry will play flute obbligato.

Vocal soloists will include Bob Guyette, Steve Warner, Carl Robertson and Myrtle Watilo. A brass quartet also will play.

pick on photos of the President or the hippies instead of US?"

"I don't care who made the error — JUST PRINT A RETRACTION!"

As calls poured in, a few remarks were recorded. Among them was the comment of Mrs. Cecile Steel, 721 S. Shore Drive, Seal Beach:

"My children took one look at that photo and accused me of lying about my age. I know one little old gray-haired lady who recalls wearing a uniform like the one in the photo, but I never did."

Mrs. Donald Wertz, 127 St. Joseph Ave., stated:

"We wore bobby sox and saddle shoes in 1941, but not BLACK STOCKINGS. Several friends called after they saw THAT picture and asked if I really wore such a uniform."

Phone calls have abated, but letters continue to roll in — such as the one from Mrs. Donald French of Los Alamitos.

"I've really taken a razzing from my family, especially my husband who graduated from Poly in 1941. I'm enclosing a picture of the regulation uniform I wore at Wilson the same year."

Excerpts from a note written by Mrs. Dorothy Sikkema, 3635 Cerritos Ave., read:

"Either Long Beach, especially Wilson High School, is more Antediluvian than I imagined, or someone had the wrong date . . . I always knew California was behind-the-times in many respects, but I find it difficult to believe 'mom' wore such a get-up in '41."

In an attempt to mollify those wrathful callers who crashed down the receiver before leaving their names, the I, P-T is printing a photo of an actual Wilson High School coed of 1941.

We hope this will reinstate all "over-aged" Wilson alumna with their juniors.

AT WIT'S END

The weird phenomenon of clothes that grow

By ERMA BOMBECK

There's a lot of weird things that go on in this world that seem to have no logical explanation. One of them is the phenomenon of clothes that grow while they're being stored.

I was looking over my entire fall wardrobe just this week and was quite disturbed to discover I'm going to have to hem all three dresses again!

When I told the girls at card club about it, they concurred. Something goes on with those weird little devils when they're cooped up in a dark closet or drawer all winter that defies explanation.

"I thought clothes had a sex life," said Mavis. "So I sealed a knit jacket in a garment bag all by itself. When I took it out in the spring, it still sagged around my thighs."

"Maybe they take hormones," said Laura. "I packed away a mini-skirt last year that covers my knees this year. Either that skirt grew or my legs shrunk."

The entire conversation brought back memories of an old fake fur coat I bought during a post-natal depression period. (That lasted eight years.) When I bought it, the length was perfect . . . right at the ankle bone.

The following year, the styles shot up again but the lousy coat was still at my shin-bone. I made a car coat out of it.

NEXT FALL, same story, it was swirling around my ankles again. This time I got drastic. I made a clutch jacket out of it. That fall I was almost afraid to unpack it. Sure enough, it touched the floor. (I thought I saw it breathe.) With some misgivings I gave it to Goodwill.

But there are still memories of that fake fur coat all around the house: muff for my daughter, three TV cushions, a stadium blanket for the dog, a hostess gown, a throw pillow for the porch glider, ski hats for the entire family, a parka for Barbie and Ken and a roll of it in the attic big enough to carpet Madison Square Garden.

"Well, if you ask me," said Mavis after hearing the story, "I think the growth of clothes has something to do with all this atomic testing going on."

"I think it's the Republicans' fault," said Norma.

"No, it's all that cigarette smoke and air pollution," said Laura.

"It's probably due to all that violence on televison," said Liz.

"No, it's all those dirty shows on Broadway," said Goldie.

You know, I think Goldie put her finger on it.

Freshmen honored at luncheon

Three Long Beach coeds will be attending Mills College this fall.

They will be honored, along with other Los Angeles County freshmen, at a luncheon Wednesday hosted by the Los Angeles Mills College Alumnae.

Among the freshmen are Prudence Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee, Nancy Lee Vander Lans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Vander Lans, and Mary Wiltse, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leon L. Wiltse, all of Long Beach.

Hosting the 12:30 p.m. luncheon at their Beverly Hills home will be Mills students, Sheryl and Darlene Rose.

Helping with arrangements is Mrs. Ross Hancock of Long Beach, who heads the alumnae student referral committee.

Gayle Bemis, fiance choose New Year's Day wedding date

Mr. and Mrs. Ridge O. Bemis of Long Beach announce the engagement of their daughter, Gayle Marie, to James Thomas Reilly.

Parents of the benedict-elect are Raymond Reilly of Stockton and Mrs. Lena Stubbs of Visalia.

The bride-to-be is an alumna of Polytechnic High School and attends the University of Redlands, where her fiance is a senior.

A Jan. 1 wedding is planned.

Snacks and hats

The Social Service Committee of the Women's City Club will sponsor a snack bar and card party Friday at the clubhouse, 1309 E. Third St.

A hat bar will be conducted by Mrs. Laura Middlemiss.

Women may continue education at BTC

Registration at the Continuing Education Center for Women, Long Beach City College, will take place Monday, Sept. 8. Students may enroll at the Business and Technology Campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway, Room 305, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The center, designed to enable women to resume or begin college studies, was opened last year under direction of Beverly O'Neill, then women's advisor at LBCC. She recently was appointed dean of the liberal arts campus, but will retain her participation in the center's program and will conduct the college and career opportunities class which will feature speakers from the college and community.

BEGINNING this Tuesday, counseling assistants will be on duty from 9 a.m. to noon to offer general information and to assist in class planning. Classes will be filled on a first-come first-served basis; a preregistration survey shows full-class interest.

Women who wish to assess their aptitudes and abilities, may enroll in a five-week vocational planning class, to be held Tuesdays and Thursdays.

A CHILD Development Center will start this fall at the Business and Technology Campus; it will be open from 8:45 to 11:45 a.m. daily.

Courses at the center will include modern math, public affairs, English 1A, vocational planning, health education, political science and social welfare.

For further information, call Long Beach City College, BTC.

★ BE SAFE WITH PROFESSIONAL CARE — DEAL WITH A REALTOR ★

Ten ways the Realtor takes the worry out of home buying.

NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REAL ESTATE BOARDS — REALTORS ARE AT THE HEARTS OF COMMUNITY BUILDING

Buying a home can be a barrel of fun. Or a peck of pitfalls. And that's where a Realtor comes in. Even though you may know the difference between a dormer window and a bay, his expert help can open your eyes to other features you might never notice. And steer you clear of drawbacks you might easily overlook. Below you will find ten of the best reasons we know for starting your search for a home in the Realtor's office.

1 THE REALTOR SAVES YOU TIME, EFFORT AND HEADACHES. He discovers your architectural interests, learns something of your personal tastes — and tries to show you only the types of homes you want to see, within your price range.

2 THE REALTOR ADVISES YOU ABOUT NEIGHBORHOODS. His professional experience is invaluable to you in analyzing future trends and the potential value of your home as a long-range investment.

3 THE REALTOR HELPS YOU SEE THROUGH INFLATED PRICES. Owners who try to sell personally, often tend to overprice a home. But homes listed with a Realtor benefit from his knowledge of current market values.

4 THE REALTOR ARRANGES FOR DEFINITE INSPECTIONS. He makes appointments for your convenience. He will also see that you have plenty of time for a thorough, unhurried inspection.

5 THE REALTOR HELPS YOU SHARPEN YOUR VISION. He inspects homes with you, calls your attention to improvements and advantages you could overlook. And points out any disadvantages his trained eye may spot.

6 THE REALTOR PROVIDES YOU WITH FULL INFORMATION. He will give you essential facts about taxes, maintenance costs, quality of construction, adequacy of public services, schools, churches — even introduce you to the neighbors.

7 THE REALTOR ACTS AS A NEGOTIATOR. Settling of the finer points of price and other differences can get pretty hectic. Your Realtor smoothes over the details and helps buyer and seller arrive at a mutually advantageous agreement.

8 THE REALTOR HELPS YOU STAY WITHIN YOUR BUDGET. He will help you analyze your financial situation, give you sound mortgage advice. Then, if you desire, he can recommend sources of mortgage funds so you can arrange financing.

9 THE REALTOR HELPS YOU KNOW FINAL FACTS AND FIGURES. At the closing of the transaction, you will need a complete financial statement, giving you an exact record for insurance, tax and other purposes.

10 THE REALTOR IS PLEDGED TO SERVE YOU WELL. Display of the NAREB seal is evidence of a pledge to uphold the ideals of the Association. The term Realtor is your assurance of competence, fair treatment and integrity.

TOURISTS REPLACE RUSSIANS

Sitka's where Alaska began, and where it's still going big

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and concluding report by Travel Editor Fred Kraft on his recent Alaska tour with Alaska Airlines.)

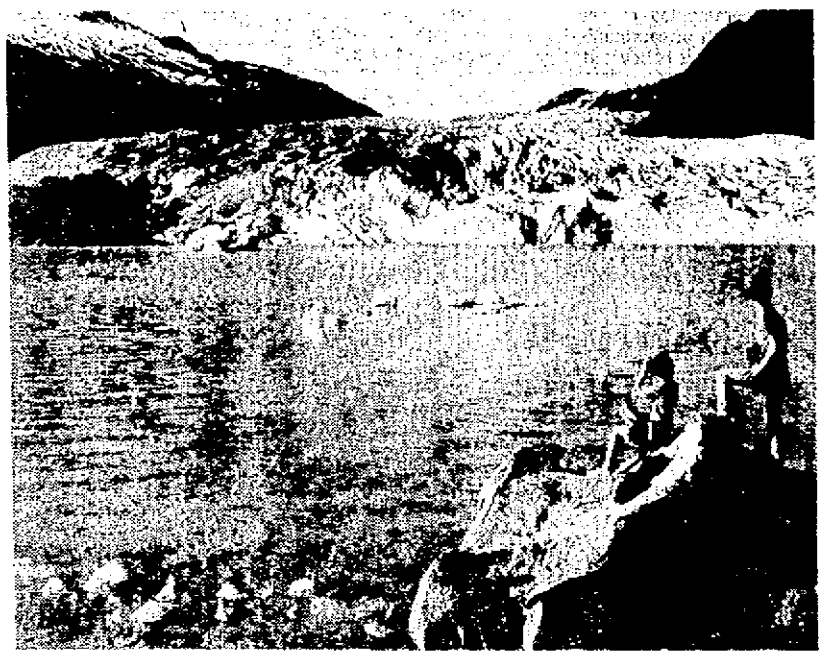

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

SITKA, Alaska — This is where Alaska began, and where it's still going big.

The Russians came first, nudging the hostile Tlingit (KLIN-git) Indians out of the way to establish a trading post near here in 1799 where they might carry on a rich trade in sea otter pelts. The place grew like Topsy. Before the middle of the last century, when San Francisco was still a struggling mission settlement, Sitka was the most industrialized community on the western coast of North America.

KRAFT

ALASKA IS GLACIER COUNTRY. This is the noted Mendenhall glacier, near Juneau. (Alaska Airlines photos by Mob & Ira Spring)

It was a swinging city, too. Traders and trappers and crews of sailing ships and ne'er-do-wells all liked the action. They referred to Sitka as the "Paris of the Pacific."

Then with a single, bold stroke of the pen and the exchange of $7.2 million in 1867 on Sitka's Castle Hill, Russian-America (now Alaska) became the property of the United States. Atop this same hill, where the Russian Double Eagle was originally replaced by the Stars and Stripes, the first 49-star U.S. flag was raised — July 4, 1959 — over the new State of Alaska.

Castle Hill, of course, is still here but it's now swarming with tourists arriving daily throughout the year at Sitka's new jet airport — where Alaska Airlines' sleek "Golden Nugget Jets" sweep in from Seattle and Anchorage — and via the famous Marine Highway.

NEW ARRIVALS note the Hill's significance and see further evidence that the Russians actually came this way in the covey of historic buildings still standing.

Furthermore, all of Sitka can be viewed from this promontory along with countless islands of the archipelago that make up much of the southeast Alaska Panhandle, and the beginning of the pageant of some of the most varied and spectacularly beautiful scenery on the continent.

First, though, Sitka itself should be explored. There is the Sitka National Monument, or Totem Park, where 18 outstanding examples of authentic Alaska totems are displayed along original Indian trails. The new Visitor Center, at the park entrance, has shops for Alaska natives working in creative arts and crafts, and other Indian lore. Nearby Sheldon Jackson Museum contains one of the finest collections of Eskimo artifacts in the world.

The Russian Mission, open to visitors, is the oldest documented building in Alaska. It contains priceless icons. Displays at the Centennial Building commemorate Alaska's 100 years as a U.S. territory. There's the Russian Orthodox Cemetery, Old Sitka, the Tlingit Indian village, lumber mills and boat harbors.

BEYOND Sitka, to the north, east and south, the Panhandle unfolds its awe-inspiring glacial or alpine scenery from Alaska Airlines planes bound for Glacier Bay National Monument, a 3,600-square-mile wonderland of steep-sided fjords, snow-capped peaks, virgin forests teeming with wildlife, and mighty glaciers. An eight-hour cruise to the glaciers originates at Bartlett Cove, near Glacier Bay Lodge and Gustavus Inn, both of which offer splendid accommodation and food.

Dotted between the wilderness of islands and peninsulas of the Panhandle are Ketchikan, a popular terminus for cruises up the Inside Passage; Haines-Port Chilkoot, where Chilkoot dancers provide entertainment and where the world's tallest totem pole — 132 feet high and weighing 30 tons — is being carved for next year's Alaska exhibit at Expo '70 in Japan; and Juneau, thriving capital of Alaska.

Juneau's many tourist attractions include a 12-mile drive to Mendenhall Glacier; the House of Wickersham, home of Judge James Wickersham who established the first court and government in interior Alaska, whose large collection of historical documents and artifacts are now presided over by a niece, Mrs. Ruth Allman; the state capitol and Governor's mansion; and an interesting museum. Juneau abounds in comfortable hotels, fine dining and good gift shops.

The entire Panhandle is dotted with resorts, large and small, which offer unexcelled fishing, hunting and boating and a chance to get away from the mundane life. Alaska Airlines offers help in spotting these havens.

The Panhandle summer air is cool, thanks to the Japan current in the nearby Pacific, and scented with the breath of the forest. In winter, contrary to the belief of many travelers, the mercury seldom dips below the 30s.

DEEPER into the big state are other inviting resorts. One of these is Mt. Alyeska (Al-ee-ESS-ka) Ski Resort, the only luxury spot in the largest ski area in the state.

Mt. Alyeska was the site of the 1963 U.S National Championship races and Olympic Trials, the 1969 Junior National, and is attracting a growing number of skiers each year. At the ski house atop the mile-and-a-quarter-long lift is a breath-taking view of the valley and lodge half a mile below.

Owned by Alaska Airlines and presided over by Chris von Imhof and his attractive wife, Nina, the lodge has 32 units ($50 a day, double, American plan, $40 single) with 42 condominium units abuilding. The large outdoor pool is in use throughout the year, since winters at the resort — only 300 feet above sea level — are comfortably mild.

FOR FUN and color, no Alaska watering place can top Cripple Creek Resort at Ester City, a few miles outside of Fairbanks. One of Alaska's biggest gold strikes was made near here. When dredging finally petered out in 1964, the present owner, Don Pearson, brought the entire mining camp — lock, stock and barrel. It includes the world famous Malemute Saloon, locale for Robert Service's epic poem, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" which Pearson recites for his guests with dramatic effect.

Pearson is a former California sociologist who sees to it that there's never a dull moment at Cripple Creek — "like in sourdough days." He's in love with Alaska in general, his resort in particular, but often quips for laughs:

"Do I ever go sour on this country? Sure, but I don't have enough dough to get out."

"THE SHOOTING OF DAN McGREW" is recited to his guests at Cripple Creek Resort's Malemute Saloon by proprietor Don Pearson.

Reciprocal pact

LOS ANGELES — Air Canada and Japan Air Lines have reached a reciprocal agreement to act as general agents for each other in their home territories. The agreement will provide improved interline service to the Orient through the Los Angeles and Vancouver gateways.

Folder lists '70 cruises from L.A.

A folder listing 1970 cruises sailing from Los Angeles is available from Cruise Information, Suite 517, 6505 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles, Ca. 90048.

The comprehensive sailing schedule includes all round-trip cruises from Los Angeles to the Caribbean, Alaska, Hawaii, South America, Mexico, Europe, Around-the-World, South Pacific and the Orient.

The brochure has been designed to provide a convenient reference for travelers planning a cruise holiday from Los Angeles. Cruises range from 3 to 63 days in length. Round-trip rates for an all inclusive cruise start from $95 per person.

Alaska autumn beckons

JUNEAU, Alaska — It's going to take a while, but residents of the 49th State slowly are clearing away the mythical image that Alaska is covered in eternal blankets of snow, that Alaskans live in igloos, and that icebergs float year-round in every harbor.

Autumn, for example, offers an especially inviting off-season vacation treat. The September-October visitor can combine astonishing scenery, the 49th State's own blend of fall color, and a growing array of man-made and natural attractions.

In a state which cuts across four time zones and is more than twice as big as Texas, a variety of weather conditions (none of them harsh) is likely. Alaskans point out that early fall travel throughout the state can give you anything from balmy Indian Summer days in many regions to the fascinating early awakening of winter in the Arctic.

Special attractions of fall, 1969, run from Indian dances, to religious ceremonies, to a fair in one of the world's most extraordinary farmlands.

Palmer, in the center of the famed Matanuska Valley farm country a few miles north of Anchorage, will be the scene of the annual Alaska State Fair on Labor Day weekend. Visitors can expect to see some of the magnificent produce grown there during the long Alaskan summer days.

Sitka, the Russian capital of Alaska more than a century ago, has two major fall events on its calendar. On Sept. 20 and 21, the Panhandle city will host the 175th anniversary celebration of the establishment of the Russian Orthodox Church in Alaska.

A month later, from Oct. 17 to 19, Sitka will celebrate Alaska Day, the commemoration of the great land's transfer from Russia to the United States. Tlingit Indian dances, recreations of the historic transfer ceremonies and many other activities will be featured.

AS FOR Alaska's grandeur, it's just as abundant in the fall, and sometimes can be seen at a more leisurely pace than in midsummer.

Autumn bonuses, most certainly, are Alaska's game and fish. Most of the state's remote hunting and fishing lodges continue their seasons through September and early October.

The great beauty of Alaska's desolate arctic and sub-arctic regions, coupled with a possible brief taste of the oncoming winter can be found along air routes to such other waypoints as Nome, Kotzebue, and Barrow, all serviced by regular jet flights.

The list of such attractions is long and growing.

Detailed information on traveling in fall or any season in Alaska can be obtained from the Alaska Travel Division, Pouch E, Juneau, Alaska, 99801.

Princess adds two to staff

LOS ANGELES — Princess Cruises has named Duke Butler as assistant to the director of marketing and Russell Borden as assistant to the director of operations, according to Scott W. McCausland, general manager.

Butler, previously director of travel promotion for the Pasadena Star-News, will report to Gordon C. Oliver, director of marketing. Borden, in charge of the data processing dept., will report to Phil Sandello, director of operations.

You will see six species each of penguin, seal and dolphin, including if we are lucky, the little-known Wilson's dolphin — no specimen of which has ever been caught.
On previous expeditions, 110 species of birds and 16 species of indigenous mammals were recorded.
You will also meet the people of the Falkland Islands and be enthusiastically greeted, since the islanders receive very few visitors.

DISSOLUTION OF MARRIAGE

Divorce reform is 'good' law

custody instead of determining the cruelty factor."

White added that cruelty is not usually the main factor for the breakdown of a marriage. He voiced agreement with an article in the June issue of Family Law Quarterly favoring the abolition of divorce grounds. It stated:

"THE BREAKDOWN of a marriage is seldom the fault of one of the partners. It results rather, from a much more complex interaction between two, and frequently more than two personalities."

The basic differences between the old and new law are:

1 — The previous seven grounds for divorce have been reduced to only two, irreconcilable differences and incurable insanity.

2 — Provision is made for substantially equal division of community property.

3 — Granting of alimony and support payments is made on basis of need and ability to provide and ability of supported spouse to work.

4 — The interlocutory period (time from granting of divorce until it's final) is reduced from one year to six months.

There have been cries of dismay that the new law makes divorce easier to get. However, local judges and lawyers disagree.

Presiding Superior Court Judge Max Wisot claimed the new law won't make it any less or more difficult to get a divorce because "divorce already is the most easily obtained thing in the courts."

Judge Truman added he didn't expect to see any increase and there might be a decrease since the "day in court" concept has been removed. One spouse can no longer detail how bad it was.

Judge Wisot also said the new law is not reform per se, but merely a clarification of existing rules and a change in language.

"Irreconcilable differences as reason for dissolving the marriage is merely a melting and merging of previous causes for divorce."

Attorney Marie Coyer said it should make a difference in women's attitudes so that they won't think of a husband merely as a meal ticket.

The elimination of the fault factor and finger pointing in divorce cases drew praise from both legal and non-legal persons questioned.

HUGH McISAAC, executive director of Family Service in Long Beach, said it will make reconciliation more possible or at least allow the couple to part on friendlier terms and remain parents to the children.

He would have preferred more emphasis on prevention in the new law, explaining that Family Service is a United Way agency offering marital counseling to 40 percent of its clients. There are about 60 new families accepted each month out of the 110 who apply. McIsaac sees a need to broaden such services in the community so that more people can take advantage.

A SAMPLING of opinion from divorced men and women also drew favorable comment on the new law.

An engineer from San Pedro, who has since remarried, calls elimination of fault a tremendous thing. "Men are all in favor of it. Women will suffer most because they won't be able to have their day in court."

An area businesswoman with three grown sons said, "the new law is a lot better than what we've been dragging through," noting it took nine months just to have her divorce case heard in court. She thinks the six months waiting period is an improvement, adding, "I can't see the necessity of waiting one year."

However, a twice-divorced Long Beach man said the six months waiting period has no bearing because anyone who gets a divorce isn't going to jump into another marriage right away.

A Lakewood mother of four, who has been divorced five years, thinks removing the finger-pointing is fine as long as the children are taken care of. "The emotional scars are terrific. I don't think six months time is long enough to recover," she said.

A Long Beach secretary and mother of three, still awaiting her final divorce papers, commented on the equal division of community property. She believes it is a good idea because "both parties put time into the marriage and it's no more than right for both to get something out of it."

DIVISION OF J. C. PENNEY'S

'Treasury' Stores Are Started at Lakewood, Buena Park, Orange and Torrance Locations

Officials of J. C. Penney Co. who this May announced the company's 'Treasury' Division would be expanded to Southern California with the simultaneous opening of three 'Treasury' stores in 1970, has announced two additional sites and held consecutive groundbreaking ceremonies at four of the five locations.

"The Treasury" is the new name selected by Penneys for the stores formerly called 'Treasure Island.

Jack F. Behrendt, vice president and director of Treasure Island stores announced that negotiations for two additional 'Treasury' sites have been finalized in Granada Hills at Chatsworth Street and Zelzah Avenue, and in Lakewood at Carson Street and Paramount Boulevard. Behrendt, who is headquartered at Penney's New York central office, was joined by Robert R. Van Kleek, Penney's vice president and western regional manager from San Francisco and city officials from Torrance, Lakewood, Buena Park and Orange at the groundbreaking observances.

VP at Rites

In addition to the Lakewood site, ceremonies were held in:

—Torrance at Sepulveda and Hawthorne Boulevards.

—Buena Park at Orangethorpe Avenue and Beach Boulevard.

—Orange at Garden Grove Boulevard and Manchester Avenue.

Site acquisition for all five 'Treasury' locations was handled by Coldwell, Banker & Company realtors of Los Angeles and general contractor for the stores will be Walter Kidde Contractors, Inc., also of Los Angeles.

The Southern California 'Treasury' stores will be patterned after those opened recently in the Atlanta, Ga., market. The buildings, distinguished by their so-called "squiggly roofs," will have approximately 180,000 square feet. Wide aisles will facilitate the use of shopping carts, and central check-outs will be incorporated.

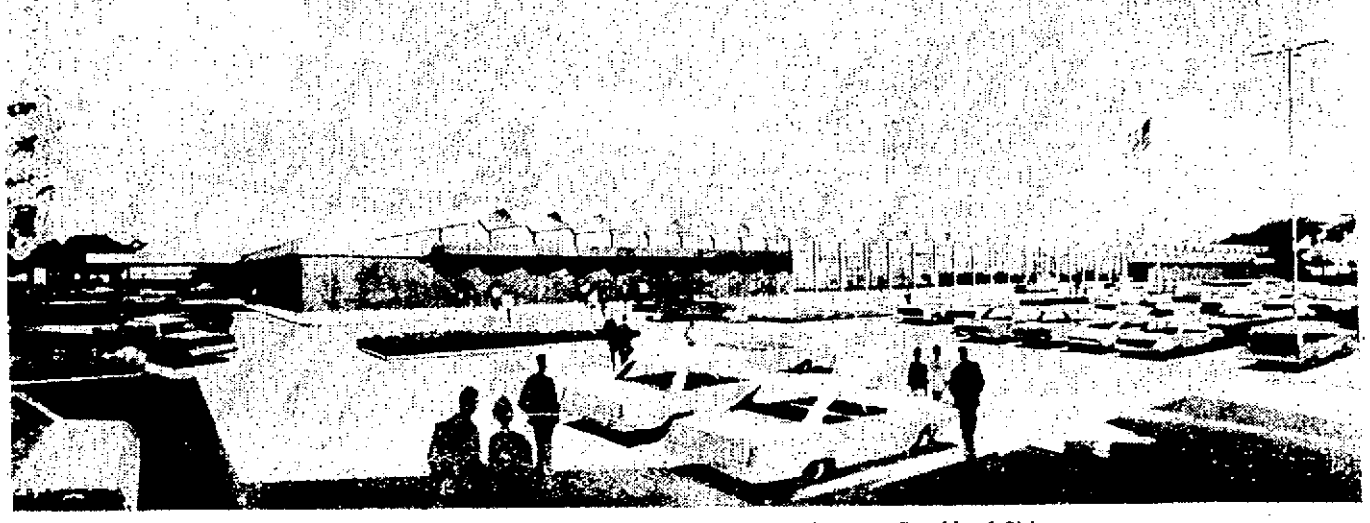

A broad range of merchandise and services is planned. Apparel and home textile lines will be under The Treasury's own brands, while hard lines will feature nationally-branded merchandise. In addition, each store will have a large supermarket, automotive center, as well as a number of other convenience departments.

The Southern California expansion was the first for The Treasury operation after the company's March announcement that these stores had moved beyond their original status as a working experimental laboratory and become a corporate operating division. After Southern California, plans for two 'Treasury' stores were announced for the Miami, Fla., market in 1970.

Egon Gerner, vice president of the Kidde organization said that he expects the concrete portion of the building project to be completed by mid-November. "Once the walls, foundations and slabs are in, work will proceed to completion at a steady pace," he explained.

Gerner's timetable calls for erection of the structural steel to commence by the first of the year, with the building and ground facilities ready for use and occupancy by the last quarter of 1970.

The Penney Company currently has 10 stores of The Treasury type — six in Wisconsin where they originated and four in Georgia.

Starlets Spice Up Opening

Mermaids and goldfish will highlight this Labor Day weekend continuation of builder William Lyon's Grand Opening ceremonies at Franciscan Fountains By-the-Sea in Huntington Beach.

Hollywood starlets in glittering Mermaid costumes will be strategically placed on Brookhurst Street at Pacific Coast Highway to direct visitors to the festive ceremonies for the new homes within walking distance to the beach.

Goldfish will be given to each child accompanied by a parent or guardian and free refreshments will be served. The gala Grand Opening will continue through Labor Day up until 6 p.m.

THE NEW homes are an exact duplicate of Lyon's highly successful Franciscan Fountains homes which are still being built on Slater Ave., between Golden West and Edwards Street in Huntington Beach. The new By-the-Sea series marks the first time the executive homes have been built in another location.

"We feel there's a definite market for the executive or professional man who likes the Newport-Balboa way of life," explained David Langlois, area manager, "But who perhaps has invested his capital and doesn't want to pay the high premium prices for similar type housing in the adjacent beach cities."

The By-the-Sea location has many of the advantages of its neighbors, Newport-Balboa.

HOMEOWNERS can walk to the beach from Franciscan Fountains. The beach is fenced and protected and there are areas for campfire, surfing, sunning, swimming and boating. The new one and two story homes priced from $33,490, are within minutes of Newport-Balboa's marinas, gourmet restaurants and elegant shopping centers.

Perhaps one of the most popular features is the "Sweeping Curved Staircase Entry" home. This has up to five bedrooms, and Lyon's exclusive "Parent-Saver Retreat."

The "Parent-Saver Retreat" is an adult apartment which is contained completely within the master bedroom suite. Additionally, there is a huge walk-in closet, dressing room and bathroom.

To reach the furnished Franciscan Fountain By-the-Sea models take either the Pacific Coast Highway or San Diego Freeway to Brookhurst. From Coast Highway drive north one block to Bushard and from the Freeway drive south to Hamilton; then west one block.

Peninsula Getting a Chalet Gourmet

By BILL SHELTON
Staff Writer

Esgro, Inc., diversified merchandizing and manufacturing concern, registered a 19.3 per cent net earnings increase in the three months ended July 31, Francis J. Esgro, president, announced at the firm's annual meeting Wednesday at the Biltmore in Los Angeles.

Esgro, with interests in food and beverages, apparel, cameras and jewelry, electrical products and floor coverings, operates 23 jewelry and camera units and 21 liquor and gourmet food departments within White Front Stores.

A new concept for the firm is a group of Chalet Gourmet stores, featuring fine foods and beverages. Five Chalet Gourmets will be operating in Southern California before the end of 1969, including one at Palos Verdes Boulevard at Pacific Coast Highway, Palos Verdes. Esgro told the Independent. Press-Telegram Wednesday that he expects to have one operating soon in Long Beach.

These outlets, Esgro said, offering such features as U.S. prime meats on a cut-to-order basis, hot foods to go and oven-ready cookery preparations, cater to exactly the opposite demand as that of the supermarket.

Pending the success of the five test units, says Esgro, about which the company is most optimistic, Chalet Gourmet at a mature stage of development is expected to boast about 200 stores in California.

In the Apparel Division, two Archibald Foxx stores have been opened as an experiment looking toward establishing and franchising a chain of retail outlets specializing in men's dress and sport shirts, primarily from Esgro's factory in Hong Kong. The stores also will sell custom tailored shirts and neckwear, Esgro announced at the meeting. The company's high quality shirts are sold through 100 franchises selling these garments and Esgro's stock shirts. Expansion to 400 dealers is expected.

The company distributes through its Lake Sales Group, soft and hard surface flooring material such as rugs, carpeting, padding, tile and linoleum.

Through its subsidiary, California Wholesale Electrical Co., Esgro distributes some 18,000 different electrical items including motors, cable, conduit, switches and testing apparatus, wiring devices and many other categories.

DESERT MARBLE . . . Installed at Spece Lab; Boss Gordon Mayo, Inset

INSTANT FLOOR COVER A SUCCESS
Desert Marble Is Produced in Santa Ana

A unique self-leveling poured flooring, with plant and headquarters in Santa Ana, is doing over $1 million volume business in domestic and foreign sales.

Desert Marble, the product of Research Laboratories Inc., 2145 South Grand Avenue, is in use not only in hundreds of U.S homes, plants, restaurants, supermarket and other large-area installations, but also in Canada and Mexico. Negotiations are being carried out for an affiliate company in Tokyo and Osaka.

The seamless flooring, which costs an estimated $1.25 per square foot, is the brain child of Gordon P. Mayo who also heads up the Santa Ana manufacturing company. Mayo "discovered" Desert Marble when he accidentally spilled a tube-ful of a chemical formula with which he was experimenting on a coffee table. It began to level itself into an accidental color and design.

"THE BASIC APPEAL of the product," says Mayo, "is not only that it levels itself but that, while it functions as a self-waxing, seamless flooring, it also allows the buyer, whether his installation is only a 25 square foot bathroom, or a 25,000 square foot factory or supermarket, to choose his own color and design."

Basically, Desert Marble, says Mayo, consists of approximately 60 per cent resinous plastic containing 12 waxes and 40 per cent ground marble of varied particle size.

The main plant of Research Laboratories is in Santa Ana, but the company maintains training schools in California and Logansport, Indiana, for applicators and dealers. It has distributors and dealers in 31 states. National recognition for the Santa Ana firm is being accorded through feature stories and photos in such publications as "Engineering News-Record, "Flooring magazine, "Progressive Grocer," and "American City" magazine.

THE FLOORING IS shipped in 5 gallon containers with specified colors included.

"Yes," said Mayo, in answer to a question about individualized coloring, "you can make up your own color scheme. This is what the managing director of "The Fisherman," restaurant at Huntington Beach did in ordering Desert Marble for two kitchens, bar, terrace, and lounges. He chose colors and design remimiscent of the sea."

Professional applicators, trained in the company's schools, do the design work on the premises.

"These men are hard to come by," said the manufacturer, recalling that "Flooring" magazine complimented the company for operating its own schools. The company pays for flying dealers and applicators to the schools and provides free lodging while they are in training.

There is no basic color in the solution. Chemical ingredients for protected mixing under a formula known to only two people, are obtained from such nationally known suppliers as Union Carbide, Upjohn and others.

THE COST OF THE flooring is a little higher, Mayo concedes, than that of other similar flooring.

Downturn in Interest Rates Seen Before Year is Out

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

The very forces that have led to the highest interest rates in a century are now being reversed, and this foreshadows a downturn in interest rates getting under way before the year is out, according to a study by Wall Street economist Dr. Robert H. Parks, Director of Economic Research, Francis I. duPont & Co.

The rapid stepup in military spending, deep Treasury deficits, and easy money have been the prime ingredients in the boom. The recent sharp rise in bond yields is explained primarily by inflation and inflationary psychology, the extraordinary demand for funds stemming from a booming economy, and current severe restraint by the Federal Reserve.

The evidence that the economy is slowing appears conclusive, and government efforts to bring the rate of inflation under control will be successful, according to Dr. Parks.

The climb in interest rates this year is a product of two forces which do not support the view that further boom lies ahead. The first force centers on the aftermath of the hyper-growth of demand in the 1965-1968 period, fueled by large Treasury deficits and easy money (except for the "credit crunch" of 1966). This legacy of the 1965-1968 period is spilling over into severe cost pressures from sharply rising wage rates despite the markedly slower rate of growth of real demand during the last three quarters.

The second force underlying current levels of interest rates lies, paradoxically in current policies of government to decelerate economic growth. "To be sure, the short term impact of restrictive policies tends to add to cost-push pressures on prices and interest rates Dr. Parks points out". "An increase in the cost of funds borrowed by manufacturers tends to be passed on to buyers in the form of higher prices. Also, restrictive economic policies designed to slow the growth of real output at the same time force unit costs higher as industry operations tend to fall further below capacity of plant and equipment. These anti-inflationary measures induce cost-push pressures, thus unavoidably tend to make an inflationary situation appear worse, at least for a time".

The study stresses, however, that the basic forces of demand-pull inflation are now being tamed. Most important, military spending actually declined during the last quarter after jumping from $50 billion in 1965 to $80 billion in 1968. Treasury operations have shifted from large deficits to current surplus and the monetary authorities have shifted from high stimulation to severe and active credit restraint. As a reflection of the restrictive policies of recent months, consumer demand has been growing at a slow rate, and residential construction expenditures appear to be headed down. Finally, there are signs that business spending on capital goods, the only type of spending that has truly been booming so far this year, is about to slow markedly.

TEENAGERS BY THE hundreds of thousands are likely to choose work over school again this year, knocking at the doors of a national labor force that already has in it 2-million struggling minors without a high school education.

According to Kenneth C. Robertson, western (San Francisco) manpower chief for the U.S. Labor Department, "Education is still very much a must for our young people."

"School dropouts will discover that the world of work is a small world indeed for the uneducated and the untrained."

"The high school dropout takes a far longer chance than his father did," Robertson said. "Unemployment is highest among the unskilled, who is usually the last hired and first fired."

The dollar-and-cents value of a high school education has been accurately measured, the Labor Department official noted.

"During his working life, a high school graduate averages about $57,000 more than a dropout, and about $94,000 more than a worker with only a grade school education." "And a college graduate averages about $200,000 more than a high school graduate."

Robertson urged parents and friends to persuade youngsters to change their minds about leaving school without their diploma. "The payoff is what they really want most — a good job at good pay with a good future."

GENERAL MOTORS Chairman James M. Roche and President Edward N. Cole released the following statement in Detroit concerning the motor vehicle market in the 1969 model year and the prospects for the forthcoming 1970 model year.

Retail sales of new passenger cars and trucks in the United States in the 1969 model year, ending in September, are expected to establish a new record of 11.6 million units — including 9.7 million passenger cars and 1.9 million trucks. This will exceed the prior record of 10.8 million units, established in 1966, by almost 7.5 per cent.

General Motors sales of both passenger cars and trucks also set new records for the model year.

The sales of North American type passenger cars will total 8.6 million units for the 1969 model year as compared with 8.5 million units for the 1966 model year or an increase of 1 per cent.

General Motors North American type car sales are expected to total nearly 4.6 million units for the 1969 model year as compared with 4.4 million for the 1966 model year, or an increase of about 3 per cent.

Sales of imported cars in the United States will exceed 1 million units for the 1969 model year as compared with 640,000 units for the 1966 model year, or an increase of nearly 70 per cent. Included among the imports are the sale of about 100,000 Opel Kadetts — the GM entry — during the 1969 model year as compared with 30,000 units in 1966, or an increase of 230 per cent.

The industry's record sale of new trucks in the 1969 model year of 1.9 million units will represent a 12 per cent increase over the previous record of 1.7 million truck sales attained in the 1968 model year. GM's 1969 model truck sales will exceed the 1968 record by 14 per cent.

ALTHOUGH THE STOCK market declined rather sharply during the month of July, mutual fund sales moved ahead of the June figures, the Investment Company Institute, national association of the fund industry, reported.

Redemptions dipped last month as compared to June, indicating that the vast majority of fund shareholders hold their investments, do not panic in a down market, and are prepared to ride out stock market distress.

Gross sales in July were $503.4 million, up 6.0 per cent from June sales of $474.8 million. Gross sales in July, 1968, totalled $582.0 million.

Redemptions dropped 22.9 per cent in July from the June figure. Redemptions of $260.4 million were recorded by the Institute, as against redemptions during the previous month of $337.6 million.

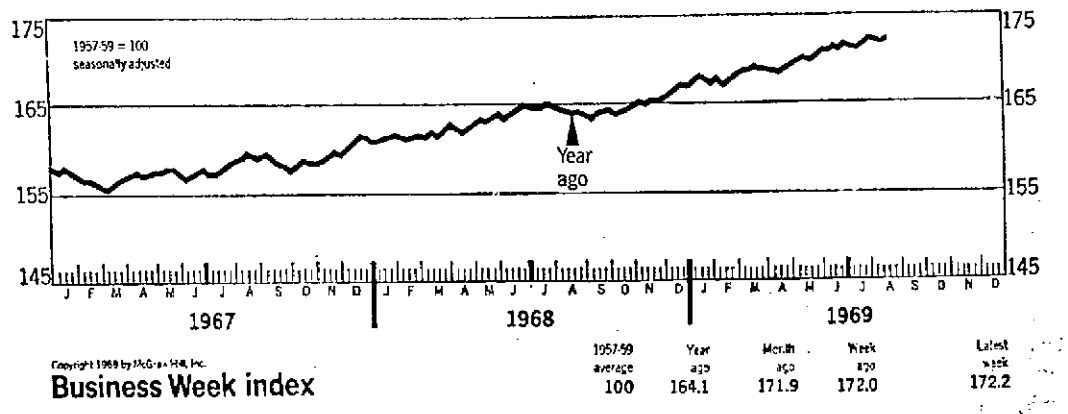

Mutual funds continued to attract new money last month as net sales — the difference between sales and redemptions — totalled $243.0 million in July.

BULWARKING RETAIL activity in the week ended this Wednesday were purchases of school apparel, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. This demand continued to spiral despite high heat and humidity which took some of the starch out of downtown shopping but did not deter the pace in suburban areas. Accessories and shoes drew substantial attention along with children's and teenage clothing. The call for luggage began to soar, and there was a heartening pick-up in personal care items and portable entertainment goods.

Except for a solid boost in some appliances, notably air conditioners and refrigerators, dullness prevailed in home goods buying. Whereas the rain abated in the North East and South Atlantic areas and led to improved retail gains in many cities, slackness and spottiness in shopping in the Mid West were attributed to rains there.

Mixed trends were noted in the South West, as Houston stores continued to chalk up sizzling advances in hot, dry weather while in contrast buying slowed on the weekend in New Orleans with the approach of Hurricane Camille and was wiped out by wind and water in towns along the Gulf Coast. New York's year-to-year headway was widened robustly by comparison with last year when the school strike situation created a cautious tempo.

The total dollar volume of retail sales in the week ended this Wednesday ranged from 4 to 8 per cent above the similar week last year according to spot estimates collected by Dun & Bradstreet.

New Car Production in Full Swing

The Index rose 0.1 per cent in the current week.

Auto production jumped 7.0 per cent as new model production got into full swing. Output gained 11.5 per cent above the month-ago level.

Steel output slipped 1.1 per cent; predictions for future production remains strong.

The power components offset each other in the latest week. Crude oil refinery runs went down .1 per cent, while electric power output increased .5 per cent.

Miscellaneous carloadings fell 3.6 per cent, reflecting a drop in metals and products. All other carloadings inched .4 per cent ahead, and inter-city truck tonnage fell .3 per cent.

Paperboard production decreased 3.7 per cent.

Policing on Campus Talk Topic

C. Lee Chandler will speak on "Campus Disruptions — One of the Problems of Policing" at the Tuesday meeting of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors at the Elks Club. He is chief of police at California State College at Long Beach.

"For the past 14 years Chief Chandler has been specializing in high crime area policing pertaining to car theft, burglary and theft of car parts," says Judy Bowman, September program chairman for the board.

Western Air Lines Promotion for Cain

George Cain, a resident of Long Beach for many years, has been named Southwestern Regional Agency and Interline manager for Western Air Lines, it was announced Saturday by William J. Grant, regional sales manager.

Cain will direct Western's sales efforts, serving nearly 1,000 travel agents and transportation company representatives in Southern California, Clark County, Nev. (Las Vegas), and the greater Phoenix, metropolitan area

Cain is a native of Salt Lake City. He joined Western in January, 1941 after working for the Santa Fe Railroad. He is a veteran of World War II and is still active in the Air Force Reserve in which he holds the rank of colonel.

Following the war Cain served with Western's sales staff in Long Beach, becoming district sales manager. From 1959 until his new assignment he was district sales manager in Los Angeles.

TRADE TIPS ON THE WORLD MARKET

By REVAN KOMAROFF

EXPO '70: Japan's world fair extravaganza offers marketing showplace for the Far East. Electric numerals on a large countdown device hanging outside Tokyo's busy Shinjuku Station inform passersby that there are so many days, hours and zero minutes left until opening day of the first world exposition ever held in Asia — EXPO '70. Participation is expected from the 129 countries with whom Japan has diplomatic relations.

EXPO '70 will certainly represent a unique occasion to fix a corporate image in millions of minds — against the background of a super-spectacle that will remain in Japanese memories for years to come. Whatever the form of participation, it is expected that interest by American industry is sure to quicken, and the many U.S. companies are taking advantage of EXPO '70's once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

The Japanese are pushing on with their usual verve, determined to make EXPO '70 no less successful than was the 1964 Tokyo Olympiad. Because the host city Osaka, Japan's second largest, enjoys a rivalry not unlike the one between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Osakans are going all out to surpass the capital city's widely praised performance during the last Olympics.

Some $1.67 billion will go into EXPO-related construction projects in the area, including the expansion of Osaka International Airport, road, railroad, and subway construction. Japan EXPO Assn. will spend another $230 million in on-site construction and operating costs. Exhibitors, domestic and foreign, will invest an estimated additional $278 million.

"Dollar-defense" policy or not, American firms, intrigued by the prosperous Japanese market of 100-million people will doubtless go all out for EXPO '70 opportunities. Estimates of visitors run from 30-million to 50-million during the Exposition's six-months season from March 15 to September 15, 1970. Foreigners coming from abroad should be around the 1-million mark, mainly from the United States and the remainder mostly from bordering Asian nations. These figures mean that a private U.S. entry should think in terms of making an impact primarily on the Japanese. And the rules of the game insist that it be made as subtly as possible: Hard Sell is out.

There are many ways to make one's image known without taking direct part in the fair. The City of San Francisco, for instance, is donating 10 cable-car shaped buses to haul passengers from parking lots to the main gates. An enterprising manufacturer of typewriters will put a substantial number of his products at the disposal of the press corps. Other companies are contributing a variety of goods ranging from baby carriages through clocks and benches in an effort to make their names more well known to the Japanese public.

And last but not least, our very own Long Beach Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a delegation to EXPO '70, departing on March 7, 1970. Some 59 bookings have already been made, and the interest continues.

Foreign Trade Association Set to Mark Its 50th Anniversary

What promises to be one of the most outstanding events of the year is the 50th Anniversary Observance of the Foreign Trade Association of Southern California.

It seems but yesterday when a handful of Exporters from Los Angeles County, met in 1919 for the purpose of forming an association that would put Los Angeles County on the map for World Traders.

Heretofore, outside of New York and San Francisco, world traders knew relatively nothing about Southern California as a manufacturing center or of the facilities of the adjacent ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach. But by dint of perseverance the word got around, and as more and better failities became operative each succeeding year, the mission was accomplished. Today, thousands of visitors from all over the world know that to visit Long Beach and Los angeles is a must.

The entire International community of Southern California will therefore honor the Foreign Trade Association of Southern California's 50th anniversary at the Biltmore ballroom on the evening of Thursday, October 2. A program of tremendous importance and originality is in process, headed by the indefatigable Robert D. Kleist, regional manager of Pacific Far East Line, Inc.

Assisting Kleist will be David A. Artko, Bank of America International office; Robert H. Autenrieth, export manager, Sunkist Growers, Inc.; Charles Chodzko, vice president, California Cartage Co.; L. E. Coppersmith of L. E. Coppersmith, Inc.; Robert D. Hudson, Los Angeles Harbor Department; Revan Komaroff, chairman of the Board, PME International; Michael J. Long, Trade Commissioner for the Government of Australia; Howard McCargar, Southern Pacific Railroad; Robert Metzgar, Port of Long Beach; Jessie Miller, Balfour Guthrie & Co., Ltd.; Charles Nevil, Meridian Enterprises, Inc.; Sam E. Orr, American Express; and Melvin Wolf, Overseas Shipping Co.

A gala evening and attendance is in store, with representation from the Consular Corps, International Trade Commissioners, Mayors from Southern California cities, Chambers of Commerce, the Shipping and Transportation fraternities, and world traders in gereral.

ROBERT D. KLEIST

ROBERT HILL . . . at Dodge Dealership

Hill Gets Dodge Dealership

Robert E. Hill, newly appointed franchise Dodge dealer for the Compton area, this week announced his Grand Opening Celebration of Boulevard Dodge at 401 North Long Beach Blvd.

Planned as a week-long event, Hill said that special events was to be held over the weekend of August 22nd and through Labor Day.

Hill, the first Negro dealer named by Dodge in the area, will carry the full line of Dodge cars and trucks, as well as offer a complete parts and service department to serve the needs of Compton and vicinity.

Prizes and favors will be part of the celebration. Balloons and lollipops for children along with pens, yard sticks, key rings, and road atlases for adults will be given away.

For the performance minded auto enthusiast, Hill will have a full display of the "hot ones" from Dodge's Seat Pack stable. The new Dodge Daytona, an aerodynamically styled stock race car will be featured. Designed for use on the high speed oval tracks, this car will debut at the new Talledega Raceway in September. This production car is equipped with a rear stabilizer wing and front spoiler.

Hill, a long time resident of Southern California and a graduate of UCLA, joins the retail automobile business following a year's training by Dodge both locally and in Detroit.

Management Courses Set

Apartment and Income Management courses in the North Orange County Junior College District have been scheduled to begin the week of September 15, according to Donald L. Kennedy, director of adult education.

Kennedy announced the reappointment of Eugene L. Zechmeister, director of the Apartment House Association, Long Beach-Southern Cities, to be the instructor for the second year. The Apartment Management Class will not be held on the Cypress Junior College Campus, but the Oak Street Junior High School, 10921 Oak Street, Los Alamitos has been the designated site to meet the anticipated large class enrollment. Kennedy stated. The class enrollment will begin on Monday at 7 p.m., September 15.

Floor Covering Proving a Success

but maintenance costs are cheap due to the fact that the Santa Ana flooring needs no waxing, scrubbing, polishing or staining. Waxes are built in and it is easily, quickly cleaned with soap and cold water.

Mike Defabis, head of Safeway of Indianapolis, recently had Desert Marble installed in a high-style supermarket. He said in Flooring Magazine:

"Desert Marble cost us more than a vinyl asbestos tile floor — but it is worth every penny we paid for it. You can't wax this floor, there are alreday 12 different kinds of wax in it. Over a period of time these waxes work to the surface, so all you have to do is buff it with a soft nylon pad, and it comes out clean as a dream. I spend more time talking to people who like this floor than anything else in the supermarket."

One type of customer for Desert Marble are the producers of TV programs and commercials because it can dry between shows. It has been known to be ready for use in as little as 19 minutes, though it's safer to give it a few hours to dry.

THE PRODUCERS OF such shows as Steve Allen, Della Reese, the King Family and others, have chosen it for this reason for "goof-proof" flooring on their stages.

The distributor who did the flooring 4,000 square feet of stages at Hollywood Video Center — Carl Raelser of International Terrazzo Service in Burbank, says he chose the Santa Ana product primarily because of the low maintenance.

Desert Marble, according to its manufacturer, is easily renewable and is guaranteed for five years without treating.

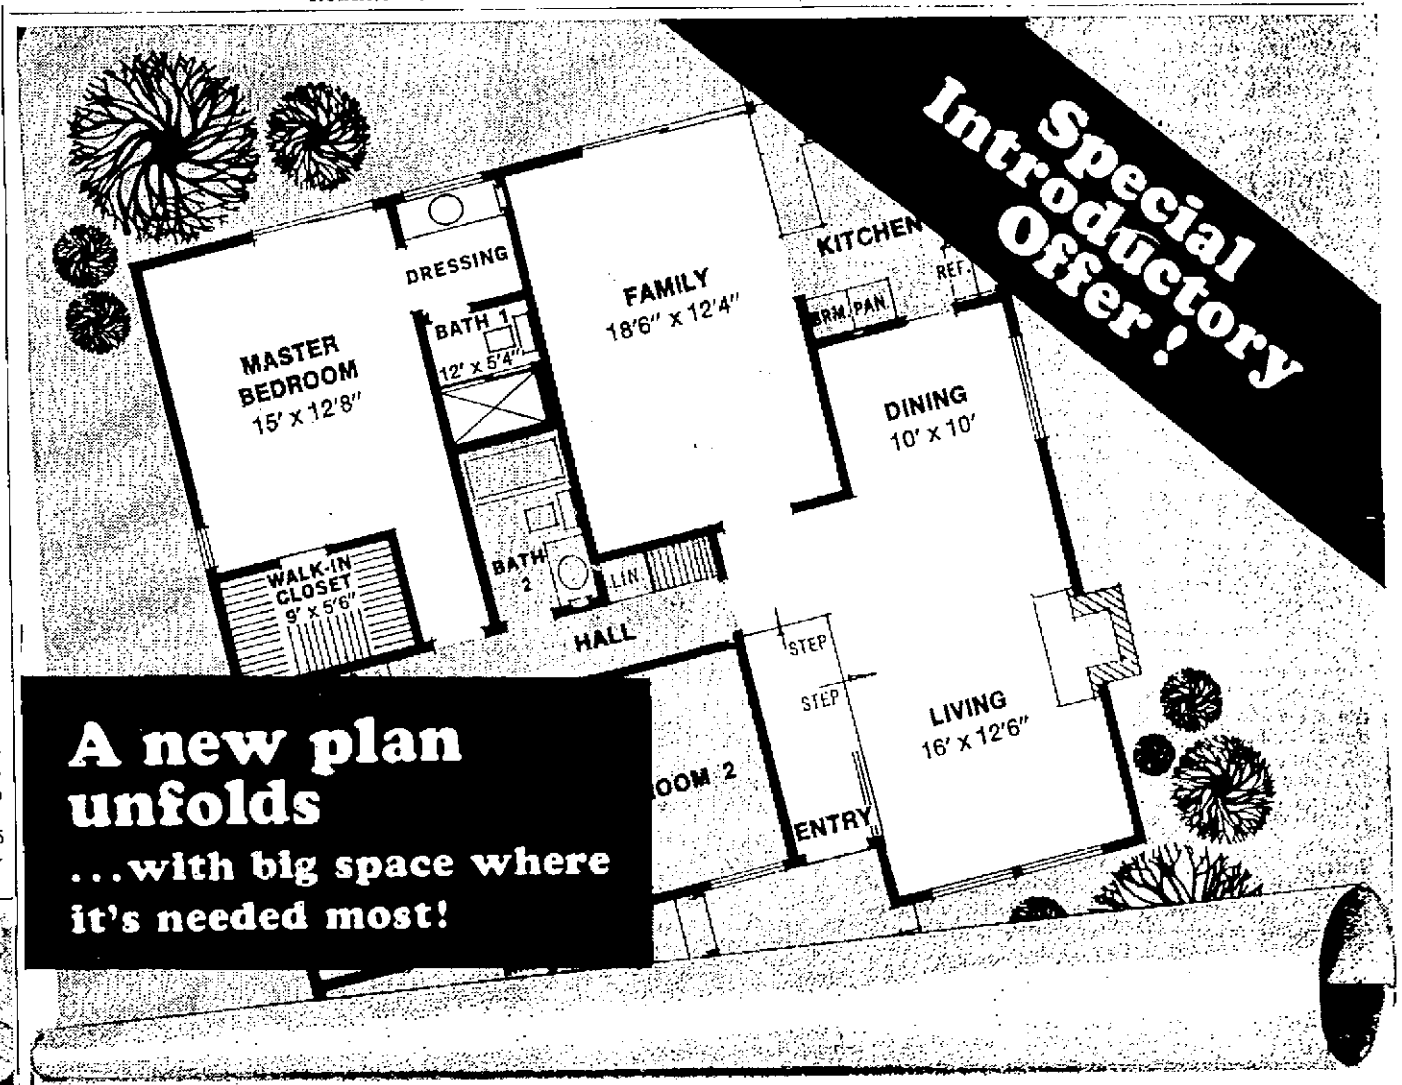

Asked what shape the surface to be covered has to be in, Mayo cited the case of Hollywood Video Center — the parent company of which is to contruct a 53-story building with 10 stages, across Vine Street from their present location.

FOR HALF A CENTURY previous to its acquisition by Hollywood Video Center as a television production unit, the building was a bowling alley six feet below grade. This extensive reconstruction job was undertaken with the consultation of Mayo and his staff but its cost was borne by the client. Desert Marble was then poured on its practically level surface for five stages.

Mayo's staff in Santa Ana now consists of eleven technicians, applicators, and office workers — dealers in the U.S. number 300 from coast to coast.

Desert Marble's Mexican affiliate is Seamless Systems de Mexico, S.A., which last month did the largest shopping center in Guadalajara, and anticipates large-scale business for the Republic of Mexico.

Asked for a specific estimate on the cost of an average-size bathroom, Mayo said that any one of his dealers could do the 25 square-foot area of a bathroom for $29.95.

LOMBARDO HONORED

Leonard Lombardo, right, owner of Lombardo's Restaurant, receives a plaque of commendation from Long Beach Gas Department General Manager L. I. Bendinger for his "outstanding use of commercial gas," in the design of the new Long Beach downtown restaurant.

Three New Tax Centers Requested by IRS

In a drive to combat growing pains triggered by the ever-increasing number of tax returns filed each year — now running at 106 million annually and leading to record collections — the Internal Revenue Service has requested three new service centers to supplement seven others now operational, says Commerce Clearing House.

The new sites, hoped for within two years, would be Fresno, Calif., Memphis, Tenn., and Suffolk County, Long Island, N.Y., under the proposal submitted to the General Services Administration. Each center would run about 400,000 square feet in size.

These centers would be similar to the existing Automatic Data Processing centers in Austin, Tex., Chamblee, Ga., Covington, Ky., Kansas City, Mo., Andover, Mass., Philadelphia, Pa., and Ogden, Utah.

The IRS has a data center in Detroit where statistical information from tax returns is processed and where certain administrative functions for that agency and others are handled, CCH reported.

Under the ADP system, taxpayers file their returns directly with the IRS service center in their area. These returns are processed at the regional center and data from them is sent to the National Computer Center, Martinsburg, W.Va., where it becomes a part of each taxpayer's master file.

Daily IRS operations are handled by 58 district offices, with at least one in each state. These district offices and more than 900 local offices provide information and assistance to taxpayers and administer enforcement programs — activity which contributes significantly to the growing pains experienced by the service centers which have to do the return processing, CCH said.

Owners of large trucks, truck-trailers, or buses may be required to file a federal highway use tax return, Form 2290, F. S. Schmidt, District Director of Internal Revenue for Southern California, said.

A newly revised schedule of taxable gross weights, effective July 1, contains 21 weight categories for single unit or straight trucks, tractor-trailers and truck-trailer combinations.

The new schedule recognizes that larger trucks are using the highways, and also that some trucks are of sturdier construction, and are carrying heavier loads. No change was made in the fee schedule for buses operating on public highways.

The regular period for the highway use tax runs from July 1 through June 30 of the following year. Owners of trucks in use on public highways during July have to file a return by September 2 this year. Subsequent returns may be required concerning vehicles used for the first time on public highways after July.

IRS Publication 349, "Federal Use Tax on Trucks, Truck-Tractors and Buses," furnishes detailed information on this subject and may be obtained by dropping a post card to Internal Revenue Service, P.O. Box 1711, Los Angeles, 90053.

AND YOU THINK IT'S HOT

Umbrella provides scant relief from hot Sahara sun as welder-and helper join pipe sections in Libya where Occidental Petroleum Corp. is building trunkline extension from company oil wells to main pipeline that carries the crude from the Mediterranean 135 miles away for shipment to markets of the world.

Ad and PR Firm in New Location

Hubbert & Associates, Inc., Los Angeles-based advertising and public relations firm, has moved to new and larger quarters at 5967 W. 3rd St. according to an announcement by president Robert C. Hubbert.

The full-service agency has been expanding operations steadily in recent months, Hubbert said, and the company's former offices on Wilshire Boulevard were no longer adequate. The agency now occupies one complete floor of a modern three-story office structure just west of La Brea Avenue.

Hubbert & Associates is one of the largest advertising and public relations agencies specializing in real estate accounts, covering all phases of the industry, and the firm represents many of the major building and development companies in Southern California.

In recent months, however, Hubbert explained that as part of the agency's diversification and expansion program, a number of varied products, manufactured for national distribution, have been added to the firm's account roster.

ROBERT LICHTENHAN

Board Member

Robert Lichtenhan, manager of the Long Beach Convention and Visitors Bureau, was appointed to the executive board at the meeting of the International Association of Convention Bureaus in Portland, Ore.

Lichtenhan, manager of the Long Beach Bureau for eight years, also will serve on the Intercontinental Convention Committee of the LACB.

The International Committee will work with the United States Travel Service and European associations in promoting conventions in this country for organizations with predominant European membership.

Broadway Earnings

Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., sales and earnings increased 11.2 per cent in the first half ended Aug. 2, it was announced by Edward W. Carter, president, in a Los Angeles release.

Consolidated sales for the 26 week period were $269,845,000 compared with last year's $242,739,000 for the same period. Consolidated net earnings were $1,867,000 (59 cents per share) compared with last year's $4,376,000 (51 cents per share).

Consolidated sales in the second quarter were up 11.2 per cent to $138,529,000 compared to $124,537,000 in last year's first 13 weeks.

Home Savings Buys Parcel for Anaheim Headquarters

The recent sale of two prime parcels of land, one on Wilshire Blvd. in Los Angeles and the other in Anaheim, was announced by Lawrence N. Field, president of Lawrence N. Field Associates, Inc., real estate brokers.

Home Savings & Loan Association, the largest savings institution in the United States, will build its Orange County headquarters on 51,000 square feet at Harbor Blvd. and Lincoln Ave. acquired from the Hartmann Corp. for a reported $500,000, according to Field, whose company represented both the buyer and seller in the transaction.

Field's company also represented a local investment group in the purchase of 25,000 square feet on Wilshire at Fremont Pl. from a partnership headed by Norman Elzer, owners of the land for the last nine years, for an undisclosed amount. Jeffere F. Van Lieu of Frank Dutra Co. handled negotiations for the seller.

Field said the new owners plan to develop a five-story office building of more than 500,000 square feet on the property.

Market Research Is Topic

"Better Marketing Through Research" will be the subject at a dinner meeting of the Orange County Chapter, Building Industry Association of California, on September 8 at 6:30 p.m. in the Golden Pheasant Restaurant, Anaheim.

Three outstanding panelists will participate, according to Program Chairman Robert Duff, vice president of First American Title Insurance Company.

Speakers include Richard McElyea, executive vice president of Development Research Associates, and Nicholas S. Winslow, general manager of Facts Consolidated, a subsidiary of Economics Research Associates, both of Los Angeles. Serving as moderator will be W. E. Mitchell of Tustin, owner of Market Profiles, marketing consultant firm.

McElyea, who will discuss "Economic Feasibility and Product Demand," holds a master's degree in business administration from Stanford Graduate School of Business. He is guest lecturer at UCLA and various University of California campuses, and has conducted numerous seminars.

Winslow's topic will be "Understanding the Consumer and Product Relationship." Also a graduate of Stanford with an M.B.A. degree, he has been associated with ERA since March 1967 and is a member of the American Marketing Association.

Widely known in Southern California real estate and building circles, Mitchell has served as sales manager and marketing director for several real estate and land development firms. He is secretary-treasurer and director of marketing for PSI Escrows, with offices in Pasadena, Newport Beach and San Diego, and is co-author of a recently published book, "Marketing Concepts and Sales Strategy for Resales." Mitchell attended the University of Michigan and Pacific Coast Law School.

NEW SITE IN CARSON

International Harvester Co. will relocate its Long Beach area truck sales and service center to a four-acre site in Carson, near the northwest corner of 223rd St. and Wilmington Ave. Purchase of the property from the Eighth Sanitation District, Los Angeles County totaled approximately $210,000, and was arranged by Coldwell, Banker & Co., Realtors. Describing the facility which International Harvester will build in 1970 is the firm's district manager of Southern California operations, J. D. Richardson (center). At left is George H. Fox, Jr. of Coldwell, Banker & Co.; and at right is City Councilman Gilbert D. Smith, City of Carson.

FAKE LANDSCAPERS ON MAKE

Men posing as landscape contractors are bilking unsuspecting homeowners and businessmen out of millions of dollars through deception, misrepresentation, or shoddy workmanship, warns the California Landscape Contractors Association.

Robert L. Curtis, president of the Orange County-Long Beach Chapter, reports that complaints against bootleg landscapers have now reached an all-time high. "Our two offices in the Los Angeles and San Francisco areas have been deluged with more complaints this summer than at any time in our history," he said.

Bootleg landscapers are unlicensed, fly-by-night operators who thrive on the ignorance and the gullibility of the public. They prey on new homeowners and small businessmen who need landscaping, but don't know how to find a competent contractor.

"Few people realize that any person offering to perform landscape work in excess of $100 must be licensed and bonded by the State of California," said Curtis.

"The license assures you that he is a competent contractor who has at least four years of experience and was required to pass a rigid, state-administered examination to get his license.

"In addition, the bonding assures you that he is an established businessman in the community who stands to lose a great deal of money if the work is not completed or performed according to professional standards."

Curtis said that the methods of the bootleg landscaper are almost always the same:

1. They operate door-to-door, never give a business address, and invariably employ a telephone answering service.

2. Their usual stock in trade is a hard-to-resist bargain. They justify their cut rates because "we're doing a couple other jobs in the neighborhood."

3. They usually request a sizable portion of the money in advance.

4. They always have a convenient excuse for not being able to show you their contractor's license.

5. They will never give you a written contract, or a reference that can be verified immediately.

"The simplest way to avoid being cheated is to ask to see their C-27 landscape contractor's license," says Curtis. "And take a good look at it. any of them are clever enough to pawn off a $3.00 business license for the real thing."

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Rancho Los Cerritos Board of Realtors on September 4 will be U.S. Rep. Del Clawson. Clawson, representing the 23rd Congressional District, is a member of the House Committee on Banking and Currency and was mayor of Compton from 1957 to 1963.

Clawson will bring the members of the Real Estate Board up-to-date on the happenings in Washington and pending legislation which will affect their interests.

RADAR STANDS GUARD

A unique radar alarm system installed in their storage yard and warehouse has greatly reduced theft and vandalism for Harbor Truck Lines, Wilmington.

With burglary at warehouses and on the waterfront on the upswing, Harbor needed an alarm system geared for complete 24-hour protection. Specializing in container handling, they needed to insure protection of their clients' containers which are often left in the outdoor yard overnight before pickup or delivery.

The new system utilizes invisible micro-waves to penetrate solid walls and doors. According to the systems developers, Imperial Electronics of Hermosa Beach, Harbor is the first and only trucking firm in the country to install such equipment in their yard.

Called the Radar Sentry Alarm, the system radiates micro-waves up to 5,000 sq. ft. per antenna; a system of three antennae can protect 15,000 sq. ft.

Harbor Truck Lines vice-president Ed Grady, says the new radar equipment is proving highly successful in protecting their container yard as well as the company's 100,000 sq. ft. public warehouse. He reports that the system is so sensitive that it was recently set off by a cat walking across the warehouse floor.

The Radar Sentry Alarm employs all solid-state circuitry and easily maintained printed-circuit modules.

Ram Revenge in San Diego, 24-14

SAN DIEGO — Roman Gabriel threw for one touchdown and plunged for another and Ron Smith electrified a record crowd with a 78-yard punt return Saturday night as the Rams beat San Diego, 24-14, in a preseason football game.

A crowd of 53,071, including President Nixon, saw the game between the National Football League Rams and the American Football League Chargers.

The Rams scored all their points in the first half and then held off the Chargers.

Rams .....10 14 0 0—24
Chargers ..... 0 7 7 0—14

FIRST QUARTER

Rams 10, Chargers 0. Although the Rams failed to pick up a first down the first period, the Angelenos built up a 10-0 cushion on David Ray's 39-yard field goal and Ron Smith's dazzling 78-yard punt return.

Ray put the Rams on the scoreboard when Mo Pottios forced Russ Smith to fumble on the Charger 39. Four plays later Ray booted his three-pointer, his second as a Ram in two attempts this summer.

Ron Smith then stunned the partisan crowd with his punt return, ending three weeks of frustration when long runbacks were nullified by penalties. Smith was sprung initially by Alvin Haymond's block.

The Chargers held a 4-0 advantage in first downs, 39-11 margin rushing while John Hadl outpassed Roman Gabriel 51 yards to 6. But as one press box wag shouted: What's the score?

SECOND QUARTER

Rams 24, Chargers 7. Gabriel caught fire the second quarter and made monkeys of the Chargers' defense. After Partee put the Rams in a hole with a 53-yard punt, Gabriel drove his mates 76 yards in nine plays. The rugged quarterback connected on four passes without a miss in the drive — 11 yards to Bill Truax, 13 to Wendell Tucker, 4 more to Tucker and 9 to Jack Snow.

After Larry Smith broke two tackles and swept 17 yards to S.D.'s 5, Gabe slashed four yards on a keeper to the 1 and then rammed the final yard for the score to push the visitors ahead, 17-0.

After giving way for one

PULLS GROIN MUSCLE

Shaky Shutout by Osteen

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

The Dodgers' pitching, already a trifle up in the air with the loss of bullpen whiz Jim Brewer, got another scare Saturday night at Dodger Stadium when Claude Osteen had to leave with a pulled muscle while working on his fourth shutout of the month.

Osteen breezed seven innings-plus but pulled a groin muscle in the eighth, requiring Pete Mikkelsen to come in and complete the shutout, 2-0 over Philadelphia for the Dodgers' fourth win in the last five starts.

After the game trainer Bill Buhler disclosed the injury didn't appear to be serious but couldn't be sure yet if Gomer will be able to take his next turn, scheduled for Wednesday night against the Mets.

"The same thing happened a couple of years ago," Osteen said, answering inquiries about the injury. "It was at Cincinnati and I was working on a shutout then, too. But that time was a lot worse. I just hope I don't miss that next turn."

Even so, Osteen got the win, his 18th for the high mark of his career.

And Mikkelsen, taking up the slack in the pen when Brewer was sent to the hospital, responded with a perfect relief job for his third save of the year. Mikkelsen's now worked 14 games since the All-Star break and has given up but seven runs while winning three.

Aside from Osteen's plight, it was a grand evening.

Willie Davis added to his hitting streak, now at 27 games in a row, and the Dodgers shuffled to within a game of the lead in the National League's jammed-up Western Division.

As for Willie's streak, which now matches Duke Snider's 27 game spree in 1953, Davis got an assist from the scorer, Dick Robinson of the Pasadena Star-News, and Willie D. admits it.

"It was a gift, I know that," Willie smiled. "But that infield is awfully

Baltimore Panic Subsides as Orioles Stagger Angels

By DON MERRY
Staff Writer

BALTIMORE — The good life ended Saturday night.

Baltimore's downtrodden Orioles, losers in eight of their last 11 games and only a mere 12½ lengths in front of the Detroit Tigers in American League East, staged a momentary revival and brought some peace of mind back to Maryland when they slipped the Angels a 6-3 setback.

Maybe it was panic. Maybe it was pride. Or, maybe the Angels simply ran out of miracles. Whatever the motivation, Earl Weaver the Oriole manager, was smiling for the first time in a week when he said, "That's more like it."

Incredible as it may sound, the people who inhabit the shores of Chesapeake Bay were discussing things like doomsday and the collapses of the '51 Dodgers and the '64 Phillies after the Angels won Friday's twi-nighter and stretched their winning streak to six.

Manager Weaver reluctantly announced that 112 victories and a new American record was no longer of vital importance and that the prime objective was the clinching of the pennant. As far removed as the Tigers are from contention, the Birds thought they were beginning to pick up the faint sound of footsteps approaching from the rear.

Baltimore went into Saturday's game with 30 playing dates remaining.

Weaver took one hard look at the schedule and declared, "We'd better win 20." If they do, that will give the Orioles 109 victories and alas, no new record to go along with the pennant.

"It would have been nice," Weaver admitted, "but no more discussing records until we get this thing wrapped up."

The Birds rattled four Angel pitchers for 11 hits and brought Lefty Phillips and Co. back to earth.

Not to be outdone, however, the Angels managed to make an imprint on the record book when ageless Hoyt Wilhelm teamed up with battery mate Joe Azcue in the seventh inning.

The result was three passed balls charged to Azcue on successive pitches that allowed Brooks Robinson to advance from first

HE HAS HEART OF A TIGER

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Tigers catcher Bill Freehan suffered a "fibrillation" of the heart in Saturday's game against Seattle, but team physician Dr. Russell Wright said it was nothing to worry about.

"It has happened to him many times since he was a child," Wright said. "And when it has happened that often to someone like Bill it couldn't be fatal."

A fibrillation, according to the dictionary, is "very rapid irregular contractions of the muscle fibers of the heart resulted in a lack of synchronism between heartbeat and pulse beat."

THE 27-YEAR-OLD Freehan suffered it while he was on deck in the sixth inning with Al Kaline at bat. Kaline had a pinch-hit single to tie the game 3-3 and Freehan got excited.

"My heart started going thump, thump, thump," he said, patting his hand rapidly over his heart. "I went into the dugout and Dr. Wright squeezed my neck as treatment and then I went to bat."

Then the All-Star catcher belted a double to left field to drive in the winning run as Detroit won, 4-3.

"I squeezed the carotid artery which prevents the blood momentarily from going to the brain," Dr. Wright said.

"I still had a pain in my chest when I hit the double," Freehan said. "But I've had it since I was a kid. It's not a heart attack, or anything like that."

5-STROKE MARGIN FOR AMATEUR TITLISTS

Hefty Melnyk Buries Foes in Sand

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Sopping the pressure in his 235-pound frame like a sponge, Steve Melnyk charged to a one under par 32-38—70 Saturday to win the 69th annual U.S. Amateur Golf Championship by five strokes.

The 22-year-old Melnyk, university of Florida senior, posted a 72 hole total of two-over-par 286 as he left his closest pursuers, Vinnie Giles and Allen Miller buried in the 187 sand traps of Oakmont Country Club's demanding 6,670-yard course.

"All I kept saying to myself was just try and par every hole." Melnyk said. "You never know how much of a lead is enough of a lead."

Melnyk's 72-hole score as the third lowest ever posted at Oakmont and placed in some pretty good company. Ben Hogan, Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus posted 283s, and Phil Rodgers and Bobby Nichols 285s in U.S. Open competition over the course.

Giles staggered home second for the third successive year, the first in the history of the tournament

Stanford R. N. Morrow and James C. Critchfield have been appointed training directors for the National Alliance of Businessmen, it was announced by John P. Condon, Orange County NAB director.

NAB, established nationally in 1968 by President Johnson and continued and expanded by President Nixon, is providing jobs in private industry and business for disadvantaged persons who in the past have been considered unemployable.

Morrow and Critchfield's responsibilities include training of supervisors to cope with special problems involved with orienting disadvantaged persons to a working environment. In addition, they will counsel fellow employes of the new job-holders on these same problems.

The training will be done at one-day seminars as required by companies participating in the NAB program.

Morrow is on loan full time to NAB from Southern Counties Gas Company, where he specilaizes in functional and management training.

He resides at 364 S. California St., Orange, with his wife, Dorothy, and is a member of the board of the Planned Parenthood Association of Orange County. The couple has a son and daughter.

Critchfield is on loan from McDonnell Douglas Company, where he is in industrial training.

He and his wife, Lillian, live at 1680 Tedmar Ave., Anaheim. The couple has two daughters and a son.

BUSINESS WORKSHOP

Alvin P. Meyers, regional director, Small Business Administration, Los Angeles, announced that SBA will conduct a one-day workshop for people planning to start businesses of their own. There will be no fees. The meeting will be held in the Auditorium of the Los Angeles Police building, at 150 North Los Angeles St., Los Angeles, starting at 9 a.m. on Monday, September 8 and will last until 4:30.

The purpose of this all-day meeting is to prepare individuals to better operate a business of their own. Many "do's and don'ts" will be brought to their attention throughout the proceedings.

Meyers said SBA's aim is to inform the potential businessman of the advantages in becoming his own boss, while at the same time pointing out some of the "pitfalls" in owning and operating a business. Questions will be answered after each presentation as well as the end of the day.

Interesting and important presentations will be given by local businessmen on such subjects as finance, record keeping, taxes, site location, insurance coverage, general administrative management matters, and the best form of business to select.

Limited seating arrangements are available. For further information call or write the SBA office, Los Angeles, telephone: 688-2935, or 686-2924. Do not call the Police building.

Blonde to Teach Higher Escrow

A petite blonde, who looks more like a model than a college professor, will teach the Advanced Escrow course at Orange Coast College this fall.

Lourena Strozensky, assistant secretary and chief escrow officer at Mariners Savings and Loan Association, will begin teaching the course Sept. 8 from 7 to 10 p.m. It will continue on Monday nights for the duration of the fall semester.

The course will cover standards of professional rapport with the general public as well as technicalities in handling escrows, such as exchange escrows, bulk sales, and escrow court cases.

Mrs. Strozensky has been active in the escrow business in Southern California for the past 15 years.

Hospital Project Started

Groundbreaking for Esperanza Intercommunity Hospital was conducted Saturday on the site at Bastanchury (Citrus) between Rose Drive and Prospect Avenue, according to Harry Stewart, administrator of the new unit.

Plans have been under way for the hospital for more than a year. The 18-acre parcel is slated for an entire medical complex, which will include a medical center for professional offices and a 99-bed extended care facility, as well as the full-range general hospital.

The hospital will be built first, with the other developments started as soon as they are needed.

Stewart, who also is administrator of Fullerton Community Hospital and a member of the board of American Hospital Management Corp., which will build the hospital, said plans have been approved by the State Department of Public Health and the next step will be final building permits from the city.

He said strikes in the construction industry could delay construction, but that work will proceed as rapidly as possible. Clearing of the area is in progress.

The architecture will be early California-Spanish, keynoted by a red tile roof. A full basement is planned, with two stories above ground. The facility will include a maternity ward, an emergency room and special units for coronary and intensive care.

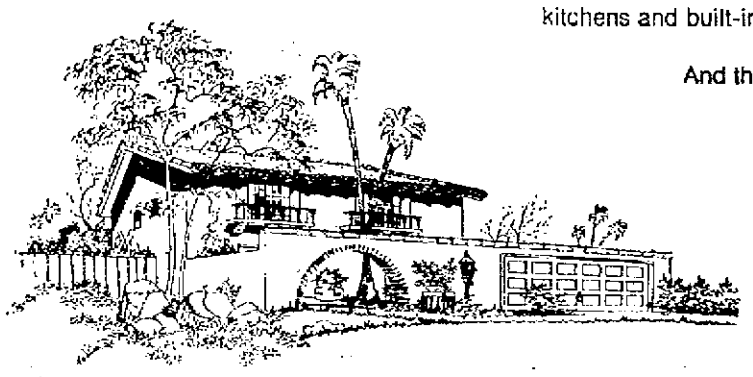

The hospital can be expanded to 250 beds, as needed, Stewart said.

Loans Disbursed

Long Beach real estate loans totaling $1,460,000 were disbursed during the first seven months of 1969 by the western home office of the Prudential Insurance Co., according to Isaac C. Corns, Southern California regional general manager for the company's real estate investment department.

ROCK ISLAND REPORT:

They Hate the Nitehawks . . but Love Hopkins

Sometimes it takes a trip away from home to really discover what's at home. Such was the position of Connie Mcairs, long-suffering spouse of Red Meairs, manager of the Long Beach Nitehawks, who are on the verge of capturing another national softball title.

In her letter upon Sheraton Plaza stationary from Rock Island, Ill., Connie had these remarks. Oh, in advance we'd like to mention that we're dumbfounded that Rock Island, a simple railroad stop, has a Sheraton establishment.

Take note, Conrad Hilton.

"Thought you may enjoy seeing the articles in the Rock Island Argus," penned Connie. "Our Nitehawks draw the largest crowds. The people come to root against us, but THEY DO COME. Sometimes it is hard being a wife sitting in the stands listening to the remarks. You keep still, though."

Connie's comment reminds of the first season that

HANK HOLLINGWORTH
Executive Sports Editor

Ginger Drysdale watched her husband pitch. A slight woman, Ginger wanted to belt every obnoxious fan in sight.

Don cooled the situation with this simple remark. "Honey," said the Big D., "just ask them how much money they're taking to the bank each week." Ginger laughed, then cooled. She no longer had rabbit ears.

Continues Connie: "A wife keeps cheering against tremendous odds. We have three wives here with eight children, plus two loyal fans who have followed the Nitehawks for many years.

"Also, after being here for seven out of nine years, we have made a few kind and loyal friends. So last night was a thrill to win against Green Bay. Believe me, the Nitehawks have put Long Beach on the map for the area here in the Midwest.

"The people around here still are talking of last year's marathon of winning the tournament in one day by playing five games. The articles I've enclosed I wanted to share with you."

NICK HOPKINS
'Not Interested' in Baseball

KEY FIGURE in Rock Island, as of the writing, is Nitehawk shotstop Nick Hopkins, who matriculated from Wilson High and was with two major league baseball organizations.

Rock Island sports editor Murray Hurt puts it this way:

"World tournament fans have grown accustomed to watching Hopkins glide gracefully to the ball, glove it and effortlessly throw to first.

"It's something of a shock, then, to learn that during Nick's minor league days, he was a 'good-hit, no-field' shortstop."

Hopkins, a young 32, always hit well in the minors and can point to a .324 mark with Greensboro in 1956 as proof.

Then, Nick has a point which several other younger men should consider today: "Actually, I was too immature at the time when the pros signed me for hardball. At the age — 18 to 20 — kids just don't realize what they're doing. Too many of them, me included, just go out for a good time. What is important is this is their way of making a living.

"I really think I could have made the majors good if I'd taken the game seriously." So do many others, Nick.

NICK WAS SIGNED by the Boston Red Sox out of Wilson High and roamed from 1955-58 from Corning, Greensboro and then to Albany. Obviously, he had problems in those days. "The Giants bought my contract, then I got married and didn't want to play anymore."

That's how a wife will affect one.

"Then," continued Nick, "the Giants contacted me three or four times in three years, but I just wasn't interested. But I'm plenty interested in softball. I think it's the greatest game in the world.

"I couldn't hit a lick when I first tried softball. I'd always been a righthander. Finally, I went to the other side. It took me four or five years to really get onto it," remarked Hopkins. "But it really gives you a big advantage in reaching first base."

Shades of Maury Wills and Chuck Stevens.

WHEN YOUR TEAM leaves town, you learn things. Nick has been the backbone of the Nitehawks for several seasons, but the Rock Island reporter hit the nail on the head when he spelled out Hopkins' specifics.

"He probably plays the deepest shortstop in softball," wrote Hurt. Now I don't know how deep a shortstop has to play. Even Wills doesn't have the answer. But Mr. Hurt phrases it this way:

"At times it looks as though Hopkins is playing short left-field. And it doesn't seem possible that he could throw out a runner from that distance."

Nick's response: "I like to come in on everything I field. Playing deep I can get to balls that normally would go through for hits, and I'm still quick enough to come in for the soft ones."

Green Bay can vouch for Hopkins' ability to cut off hits. He ranged far behind third for a high-hopper that seemed a certain double. It went for an out. The next inning he went the other way, racing almost into center field to glove a ball and convert it into an out.

They love Hopkins in Rock Island, and small wonder.

Tigers Collect McLain's 21st

DETROIT (AP) — Denny McLain won his 21st game and Bill Freehan drove in the winning run with a double as Detroit edged Seattle 4-3 Saturday.

The Pilots got five hits and their three runs off McLain in the first three innings before he settled down to hold Seattle hitless the rest of the way.

The victory upped McLain's major league leading record to 21-6. He won 31 games last year and also won 20 in 1966.

The Tigers trailed 3-2 in the sixth when Jim Northrup greeted reliever John O'Donoghue with a double and Willie Horton walked. Pinch-hitter Al Kaline singled off Bob Locker with one out, driving in Northrup with the tying run and Horton scored the go-ahead run when Freehan doubled.

METS WIN IN 10TH, 3-2

Clendenon Ends S.F. Streak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Donn Clendenon ripped a two-out homer in the 10th inning, giving the New York Mets a 3-2 decision over San Francisco Saturday and ending the Giants' winning streak at nine games.

The triumph, coupled with Chicago's win over Atlanta, kept the Mets 3½ games behind the Cubs in the National League's Eastern Division and the Giants still on top in the Western.

Clendenon's ninth homer of the year sailed over the right center field wall. It came on a two-strike pitch by loser Gaylord Perry.

The Giants had tied the score 2-2 on Willie McCovey's run-scoring double in the seventh. Then San Francisco had two runners thrown out at home plate in the next two innings.

Pinch runner Ken Henderson was cut down at the plate in the eighth after hesitating before trying to score on a fly to short right field by Jim Davenport.

In the ninth, Bob Burda singled with one out and McCovey dropped a hit down the left field line. Burda tried to score on the play but was thrown out by Rod Gaspar. Then McCovey was doubled at third trying to stretch his two-base hit.

ANGELS LOSE TO O'S---

to home with the final Oriole run of the evening. It also allowed Azcue to grab a share of the dubious mark for most passed balls in an inning.

Previous claimants to this standard were three Baltimore catchers — Gus Triandos, Joe Ginsberg and Charlie Lau — all of whom were battling Wilhelm's knuckleball at the time. The National League record is four, held by Ray Katt of the Giants. Needless to add, Wilhelm was the pitcher on that occasion, too.

The Angels erased 1-0 and 3-1 deficits but ran out of rallies after the Orioles shelled Clyde Wright for two runs in the sixth on back-to-back doubles by Dave Johnson and Andy Etchebarren and Merv Rettenmund's sacrifice fly.

Brooks Robinson, who entered the game with a futile 1-for-31 log against Angel pitching, drove in the first Baltimore run off starter Steve Kealey in the third. Roger Repoz squared accounts in a hurry by lofting a Tom Phoebus pitch into the upper deck in right field in the fourth.

A single by Phoebus and Rettenmund's homer kayoed Kealey in the fifth but again the Angels battled back in their next turn.

Billy Cowan led off with his third home run of the year and Fregosi walked. Jay Johnstone appeared to have kept the pot boiling with a single to right but strayed too far from first after rounding the bag and was rapped off base as Fregosi took third.

Bubba Morton doubled to left but, because of Johnstone's mistake, only Fregosi scored on the play.

Dave Leonhard hurled the last 3 1-3 innings for the Orioles and earned his seventh victory.

ANGEL ANGLES: First Baseman Jim Spencer was taken to Union Memorial Hospital for overnight observation after being hit on the top of the helmet by a Tom Phoebus pitch in the first inning. . . . Preliminary reports said Spencer appeared to have escaped serious injury.

It's Rudy May against Mike Cuellar in today's game which will have a 2:30 starting time on the West Coast. . . . The Angels have won 19 and lost 13 since the All-Star Game, the best record of any team in the American League West. . . . Davy McNally may have a 17-5 record but he has not presented any problem for the Angels. . . He is 0-2 against the Halos and has permitted 14 runs and 28 hits in 18 2/3 innings for a less-than-modest 6.63 ERA. . . . Rick Reichardt was not in the starting lineup Saturday and more medical tests are in the offing for the Angel left fielder today . . . . Rick will be given a thorough check-up after complaining of headaches, dizziness and possible kidney trouble between games Friday.

ANGEL OF DAY

BILL COWAN, an emergency replacement for Jim Spencer, socked third homer of year in 6-3 loss to Baltimore.

'PEPI' NOT READY YET

NEW YORK (AP — The New York Yankees finally came face-to-face with missing first baseman Joe Pepitone Saturday and quoted him as saying he "was not yet psychologically prepared to rejoin the team."

Cubs Start Fast, Hold Off Braves

ATLANTA (UPI) — Glenn Beckert's sacrifice fly scored Don Kessinger with the deciding run in the seventh inning Saturday and reliever Phil Regan held off Atlanta the rest of the way as the Chicago Cubs edged the Braves 5-4.

Kessinger, who drove in a run earlier with a triple, led off the seventh with a double, and moved up when Larry Maxie uncorked a wild pitch. Beckert then lifted a sacrifice fly to left and Kessinger scored easily.

The Cubs got three runs in the first inning after two were out when Billy Williams doubled, Ron Santo singled and Ernie Banks hit a two-run homer, his 21st of the season and the 495th of his career.

Hank Aaron hit his 37th home run of the season and 547th of his career in the seventh for the Braves.

Bob Griggs May Be Youngest Refinery Super in the Nation

At 33 Robert A. (Bob) Griggs may not be the youngest refinery superintendent in the country, but he is among them, though the installation he runs was "born" 13 years before he was.

This, the Signal Hill Refinery of the Macmillan Ring Free Oil Company, was built in 1923, the first in the flamboyant, 1920s' hey-day of the "The Hill" and, at age 46, it is still going strong.

For that matter, beginning to do so again is Signal Hill, 'in cooperation' with the oil industry.

Partly inspired by a secondary oil recovery program now being launched, a $2.8 million 1969-1970 budget ($1 million over the previous year has been just adopted to begin a 10-year program of capital expansion for the City of Signal Hill.

As it has continuously done, the Macmillan Ring Free Oil Refinery, with more than 100 employees, will be an integral part of the whole program, says its superintendent.

And, though comparatively young, Bog Griggs has been around. Several Macmillan employees and officers have been in the oil business longer than he is old, including his immedate boss, Superintendent of Manufacturing, Bruce May who has 42 years with the company.

Griggs, a strapping, six-foot, 210-pounder, Los Angeles-born Lomita-raised, is one-quarter Cherokee Indian, "The rest is English, Scotch and Irish".

When he went to work for Macmillan 12 years ago, Bob was just one month shy of his 21st birthday (May 26). From there it was a matter of application to the business for the brown-eyed ex-Narbonne High School footballer.

While studying courses related to all phases of processing, and "getting a lot of help from management and technical people", the dedicated Griggs earned his way up.

His work included service as a yield clerk and in transportation; then five years in the industrial sales division— covering outside sales, construction and product application — thence into manufacture (primely, Lake Liners and Color Coating products).

There followed tenure as assistant to the refinery superintendent then, in January, 1969, elevation to his new post.

Griggs, the father of four, a daughter of 15 and three younger sons, resides in Lakewood.

Restaurant Group Treasurer Named

David Tallichet, President of Specialty Restaurants Corporation, today announced the appointment of Michael D. McClelland, 30, of (2505 W. Garvey) Alhambra, as Treasurer of the view-oriented, national restaurant group.

Tallichet said McClelland would assume his new duties immediately. The new treasurer will be in charge of acquisitions and mergers, corporate finance development and investment community relations.

McClelland formerly was with the Bank of California. He joined that banking firm in 1964 in San Francisco and was transferred to Southern California headquarters in Los Angeles in 1965. He has been Asst. Vice President in Commercial Loans since his transfer.

Tallichet said McClelland's appointment marked another step in the rapid development of Specialty Restaurants. He said the emphasis on the duties of the new treasurer would be in the area of acquisitions and mergers.

Specialty Restaurants Corporation owns or operates unique restaurants constructed on sites chosen for spectacular or unusual views. Its restaurant group is in California, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Specialty Restaurants in Southern California are The Reef in the Port of Long Beach, The Ports O'Call, Yankee Whaler and Rum Runner in the Port of Los Angeles, Gate of Spain in Santa Monica, The Proud Bird on the final approach to Los Angeles International Airport, The Pieces of 8 in Marina Del Ray, The Castaways in Burbank and Pomona and Los Robles Inn in Thousand Oaks. Two restaurants are currently in construction including an a la carte restaurant on the 40th floor of the Crocker-Citizens Plaza Building in downtown Los Angeles.

We'll unload your old house and load up your new one.

We're here to sell homes. And you want to buy one. So here's our deal:

We'll sell your old house at top market value. If you have an existing FHA or VA loan, we'll see to it that you're able to use your equity as cash, without paying "points" (the cost of refinancing).

Or we'll put your house on our Guaranteed Sale Program. If it doesn't sell, we'll buy it ourselves — for cash — at the value set by a professional appraiser, less normal selling costs.

And we'll guarantee you'll have your equity money before you need it to complete the purchase of our home. Guarantee, not try.

We'll take the load off your mind, too, when it comes to buy-sell details. Walker & Lee will handle both transactions, professionally.

If you buy before the end of August, you'll be moved in before the fall semester starts.

To make our bigger, better, brand-new home even more irresistible, we'll pack into it everything you need and want (to keep the cost of good living down).

Like plush carpeting throughout the house including every bedroom, not just yours.

And fencing, both sides and rear, with a gate to the front. Your enclosed back yard can be as deep as 80 feet.

And complete front yard landscaping. Lawn. Shrubs. Walkways. Ground cover. Flower beds, with flowers. And a full-grown specimen tree it would take you years to grow.

Your neighbors get the same deal, so you know your neighborhood won't look brand new for long.

What else? A lifetime concrete driveway. A self-cleaning oven. A dishwasher and all the other today-type conveniences your old house hasn't got.

Take your pick—3, 4, or 5-bedroom plans with 2 or 3 baths, bonus storage space, terrace kitchens with roomy pantry, walk-in closets, separate service room, formal dining room, and fireplace in the family room. If we told you more, you wouldn't believe it.

You have to see for yourself. We're here every day from 10 to 7, until 8 on Sunday.

85,532 See Pack Come Back, Percival's Kicks Crush Bills

Combined News Services

CLEVELAND — Fleet Travis Williams scored two touchdowns to lead the Green Bay Packers to a come-from-behind 27-17 victory Saturday night over the Cleveland Browns before the largest crowd ever to see a game in Cleveland — 85,532.

The attendance at the game, second half of the annual pro football doubleheader, broke the old record — 84,918 — set in last year's doubleheader.

In the first game the Chicago Bears defeated the Buffalo Bills, 23-16, as Mac Percival kicked five field goals and Gale Sayers ran for one touchdown.

Percival connected on field goals of 25, 33, and 16 yards in the first half as the Bears took a 17-13 lead. He added field goals of 31 and 27 to put the game out of reach in the second half.

The Bills' great rookie, O.J. Simpson, was overshadowed by unhearalded Bobby Thornton, 14th draft choice from TCU. Thornton ran a kickoff back 97 yards for a touchdown in the second quarter, Simpson helping him with a brilliant block near midfield. Thornton also returned a kickoff 63 yards just before the end of the half.

Simpson gained eight yards on three carries and caught two passes for 26 yards while Sayers gained 11 yards on three carries and caught three passes for 25 yards in the game. Both players sat out the entire second half. Simpson returned two kickoffs for 36 yards and 27 yards.

Late Rally by Eagles Nips Giants

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The Philadelphia Eagles, behind the alert play calling of Norm Snead and the bulldozing running of Tom Woodeschick and Harry Wilson, overcame a 14-point third quarter deficit and beat the New York Giants, 24-17, Saturday in a National Football League exhibition game.

A Palmer Stadium crowd of 47,000 saw the Giants, leading 10-3 at halftime, move to a 17-3 lead late in the third quarter on a 22-yard touchdown run by Joe Morrison.

STARS OF 1950s LISTED

Otto, Sam, Crazy Legs . . . and Pro Football Bloomed

Combined News Services

NEW YORK — Now for the instant replay.

Watch closely and you'll see Bobby Layne, Raymond Berry, Crazy Legs Hirsch, Bill George.

Here it is again in slow motion: Roosevelt Brown, Chuck Bednarik, Gino Marchetti, Lou Groza.

The isolated camera is on the greatest players of the 1950s as selected by the National Football League on one of its all-star teams for each decade since pro football's birth 50 years ago.

Norm Van Brocklin didn't wear a Fu Manchu or white shoes, but he got the job done every Sunday.

Pro football was in a lower tax bracket then, but it was hardly lacking in excitement.

Free substitution brought about the development of specialists, first on offense and then on defense, and within the decade the game underwent a marked revolution.

Otto Graham, the quarterback for the Cleveland Browns, represented the field general who could march his forces downfield with precision.

Sam Huff, the middle linebacker for the New York Giants, became synonomous with violence.

That clash of precision offenses against violent defenses stirred the crowd appeal that has made pro football probably the No. 1 spectator sport in the country.

RAMS RAP CHARGERS—

series to rookie Marty Domres, Hadl returned to direct the S.D. attack. After flipping a 44-yard pass to Lance Alworth, the Rams dug in and Partee's 31-yard field goal effort sailed wide and the Rams still led, 17-0. Partee also had a 49-yard fielder blocked at the outset of the period.

The chargers came right back following Pat Studstill's 33-yard punt. Aided by a personal foul penalty on Deacon Jones and a 20-yard pass interference infraction on Richie Petitbon which stationed the Chargers on the Ram 3, Hadl flipped a soft pass to Alworth with 1:44 left in the half. Keith Lincoln added the extra point.

The Rams immediately went into their Chinese fire drill offense and stormed 56 yards in seven plays, Gabriel capping the march with a five-yard dart to Truax in the end zone. During the battle with the clock, Tommy Mason slashed 16 yards on a draw and Snow made a dazzling grab for another 19-yard advance. After Gabe was spilled for a five-yard loss by Houston Ridge on the S.D. 15, the cool working QB rifled a 10-yard spiral to Larry Smith with 10 seconds left. On the next play Truax clutched Gabe's throw to give the Rams a hefty 24-7 lead.

During the second period, the Rams picked up 10 first downs Gabe completed 12 of 16 passes in the half for 97 yards and Hadl was 10 of 19 for 153 yards.

THIRD QUARTER

Rams 24, Chargers 14. Just when it seemed the Chargers were ready to concede the Governor's Cup to L.A., Hadl and Gary Garrison combined on a 72-yard touchdown pass-run which brought the stadium's cannon-brigade to life. Hadl fired sion in the right flat and the Long Beach product gave Willie Daniel a couple of fakes, stepped clear of his grasp and broke upfield with no one touching him in his foot race to the goal line. Lincoln's PAT left the Chargers trailing, 24-14, with 11:17 left.

The Rams failed to pick up a first down the next time they had possession and San Diego threatened again, crunching all the way to the Ram 10 before Lincoln blew a 17-yard field goal with 2:02 remaining in the period.

Unitas Discovers To Err Is Human

MIAMI (AP) John Unitas shook off a schoolboy mistake Saturday night and drove the Baltimore Colts to two touchdowns — one on a 98-yard march — to ignite a 23-10 pre-season win over the Miami Dolphins in the Orange Bowl.

The 36-year-old Unitas erred on Baltimore's first series and it put the National Football League champions in a 7-0 hole. His quick, standup pass to Willie Richardson was picked off by Miami's Jimmy Warren at the Colts' 17 and Warren sailed untouched to score.

Slow Start, but Namath Tops Vikes

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (UPI) — Joe Namath, finding his form in the third quarter, led the New York Jets to a 24-21 decision over the Minnesota Vikings Saturday night.

Namath completed only 6 of 15 passes in the first half, but one of those was a 76-yard scoring toss to Don Maynard. He hit George Sauer with an 11-yard scoring toss in the third period while completing 7 of 9 passes in the drive.

Namath, who played three quarters of the contest, finished the night with 15 completions in 24 attempts for 219 yards.

The Vikings went all the way with quarterback Gary Cuozzo and he completed 15 of 32 passes for 186 yards.

Barney Return Ignites Detroit

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI — Quarterback Bill Munson threw for two touchdowns and defensive back Lem Barney raced 72 yards with a blocked field goal to lead the Detroit Lions to a 21-20 exhibition football victory over the Washington Redskins Saturday night.

The Redskins charged back with less than two minutes to go when Gerry Allen went over from two yards out after Brig Owens had intercepted a Munson pass. But an onsides kick by the Redskins failed and Detroit ran out the clock.

The Lions came from behind twice after Washington quarterback Sonny Jurgensen threw for a touchdown and Charlie Gogolak kicked two extra points, with the winning score a 23-yard pass to Mel Farr from Munson.

The Redskins had dominated most of the game until late in the third period when the Lions' Paul Naumoff and Mike Lucci blocked a Gogolak field goal attempt.

Barney gathered in the blocked kick on his own 28 and raced untouched down the sideline to score.

Munson had hit Charlie Sanders with a four-yard scoring pass late in the second quarter.

BABES IN THE BUSHES

RICH ROBERTS

IDAHO FALLS, Ida. — It's a night game but it starts at 7:30 when the sun is still high because the people go to bed early in Idaho Falls.

Soon the shadows will stretch into a warm summer evening and the lights atop long wooden poles will come on, drawing the insects — and, on a good night, maybe 200 fans.

"They have to spray us before every game," says Rich Bailey. "The gnats bite right through your sanitaries."

Dave Chorley, Bailey's outfielding buddy, laughs. "When I catch a fly ball I have a habit of opening my mouth. Afterward I have to cough 'em up."

This is where it starts, here in the minors, in rookie leagues like the Pioneer League subsidized by the majors, providing a route to the pot of gold rather remote for two youngsters who had been living under the rainbow all their lives.

Less than three months ago Chorley and Bailey were Millikan High teammates. Suddenly one summer they are pros. Someday they may be Angels. But that's rushing it. As their brief baptismal season winds up this weekend, they are still getting used to being pros.

"I'm 17, and it was the biggest step I'd taken. All of a sudden, here I am . . . on my own."—Dave Chorley.

"It's not quite the same," says Chorley, who received a bonus of between $25,000 and $30,000 from the Angels. "I mean, baseball in high school, you play twice a week and you really get up for the game mentally. Here you play every day and sometimes it's hard . . . especially doubleheaders, when you get beat 18-1 the first game and you're tired and dead and then have to play another game."

"You get up in the morning and it's the same routine every day," says Bailey. "You eat and you're at the field and you come home and you go to bed and there isn't much to do in between. It's still fun . . but we're working at it now."

CHORLEY AND BAILEY are 17 . . . as Bailey says, "Babies." Idaho Falls is a quiet, pleasant city astride the Snake River where major road and rail traffic meets in southeastern Idaho. But it isn't Southern California. It isn't home.

"I thought it'd be worse," confesses Bailey. "I thought we'd be staying in an outhouse or something. I thought Idaho Falls was a country store and that's about it.

"What was really bad, though, was that I flew up here all by myself, stepped off the plane and went right to the ballpark. There was a doubleheader that night. I sat through it and it was about eight hours long and we got slaughtered 20-2 and 19-3, or something like that. My eyes were open but I was asleep on the bench."

Chorley says, "It was easier for me because I had a friend up here. When I came, Rich was waiting on the curb for me. He took me and showed me all the places to go, like if you want to get pizza or mess around after a game.

"But it gets progressively worse. After a bad game sometimes you think, 'Aw, I wish I was home. I don't want to play ball any more.'"

"But you're not up here on a vacation," Bailey interjects with mock enthusiasm. "You're up here to work! That's the biggest thing to get accustomed to — your summer being gone. I miss the beach and stuff, just being around the house, laying there watching color TV . . . but I miss my girl friend the most."

Chorley contemplates his tall glass of milk and muses, "At home I could just go to the refrigerator and take out some cold milk and a sandwich. A lot of places up here the milk's too warm. Isn't that a crazy thing to miss . . . cold milk?"

ONE THING the Idaho Falls Angels offer is a chance to travel, to places like Caldwell, Idaho; Billings, Montana; Salt Lake City or Ogden, Utah. By bus.

"That was my biggest hangup when I got here," says Bailey. "There were so many guys. On a bus guys would have to sleep in the aisle."

The club's longest bus ride, to Billings, takes about eight hours. Sometimes it seems longer.

"We had the worst ride the other night," Chorley says. "We hit a skunk and dragged it with us all the way home. It smelled up the bus and guys kept their heads out the windows, even though it was 40 degrees outside."

Bailey makes a face: "I've never smelled a skunk before. Guys were sticking pillows over their heads. It was just terrible. You couldn't breathe."

Chorley and Bailey had little idea what they were getting into.

"I talked to a lot of people before I signed," says Dave. "I was ready for it . . . I think . . . but you can't imagine what it will be like."

It's a big moment when the signature goes onto the contract.

"That's what it is," says Bailey, dramatizing again. "You sell your soul!"

Bailey says he chose the Angels because "they were in the cellar and you'd have a real good chance of getting up there quickly."

"It was being away from home that was really the big thing. Gosh, I was going into a world unknown."—Rich Bailey.

Chorley says, "I never thought about that. To be real honest with you, I signed because I got the money I wanted. I never thought of the team."

THE PROCESS of signing still fascinates the youngsters.

"That first night the scout was at your house from about 7 to midnight," Rich says to Dave, "and then he came to my house from 1 to 5 in the morning."

"He came over about every night," Dave says, "and he'd stay . . . stay right through . . . you know, we were supposed to be eating, but he'd stay right through and he'd talk and talk. He was a real nice guy but he just scared me off."

Later Chorley worked out an agreement with Dick Walsh, the Angels' general manager who "really impressed me."

Before he knew it, Dave was in Idaho Falls. "I'd been playing for Salta in the Collegiate League and we played the day before, so I kept forgetting this was my first time up in pro ball. But I got a single."

Bailey recalls it vividly. "You get up to the plate and you realize, 'Well, you're starting a career.' I walked."

'Robinson's Revenge' Blow to Detroit U.

DAVE LEWIS
Sports Editor

HITTIN' THE HIGH SPOTS: Like most stories which hit the headlines suddenly, Spencer Haywood's signing a professional contract with the ABA's Denver Rockets, despite having two years of college eligibility remaining, was a real shocker.

Haywood, the 6-8 center who was the hero of the United States' basketball victory in the Olympic Games, quit the University of Detroit last week to sign a five-year contract with the ABA Denver Broncos for $200,000 and some fringe benefits.

However, there have been reports circulating for the past four months that Haywood would never use his two remaining years of eligibility at Detroit because Will Robinson had been bypassed when a new coach was selected last spring to succeed Bob Calihan, who was kicked upstairs to the post of athletic director.

Haywood's departure from Detroit already has been labeled "Robinson's Revenge," by Detroiters.

Will Robinson is Haywood's legal guardian as well as the prep coach who developed his basketball skills at Pershing High in Detroit. Haywood led Pershing to the state championship in 1967.

Robinson then advised him to go to Trinidad JC in Colorado for seasoning and then was responsible for giving him the final green light to go to the University of Detroit.

LAST SPRING WHEN DETROIT DECIDED to change coaches, Robinson was one of the first to apply for the job . . . and according to our information he was among the four finalists.

Detroit's dean of student affairs who headed the selection committee reveals that when Robinson didn't get the job, he vowed that Haywood would not play another season for the Titans.

Others say that Robinson told several other school officials, including those on the selection board, the same thing — that he was certain Haywood would not play another season for Detroit unless he got the job.

And, according to Haywood, it was Robinson who set the figure he should ask to turn professional.

"He signed for just a fraction of what he's truly worth," says one NBA executive. "If Haywood had played and done as well in his last two years at Detroit, he could have commanded "at least a million dollars," he estimated. As a sophomore, Spencer led the nation's collegians in rebounding and also won all-America honors.

DURING A BRIEF VISIT TO SAN DIEGO and Del Mar a few days ago, we learned that Elvin (Big E) Hayes is buying an $86,000 home in La Jolla.

A revised contract given Hayes, former Houston ace, by the San Diego Rockets puts him very close to the $200,000-a-year bracket . . .

The father of Walter Hazzard, formerly of UCLA and the Lakers and now with the Atlanta Hawks, has just been named president of Philander Smith College, a United Methodist school in Arkansas. Before his new assignment, the elder Hazzard had been pastor at one of Philadelphia's largest churches . . .

Cal football coach Ray Willsey sees a wild four-team race in the Pacific-8 this fall among USC, Stanford, UCLA and his own Golden Bears. He singles out the Trojans as the ones to beat.

WORD ALONG THE BASEBALL GRAPEVINE is that ex-Dodger Frank Howard, now with the Washington Senators and making an estimated $90,000 a year, will ask for a three-year contract next season calling for $125,000. Further word: he won't get it . . .

The name most often heard in connection with the Philadelphia Phils' managerial post next year is Frank Lucchesi, skipper of the Phillies' Pacific Coast League farm at Eugene, Ore., which, incidentally, has a commanding lead in the loop's Southern Division race.

Lucchesi, who has been in the Phils' farm system for 10 years, is highly regarded. His best recommendation for the Philadelphia job is that he managed hard-to-handle Richie Allen through one highly successful minor league season . . .

With television's ban on cigarette commercials going into effect next year, the networks and the major league clubs are frantically trying to find substitute sponsors.

In the past the main sponsors have been beer, gasoline and cigarette companies. One TV man says that the likely replacements for cigarettes will be cigars and pipe tobacco.

ONE OF THE BEST CRACKS OF THE YEAR was delivered a few days ago when a fellow revealed, "I woke up this morning with the weirdest feeling. Suddenly, I didn't care if Joe Namath ever played football again.". . .

The Detroit Tigers were responsible for one of the top oddities of the 1969 baseball season the past week in Oakland. In three games with the A's, the Bengals scored 12 runs. . . and every run was accounted for by a home run. . . .

Joe Hicks was scheduled to referee the Auburn-Clemson game on Oct. 11 but was recently switched to another game for a very good reason: his daughter married Auburn quarterback Pat Sullivan this summer. . . .

Dizzy Dean is still laying 'em in the aisles with his explanation of why he left school after the third grade: "If I would have gone on to the fourth grade, I would have passed my daddy."

MELNYK WINS—

to be runner-up three times in a row.

The 26-year-old Giles, recent Virginia Law School graduate, shot a final round 37-34—72 and wound up with a seven-over-par 291. He was two strokes ahead of Miller, the University of Georgia insurance major, who took a 37-37—74 on the final 18 holes for a 293.

Melnyk faltered a little on the back nine as he did in every round but the first, but his big lead was enough of a cushion.

"I'm scared of that back nine," he said. "Those five or six holes — I bogeyed 11, took a double bogey on 13 and bogeyed 16."

Melnyk, the 1969 Western Amateur champion led all the way in the four-day tournament. He started with a one-under par 70 Wednesday, added rounds of 73 Thursday and Friday and wrapped it up with pressure-packed 70 Saturday. He said after the initial round he was a good front runner and then went out and proved it.

The 6-foot-1 Melnyk took all the suspense out of the tournament with a four-under-par 32 on the front nine Saturday. After bogeying the first hole for the fourth day, everything was downhill for the bulging Georgian.

By the time he made the turn playing opposite Giles, he had increased to eight his lead over the two runnerups. They started the day with Melnyk at 216 and Giles and Miller at 219. While Melnyk, who had eagles on the 534-yard fourth, was charging successfully, Giles and Miller succumbed to the fast greens and well-bunkered course. In fourth place at 295 with a final round 37-33—70, was Robert Zender, Skokie, Ill., a 26-year-old stock broker. Tied at 296 were John Farquhar of Amarillo, Tex., and Tommy Watson of Shawnee Mission, Kan., Dr. Ed Updegraff, veteran Walker Cup player from Tucson, Ariz., was next at 297, with England's Rodney Foster and former champion Charley Coe deadlocked at 298.

Brewer's 66 Takes Lead

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — Gay Brewer, who claims he suffers from success, fired a sizzling 4-under-par 66 Saturday for a two-round total of 7-under-par 134 and the 36-hole lead in the $100,000 Greater Hartford Open Golf tournament.

Brewer was one shot ahead of Phil Rodgers and Bob Lunn, who carded identical 67-68 scores for the two round totals of 135.

Jack Nicklaus, Al Balding, Bert Greene and Dave Hill stayed in contention with 36-hole scores of 136.

Brewer, 1967 Masters champion and Ryder Cup member, overcame bogeys on the first and ninth holes with three birdies, including a 30-foot putt on the fourth, for a front-nine total of 2-under-33.

The 13-year pro out of Dallas, Tex., said he is playing well after finally "recovering" from the success of his Masters win.

"The committments that go along with the honor affected my playing," he said.

Laver, Ralston, Ashe Winners

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Rod Laver, claiming, "You can't live on a reputation," registered his 26th consecutive victory Saturday to gain the fourth round of the $137,000 U.S. Open Tennis Championships along with Americans Arthur Ashe and Dennis Ralston.

The red-haired Australian, who hasn't lost a match since the week before Wimbledon and is seeded No. 1 here, moved closer to completing the first grand slam by a professional as he beat Jaime Fillol of Chile, 8-6, 6-1, 6-2, on the center court of the West Side Tennis Club.

Ashe, the defending champion from Gum Spring, Va., lost a service duel with Jim Osborne in the first set but recovered to wear down the Hawaiian, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2, and Ralston got his wish for a showdown with Laver by subduing Tom Gorman of Seattle, 11-9, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5.

It was a great day for the American women as they qualified four women in as many matches for berths in the quarter-finals.

Billie Jean King, the No. 3 seed from Long Beach, showed the way by routing Denise Carter of Los Altos, Calif., 6-1, 6-3.

Laver, who has not been beat since he lost to compatriot John Newcombe in the Queen's Club tournament in June, has captured six consecutive titles since then. He started off shakily against the unseeded Fillol, dropping his very first service of the first game, but he wasn't broken again throughout the match.

"I felt I was hitting the ball quite well," Laver said. "I served well and that makes it easier."

Fillol, although eight years younger than his 31-year-old opponent, said he was tired out by Laver's game by the second set.

"I never played against anyone who returned so fast," said the recent graduate of the University of Miami. "I was hoping he would not return my service."

Ralston, the 16th-seed from Bakersfield, flatly stated earlier this week, "I hope I stay alive long enough to meet Laver. I'd like to be the one to stop the grand slam." He almost blew his chance by getting off to a slow start against Gorman but he struggled through for the victory.

Ashe, who is seeded fourth although he is the defending champion, also started slow and dropped his first set against Osborne. But he was effective with his strong serve and got his big points with it when he needed them.

Funeral services for the mother of Long Beach baseball man Harry Minor will be conducted at 10 a.m. Tuesday at the Sunnyside Cathedral Chapel.

Minor was returning to Long Beach from Visalia, where he manages the New York Mets' California League farm club.

DODGERS --

tough. Anyway, with this batting style, I think I'm capable of .330 this year — that's my goal — and next year, .400."

Davis' only hit of the evening came in the sixth inning, his third time at bat. It was a hard grounder right at Richie Allen at first base. Richie scooped it, then lost it and, after a delay, the play was ruled a base hit.

The Dodgers got the only runs of the game in the fifth.

Jerry Johnson, who'd lost to the Dodgers and Osteen two weeks ago in Philly, had permitted just two singles through four innings.

But he walked Jim Lefebvre to open the fifth. A passed ball allowed Frenchy to reach second and Ted Sizemore, continuing his hot hitting, singled to left-center to score Lefebvre and snap the scoreless duel.

Osteen, who had two singles himself for the night, lined one to right that sent Sizemore to third. Maury Wills then scored Sizemore with an infield out.

The Phillies, meantime, got nowhere against Osteen who's allowed the enemy only eight earned runs his last 58 2-3 innings. He's already hurled three shutouts this month and was well on his way to a fourth when he was forced to the bench in the eighth.

Gomer rang up eight strikeouts in his seven-plus rounds, the most he's whiffed since he nailed 10 Giants last month. Osteen fanned Richie Allen three times and Mikkelsen got him once.

"My control was much better tonight," Osteen said after he left the game. "I was driving hard toward the plate and, I don't know, maybe that's the thing that did it. The leg in which I pulled the muscle is the one I push off with so that makes it all the worse.

Osteen's ERA dropped to 2.45 with his seven shutout innings but the thing the Dodgers are interested in now is the infirmary report.

DODGER OF DAY

TED SIZEMORE drove in Dodgers' first run and scored second in 2-0 victory over Philadelphia.

DODGER DOINGS: Reliever Jim Brewer, still in traction at Centinela Valley Hospital, says he's feeling better and he thinks the back is loosening up some. Trainer Bill Buhler anticipates another couple of days of traction for Brew. He's been in traction some 48 consecutive hours.

In the 17 games prior to Saturday, Ted Sizemore had hiked his batting average 22 points, from .248 to .270 . . . Teddy, a solid candidate for National League rookie honors, has played in all but three of the Dodgers' 129 games . . . The Kids beat the Oads, 15-0, in the pregame contest Saturday.

Dodger pinch-hitters are averaging .286 (before Saturday's game), with 44 hits in 154 tries . . . Len Gabrielson is the leader at .357 (15-for-28), and also has five RBI and one homer as a pinch swinger . . . Manny Wills has hit safely in all but 16 of the 74 games he's played as a Dodger . . . Saturday's centennial celeb was former Cincinnati, Red great Myron (Mike) McCormick.

BILLY PARKS
Hobnobs With Trojan

When Good Ends Get Together, It's a Ball

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Football coaches contend there is no substitute for experience and Cal State Long Beach all-America Billy Parks couldn't agree more.

"I was in a situation where I really learned a lot this summer," Parks reported while going through fall drills at Cal State Long Beach.

"I became good friends with USC's end, Bob Chandler, and we worked out together all the time."

Chandler and Parks, along with 49er quarterback Shawn McKinney, worked out at least three times a week at a park in Culver City through July and August.

"It was really great," Parks reports. "There were other athletes there. Our defensive backs came up now and then and if we had a four-on-four game, I'd catch as many passes in two hours as I would in a normal week of practice.

"Chandler was a big help to me. He was a defensive halfback and he has 4.6 speed, so whenever he was matched against me, he would tell me if I was giving away a particular pattern. We'd always try and help each other. We hope we'll both be better for it."

Better for Parks would border on the fantastic. In two years at Cal State, Parks has caught 147 passes for 2,495 yards and 20 touchdowns.

In his first two years, however, Parks was often able to run "ad lib" patterns. Is that something that will change this year?

"I really don't think so, too much," Parks says. "I don't think it will be too much of an adjustment. Coach (Chuck) Boyles has fantastic patterns with several alternatives to each so I don't think I'll have much difficulty in getting open."

Parks is currently going through his first sessions with the new 49er football staff after missing spring drills with a broken ankle.

He will be among 67 athletes who transfer practice from Cal State to Terminal Island this afternoon.

Is he optimistic about this season's football team?

"I really am," Parks admits. "I've never been as occupied with football as I am now. It's that way with a lot of the guys on the team.

"Did you see some of the linemen in the squad meeting? They're huge.

"And look at the coaching staff. Coach (Jim) Stangeland, coach Boyle, coach (Bill) Miller and coach (Ernie) Johnson all have experience. They're all specialists. I don't think there's a defense they don't know how to score against."

HI THERE, SPEEDBOAT FANS

Inboards Go at Stadium Labor Day

The annual Pilot Club of Long Beach Labor Day Regatta Monday at the Marine Stadium, sponsored by the Southern California Speedboat Club, is a big mouthful to swallow, but that official title means more to Long Beach than just different types of small boats, all inboards, racing around a course.

There have been all kinds of races at the Marine Stadium this year, some good, some bad, some excellent, but the Labor Day program probably deserves more attention than all the others. It is for charity, with the major portion of the money going to help the handicapped through California Rehabilitation Industries, Long Beach El Cerrito Hospital and other agencies needing help in the Long Beach area.

The Pilot Club actually is an organization of women and is classified as a service organization for business, professional and executive women in Long Beach. The club is 25 years old and its basic principles are service and friendship.

The annual Labor Day Regatta is just one of the ways the members raise money for charitable work. They will be giving much of their time on Labor Day to the promotion of the events.

As for the races, top event of the day will be the National for the K-Inboard Unlimited Runabout Class. The record is held by Charles Hammill, Hollywood, who set the mark of 66.914 mph in April of this year.

Other circle races scheduled for the afternoon program will be the SK and E Racing Runabouts, Crackerboxes and Hydros ranging from 150 to 850 horsepower. Elimination heats start in the morning, with the real battles beginning at noon.

DONNELL CULPEPPER

Veterans' Shoots Get Official OK

This country has heard much about the "bad" side of guns in the last few years. I have pointed out consistently in all that time that there is a "good" side, namely for guns used for sporting purposes, such as hunting legal game, trap and skeet shooting.

Out of all the gun legislation proposed — some accepted, some rejected — there came one California law this year that is very good. Sen. Fred W. Marler Jr. pushed through his measure to have the Fish and Game Commission authorize special hunts for servicemen and veterans. Gov. Ronald Reagan signed the measure without much fanfare, yet the bill means much to disabled veterans.

It gives the commissioners the right to issue special permits for disabled veterans to shoot legal game from vehicles. Marler pointed out that many handicapped veterans, some even amputees, still enjoyed hunting, and that the program might mean much in their rehabilitation.

The bill, which becomes Section 317 of the Fish and Game Code, becomes effective 61 days after adjournment of the California Legislature's veto session, now in progress.

So, the measure won't do the disabled veterans much good this year. However, special hunts such as these have been arranged in the past and wardens have turned their backs, even though they realized such a plan was not legal. The Knights Landing Sportsmen's Club, in Northern California, has been supervising such hunts for years.

AS THE ALBACORE MOVE NORTHWARD and fin their noses at most of us, look for more activity at ports north of Long Beach. H & M of San Diego, which seems to run boats in every direction in its search for fish, has decided to go into competition with some central coastal ports by buying Cabrillo Landing at Santa Barbara.

H & M plans to move its H & M 85, its Spitfire (an oldtimer around this harbor and Pierpoint Landing) and a newly purchased boat, Lorraine II, to Santa Barbara, where skippers will continue their runs for albacore as the fish move northward. A large school was sighted late last week 20 miles south, southwest of Santa Rosa Island.

Pierpoint, of course, already has made its plans for running its big 85-footers out of Virg's Landing at Morro Bay just as soon as the albies show in that area in enough quantities to justify "albacore specials."

Those darned albacore are just as unpredictable as salmon; once the salmon reach the ocean. Just as an example of something that nobody ever expected, a boat out of Oxnard got into a school of migrating salmon the other day off Point Mugu.

When day was done and the count made, the Channel Islands Sport-fishing Landing had 25 salmon aboard. The smallest weighed 20, the largest 34.

SPEAKING OF SALMON, JED WELSH, Long Beach tackle manufacturer, is back from a peddling trip in the San Francisco Bay region. Jed claims he didn't fish on the entire trip, and that I don't believe. That nutty fisherman would drop a hook in a bucket of water in the middle of Death Valley.

Anyhow, Jed says anglers in San Francisco Bay are taking salmon and striped bass in large numbers, particularly at a spot called Deep Hole. Jed says he doesn't know where that is. Another ha ha!

He continues: "The boats that are fishing outside the Golden Gate are really slaughtering salmon with frozen herring rigs and the three-pound drop-off sinkers. It isn't the sportiest type of fishing and sometimes it can be costly.

"The three-pound sinkers cost about a buck each. When anything hits the bait, even a jellyfish, the sinker drops off and the angler starts reeling in whatever it is. The boat doesn't stop and the other 12 or 14 passengers keep watching their own rigs.

"You don't pump in a fish; you just turn the handle of the reel. If you start pumping, the skipper yells at you, 'Hey, you Southern California rube, don't do that; you'll lose your fish. We don't fish that way up here.' "

IN MORE REMARKS ABOUT FISHING outside the Gate, Jed says:

"When you get the salmon close to the boat, the skipper gets out a net large enough to rescue three drowning men. If you suddenly bounce your fish on the deck as we do bonito and barracuda off Long Beach, the skipper again screams at you: 'Hey, Rube, we don't treat kings and chinooks like that. Whereya from, Long Beach or Los Angeles?' "

"Oddly enough, the salmon fishermen, 12 to 15 on a boat and trolling rigs at the same depth (about 35 feet), really get mad if they hook a striper, or madder yet if a stray halibut comes up and takes a nip at the bait. They usually curse their luck, saying unprintable words, when they catch striped bass and halibut. They also bemoan that buck they lost when the sinker fell off and went to the bottom.

"There are lots of salmon off Half Moon Bay and not far out, but the goofy anglers there want rockfish. They will go through a school of salmon to catch a sackful of rockfish of any kind.

"At times, a small boater will get out into the thick of the salmon school and come in with a limit in short order while the rockfish guys are knocking themselves out trying to fill their sacks."

That's Jed's story and I am wondering how he knows so much about the salmon fishing if he just went north to peddle the terminal tackle that he manufactures.

Grambling vs. Alcorn A&M in Coliseum Classic

With special dispensation from the NCAA to start practice a week early, the Grambling College, La., and Alcorn A&M, Miss., football squads are preparing for their clash at the Coliseum Friday night, Sept. 12.

The game will pit the nation's two top-ranked black college gridiron teams. Last year Alcorn A&M scored a shocking 28-13 victory over Grambling and went on to win the conference and national championship.

The game will be sponsored by the Los Angeles Urban League, with proceeds going to its many charity causes. Billed as the Freedom Classic, the evening also will feature the famed Grambling marching band. This 135-man group also rates as a perennial national champion in its field.

Grambling claims the national black college football title five of the past six years.

Computer Tabs Dodgers

By BUD GOODE

Remember the line, " . . . because of the nail the shoe was lost . . . because of the shoe the horse was lost . . . and because of the horse the war was lost?"

In the National League West there are five contenders. Four of them are going to lose the race.

What are the contenders' weaknesses—the one "horseshoe nail" which will cost them the pennant?

For Cincinnati and Atlanta it is clutch pitching. The

COMPUTER CORNER

Reds are allowing 33.1 per cent of all opponent base runners to score, weakest in the league. Atlanta allows 32.6 per cent of opposition base runners to come home. Only Cincy is weaker.

Compare the Reds' poor 33.1 per cent clutch pitching figure with the other contenders — Dodgers (27.7), San Francisco (29.1), and Houston (29.8). The Reds and Braves are more than 5 per cent weaker than the other contenders.

You can't win a pennant with pitchers who are last in line.

The horseshoe nail for the Dodgers, San Francisco and Houston is the lack of power hitting. Computer Corner poured the season statistics into our Univac sports analyzer to measure the percentage of hits which go for extra bases. These weighted figures for the contenders put Cincinnati on top with 12.5 per cent; San Francisco, 9.5 per cent; Atlanta, 9.4 per cent; Houston, 8.4 per cent, and the Dodgers, 8.3 per cent.

Only St. Louis (8.2) and San Diego (7.6) are weaker than L.A.

FORTUNATELY FOR the Dodgers, San Francisco and Houston, power hitting is not the most important batting factor.

Using Computer Corner's figures, Atlanta and Cincinnati are scratched from contention in the National League West, leaving the field to San Francisco, the Dodgers and Houston. The Dodgers have the edge.

Atlanta and Cincinnati managers are advised not to fold, staple and mutilate this report.

Lakers Telecast 24 Games on Road

Twenty-four of the Lakers' 41 road games will be televised, including four against San Francisco and two against Milwaukee, which features Lew Alcindor.

Only Atlanta, which plays in a gym not suitable for color television, will not be seen. Every other NBA club will be on at least twice, except Detroit.

KTLA, channel 5, will handle the play-by-play with Laker announcer Chick Hearn doing a simulcast on KABC (790) radio.

The Lakers also play 41 games at home, including 18 on Friday and 17 on Sunday. The Sunday games start at 7 p.m., the others at 8.

Sixteen of the Lakers' home games will be held in February and March. In the same span, they will play only five times on the road.

The Lakers open camp Sept. 16, following an intra-squad game at Long Beach City College Sept. 9. They play 11 exhibitions, including a TV game from Phoenix Oct. 3 and a home game against San Diego Oct. 6. That Forum date is part of a doubleheader with Phoenix and San Francisco.

13,599 See N. Brother Romp Home

By DAVE DANIEL

Nuther Brother captured the juvenile male championship of the Los Alamitos quarter horse racing season Saturday night with an easy, expected win in the $12,000 Los Ninos purse.

The bay son of the famed Go Man Go was a prohibitive 1-5 favorite in the race and paid only $2.60, $2.40 and $2.10 for his 17.9 clocking before 13,559 fans.

With Robert Adair picking up his second win of the evening, Nuther Brother ran his record to six wins in eight starts and moved his earnings past the $40,000 mark. Longshot Moolah Rocket was a length behind the winner and paid $7.80 to place while second favorite Kansas Jet, which suffered his first career loss, was third and returned $2.80.

Kipty's Goldangel won the seventh race and paid $11.40.

Classy Toni was the first of three longshots in a row that opened the night's card as early comers wagered $86,610 on the daily double — easily the highest amount this year and the eighth highest in the 18-year history of the track.

Classy Toni paid $31 with Terry Lipham up and then Harley Crosby booted home Sam's Night Out for a $16.20 return and a $433.20 daily double.

Three Calls, ridden by James Riley, continued the high-priced payoff totals with a $23.80 return in the third race as favored Dial Fast was second in the 549-yard event.

It wasn't until the fourth race when Gotta Bar Too won that a favorite got in the winner's circle. With Ronald Banks, a two-time riding champion at the Orange County track, up, Gotta Bar Too paid $5.60 for a swift 17.9 clocking over 350 yards.

Adair, the current leader and defending champion, won the marathon 870-yard fifth race aboard Blazing Harry for a $18.20 payoff.

Four horses — the winner, Billy Gabbart, Pacific Storm and King of Ten, staged a stirring, stride-for-stride, side-by-side stretch run coming off the turn together.

Banks won the riding title during the spring 1962 meeting and was the only rider to break up Charley Smith's domination of the jockey championship. He captured the crown again at the spring 1966 meeting. Smith won it every other time from the fall of 1961 to the fall of 1967 — a total of 11 championships.

Smith took the sixth race aboard Trucklin Man for a $15.20 return as favored Mi Pie was out of the money.

RICH RUIDOSO RACE MON.

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (AP) —Ten fast 2-year-olds will run Monday in Ruidoso Downs' $600,000 All-American Futurity, billed as the richest horse race in the world.

Three Ohs won $160,373 for owner D. G. Strole of Abilene, Tex., in last year's All-American for quarter-horses, better than $8,000 a second for the 20.06-second, 400-yard sprint.

This year's top qualifier of 101 entries in the trials is Miss Three Wars. Owned by Paul Travis of Leonard, Mich., she won her trials heat in 19.96 seconds.

Bruiser at Forum

Dick the Bruiser, one of pro wrestling's superstars, has been signed to meet Verne Gagne at the Forum Saturday night.

GRAEBNER CONFINED TO CRUTCHES

Playing DMZ Outfield Dangerous

The letter was delivered to Shea Stadium.

It was written by an Army corporal serving near the DMZ in Vietnam and said:

"Dear Mets:

"The other day some of the guys in my outfit were playing ball and one of them hit the ball into an area mined by the VC. Since none of us wanted to be a hero and play John Wayne, nobody went after the ball and now we can't play.

"That is why we are writing to you to ask if you could please send us a ball."

The problem was taken care of by the Mets.

ONE OF America's main hopes to help defend the Davis Cup against Romania next month, Clark Graebner, will have to walk with the aid of crutches for an indefinite period.

Graebner spent the night in a hospital with his ankle wrapped in ice after spraining it Friday against England's Roger Taylor at Forest Hills.

GOLFER Arnold Palmer says he is looking forward to doing things he hasn't done in years — such as going to football games — if a hip ailment prevents him from returning to the pro golf tour this fall.

Golf's all-time leading moneywinner said he would sit down with his physician Tuesday for a re-examination. But he said it would be no great catastrophe if his return to the tour is delayed.

TEXAS millionaire Lamar Hunt Saturday denied a report that the Seattle Pilots of the American League might move to the Dallas-Fort Worth area next season.

THREE persons were killed and police estimated 200 injured when a temporary 70-foot high stand collapsed Saturday minutes before the end of a rugby game in Pretoria, South Africa.

THE SAN Francisco Giants defeated the 1951 New York Giants, 2-1, Saturday in an old-timer game at Candlestick Park.

Eddie Bressoud, of the early West Coast Giants hit a home run.

PRO FOOTBALL commissioner Pete Rozelle will receive the third Walter Camp award presented for outstanding contribution to the game of football Jan. 24.

UCLA basketball coach John Wooden says the ABA's signing of Spencer Haywood "will really hurt the colleges if the pros are allowed to get away with it."

ATOMIC WINGS FLIES; $1,192.20 DOUBLE

DEL MAR—Living up to her name, Atomic Wings flew to an upset victory Saturday in the $65,225 Del Mar Debutante, registering what is believed to be the fastest time in history by a 2-year-old filly for six furlongs, 1:08 3-5.

Under a stirring ride by jockey Donald Pierce, Atomic Wings gamely fought off the stretch bid of favored Minstrel Miss to tally by 1¼ lengths after leading virtually from the break.

Despite a victory early this summer over Minstrel Miss in the Junior Miss Stakes, Atomic Wings was slightly overlooked in the wareging and returned $21, $7 and $4.20. Minstrel Miss, sent postward at 4-5 by her supporters in a crowd of 15,769, returned $3 and $2.40 and Regal Wine $3.

Sonny Dress took the second race in a resounding $139.80 upset to complete a $1,192.20 daily double, largest of the meeting, from Tre's Pal, $13.20 winner of the opener.

Fast Hilarious Pulls Upset In American 'Cap

United Press International

Fast Hilarious, a speed horse with no reputation for staying power, upset the experts Saturday night and led from wire to wire to capture the 1⅛-mile American Derby at Arlington Park in a photo finish over Night Invader.

Fast Hilarious, winning for the 10th time in 25 starts, drew the No. 1 post position in the 10-horse field in the $100,000 stake and, carrying 114 pounds with jockey Laffit Pincay, got out of the gate first and never was headed.

Gallant Bloom pulled away from Shuvee in the backstretch and then hauled down Pit Bunny midway through the stretch to win the $50,000-added Gazelle Handicap by 3½ lengths at Belmont Park, virtually clinching the 3-year-old filly championship.

The sleek daughter of Gallant Man left little doubt about who was the best horse on the track as she left Shuvee, supposedly her keenest rival, far back and easily disposed of the front-running Pit Bunny to win going away.

Pit Bunny finished second, three lengths ahead of the late-rushing Shuvee.

Fort Marcy, rested more than a month, returned to familiar stomping grounds and closed with a rush under vigorous urging of jockey Manny Ycaza to nip Balustrade at the wire and win the $30,000-added Kelly-Olympic Handicap run over the turf course at Atlantic City.

Fort Marcy, the 1967 grass champion, broke seventh from the gate and didn't make his bid until half of the 1⅛ miles had been run.

The solidly-built gelding by Amerigo moved into third in the backstretch and picked up momentum rounding the stretch turn.

DISSOLUTION WITHOUT DISILLUSION ?

By DIANNE SMITH

"To have and to hold from this day forward . . ."

So states part of most vows repeated during marriage ceremonies, and there were 280,000 performed in California last year alone. That the blissful happiness doesn't last forever is evidenced by the 116,000 divorces in the state during the same period. Another 130,000 are predicted this year.

Statistics show one in every three marriages ends in divorce court.

Until the past legislative session, this process often led to bitter and explosive courtroom battles in California, as one or the other spouse tried to prove fault in order to be awarded divorce on the grounds of cruelty.

After hearing the evidence, a judge would grant a divorce to either the plaintiff or defendant. Under the new law reform, there is no divorce, merely a dissolution of the marriage due to irreconciliable differences. The two parties appear in court as petitioner and respondent.

DURING THE DEBATE in Sacramento on the merits and demerits of the bill, (the final form was drafted by a conference committee of Assembly and Senate members) much controversy was generated.

The Assembly version was introduced by Long Beach Republican James E. Hayes, while the Senate counterpart was the work of Watsonville Republican Donald L. Grunsky.

One group of women who claimed the bill was a man's law and would destroy the institution of marriage held a marriage license burn-in outside Hayes' Long Beach office.

However, a sampling of opinion among Long Beach-Harbor area residents showed favorable reaction to the new law which now awaits Gov. Ronald Reagan's signature. When he signs it, the law goes into effect Jan. 1, 1970.

The compromise bill follows the original Hayes version with amendments by Grunsky and is designed to avoid bitter courtroom duels between husband and wife, which often find the children forced to take sides.

As Assemblyman Hayes pointed out, "This is not a man's law, it is not a woman's law. It is a children's law."

LONG BEACH Attorney Robert B. White, whose specialty is divorce proceedings, said the new legislation merely puts into law what already has been practiced by some judges, particularly in the South District.

A veteran of 33 years in the legal profession, White said the new law won't make divorce any easier and may keep California residents in California rather than going to Nevada or Mexico.

"I think it's a good law. The purpose of the interlocutory period is to allow the husband and wife a chance to reconcile. The new law will save a lot of bickering. There's a better chance of reconciliation if the couple doesn't have to air problems in open court," added the attorney, who served on the Blue Ribbon Committee of the Los Angeles County Bar Association which analyzed the law and made suggestions for changes.

All legal representatives interviewed said the elimination of fault in divorce proceedings would expedite cases through the courts.

Judge pro-tem Rolland Truman of Long Beach Superior Court said he expected to see few contested divorces under the new law.

Attorney White said it will end the "cluttering up of the court system by divorce cases," noting a judge should be able to determine a case in 15 or 20 minutes instead of days or weeks.

"He'll only have to look at financial matters and

ACTRESS JOAN HOTCHKIS ANTICIPATES FALL

. . . prior to filming a new TV series, she helped restore memorabilia found in Rancho Los Alamitos. Her family has donated the historic ranch to the City of Long Beach.

By JUDY COOL

"I'm considering taking a one-day course in a nudist colony."

Well, alright, when an actress makes a statement like that you accept it as a professional ploy to grab headlines.

When the declaimer is the great-granddaughter of John W. Bixby, renowned developer of Rancho Los Alamitos, and the daughter of Preston Hotchkis, a Presidential appointee to the United Nations, you aren't exactly prepared for such a pronouncement.

But that's what Joan Hotchkis said in a recent interview. And more.

"My background (the family, private schools and degrees from Smith and Bank Street College) laid stress on outer form at the expense of inner feeling," auburn-haired Miss Hotchkis explained.

"I'm proud of my family but accept the fact that my expression was blocked. It's important to me that I now find personal meaning rather than social approval."

Perhaps it was her present assignment as the leading lady in NBC-TV's new family series, "My World and Welcome To It," that motivated her, as she put it, "to discover myself." More likely it's a desire to "become the person I really am instead of the person people think I should be.

"No one wants to get close to Miss Adequate," Miss Hotchkis said. "I believe I've been a goodie-goodie long enough."

HOW IS SHE going about changing herself? By taking a series of private and group lessons. The diminutive, 116-pound actress has just finished a course in fighting — not the karate kind — the verbal version.

"I didn't know how to talk back to anyone, much less defend myself," she contended. "Now I think I'm getting the guts to stand up for what I consider to be real and risk social disapproval."

Presently she's participating in a program with 15 other people where they test their impact on one another. These four-hour, once-a-week sessions are critical, no-holds-barred discussions designed to force each person to take

. . . incorrectly identified as Wilson student of 1941, caused furor among alums of World War II vintage.

Who cares about age? Wilson alums do!

By PAT McDONNELL
Staff Writer

Hell hath no fury like a woman labeled older than she is.

Proof is the deluge of phone calls from indignant, outraged women the morning after a photo of a 1925 Poly High School coed appeared in the I. P-T with a caption erroneously identifying her as a 1941 Wilson High student.

"If you don't print a retraction, a group of us '41 Wilson High alums are going to wait for you outside the newspaper."

"I'm insulted!"

"I was horrified when I saw THAT picture."

"My daughter already thinks I belong to the horse-and-buggy era — NOW the paper prints a World War I maiden, calling her a 1941 coed!"

This is a sampling of printable comments that were shouted into my ear by incensed Wilson alumna of 1940 vintage.

Extra operators were called to man the I. P-T switchboard. All employes were alerted to voice soft apologies to weeping women, use humor with belligerent callers and speak in soothing tones to more threatening types.

Amidst the bedlam, this reporter took four aspirins, donned ear plugs and searched through picture files to uncover the source of the faulty caption.

The culprit turned out to be a mischievous gremlin who dwells deep in the printing press.

Reactions to the explanation ran along similar lines:

"Hmmmmmph, what kind of excuse is that?"

"Well, why doesn't that gremlin

Guys out to look--gals to lunch

A NEW SEASON is upon us, the Out to Lunch sign is up and women are flocking like lemmings to see what the next fashion will be.

Lunch 'n fashion has been the female reply to the male golf-on-Wednesday . . . and often proves equally expensive.

The Wednesday golf game expands to Saturday, while the ladies seem to prefer munching and musing any day.

One day on the visual intake circuit provided me with some habits in habitats of the look-and-lunch set.

Victor Hugo's red-on-red surroundings were plush enough for the California Mannequin's furs and furbelows.

The dining room was predominantly male with infusions of neatly dressed females. Nothing startling in fashions seen in the audience, but the wearers expressed interest in the return-to-the-30s look in clothes and hair styles.

The powers at Ball, Hunt, Hart and Brown had to answer their own phones while the full office force took a long lunch at Victor Hugo's to wish fellow employee Susan Chuck, (Mrs. Bob Wells) merry matrimony.

Combining business with visual pleasure was Albert V. Cocking, president of Geotronics who brought business associate from Maryland, Julien Forget. Both men approved of fashion shows and liked the models clothed. No topless buffs they.

The men like to have their wives join them occasionally for lunch even though it usually means a new outfit.

ALWAYS fashionable Wilma (Mrs. Dave) Bryant lunched at Buffum's Terrace room where her red, white and blue middy over white pleated skirt could have placed in the show.

Admittedly checking the "look" for a forthcoming around the world vacation wardrobe, Wilma noted: "Everything comes up jumpers!"

A "MOD" LY attractive foursome, Carla Chiodi, Mike Machkowsky, Elliot Sax and Jan De Lozier were "pant"ing over lunch at May Co.

"The long suit in fashion at May Co. is still pants but the lunchees were miniskirted.

TWENTY-FIVE years might seem like a long wait for a wedding cake but Marion and Shearl Neel agree it was worth it.

The brief ceremony in the minister's home during the war years allowed no time for the traditional reception so family and friends gathered to give them a belated three-tier-with-bride and-groom - cake on their anniversary.

Their son Bill and his fiancee, Carmela Goins, zipped mom and dad off to an early breakfast while those same good friends transformed the patio for a party.

Friends from rival banks (Marion is a Bank of America exec.), the Dick Shoemakers and Ken Clarks, put away their abaci in favor of forks.

The good neighbor (and family) policy not only included an open house for 70 and a later buffet for 50, but cleanup!

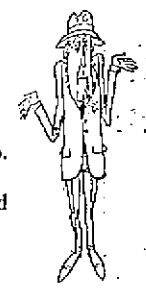

VANILLA 'N CHOCOLATE CHEMISE TO CHARLSTON IS ACCOMPANIED BY THE APPROPRIATE MUSIC FROM THE GUITAR OF JOEL VALDIVIA AT VICTOR HUGO.

ULTIMATE in mufflers is 11 feet of ocelot fringed with red fox by Jiorgio De Sant-Angelo for Buffums'.

APPRECIATIVE young audience finds May Co. version of the thrilling thirties well represented by modified mobster pantsuit and sinister fedora.

Vows solemnized in religious rites

Andersen-Robinson

A quiet ceremony Saturday morning in Aloha Chapel united Victoria Lorraine Robinson, daughter of Mrs. John Robinson, 418 E. Sunset St. and the late Mr. Robinson, and Andrew David Andersen, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Andersen of Kerrville, Tex.

Sandra Pope was maid of honor and Ben Luce was best man.

A reception at the home of the bride's mother followed the ceremony. The couple then left for a honeymoon trip to Kerrville where they plan to make their first home. Mrs. Andersen is a graduate of Jordan High School.

McCabe-Rose

Nuptial vows were exchanged Saturday afternoon in First United Methodist Church, Palo Alto, by Shirley Ann Rose, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rose, 5200 Ebell St., and James Guy McCabe.

The bride was attired in a full length gown for her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCabe of Modesto. The bodice was of Venise lace, and the skirt of silk organza with chapel train.

Diane Rose attended as her sister's maid of honor. Serving as best man was Ronald Schmickley while Bonnar Cox ushered.

Mrs. McCabe attended Wilson High School and was graduated from Millikan High School. She is an alumna of University of Redlands where she affiliated with Alpha Sigma Pi. Her husband is a graduate of UC Berkeley.

Following a trip to San Francisco the couple will live in Palo Alto.

Clark-Nelson

A trip to Northern California followed the Saturday evening nuptials at Bethel Lutheran Church of Natalie E. Nelson, daughter of Mrs. William Christian, 261 E. Bort St., and Edward A. Clark, son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Clark of Compton.

The bride wore a Victorian style gown of lace with ruffles at the neckline and long sleeves. Satin piping trimmed the waist and bodice and the Watteau train cascaded to chapel length.

Mrs. Jerry E. Murphy was matron of honor while Jacquelyn Nelson, sister of bride, was bridesmaid.

Jerry E. Murphy stood as best man. Steven Mathisen and Wally Reed seated 125 guests. Cynthia Horner was flower girl, and Carl Murphy was ring bearer.

Mrs. Clark is a graduate of Jordan High School. Her husband is an alumnus of Dominguez High School and attended Compton Junior College.

A reception at the church and a later party at the home of the bride's parents honored the newlyweds.

Gillman-Woodruff

In the presence of 300 friends and relatives Lenore Jeanne Woodruff married Rodney Earl Gillman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl J. Gillman, 1100 Ridgewood, in Calvary Baptist Church Saturday evening.

The daughter of Mrs. Orville V. Woodruff, 344 E. Harding St. and the late Mr. Woodruff, wore a Victorian gown of candlelight organza and Venise lace.

Sue Woodruff, sister of bride, was maid of honor. Also in attendance were Mrs. Kenneth Giocoletto, Caroline Schmidt, Marla McKee and flower girl, Lori Spiak.

Cliff Coalson was best man. Dennis Johnson, Del Barrett and Max Souder served as ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillman are graduates of Jordan High School and are seniors at California State College at Long Beach.

Following a reception at the church the newlyweds departed for Northern California. They will make their first home in Long Beach.

Pen Women to meet at Charter House

Actress-singer Dale Evans will highlight entertainment at the banquet during the Southwest Regional Conference of National League of American Pen Women Friday through next Sunday in Anaheim.

"Pathway to the Arts" is the theme chosen by California South State President Mrs. Pearl Martufi, chairman of the three-day conference at the Charter House Hotel.

The Long Beach Branch of Pen Women will serve as co-hostess with the Hollywood branch.

A reception honoring Ramona Graham Cook, national president, will take place at the opening session.

Workshops on writing, poetry, television and radio script preparation, photojournalism, lecturing and interviewing will occupy Saturday.

Mrs. Henry Stone of Long Beach has prepared three rooms of art exhibits for viewing during the day.

National officers and chairmen will be honored during Sunday's breakfast gathering.

Winners of the letters, art and branch history scrapbook contests will be announced following the closing luncheon.

A limited number of non-members may attend by contacting Mrs. Isabel Dunwoody, 4427 Briercrest, Lakewood.

SOCIALITE TO STAR

a good hard, realistic look at himself.

It was obvious, as she gracefully moved around her Paramount studio dressing room preparing a light, continental lunch for guests, that these group councils are working. The running candor of her remarks proved it.

Such as: "I'm not the marrying kind. I tried it once and am grateful to have a daughter (who's 7½-years-old) as a result. I need freedom and independence. Marriage to me is a burden. Besides, I'm just too involved with myself."

Another outlet, this time physical, is being tried by Miss Hotchkis in her psychic transformation. It's a form of dancing called "primal movement" based on yoga and other Eastern influences.

"It's discipline without rigid form," she advised. "With your eyes closed you emulate the movements of a fish or a snake. I find it enervating and it helps my concentration — even though people on the set first laughed at me when I'd practice between scenes.

"Here's another example of the narrow mindedness of my early training," she went on. "My background was very puritan, very Anglo-Saxon. No one admitted that the body has expression. I'm interested in learning how to use mine as an expressive instrument."

THERE WERE frequent indications, however, that she's not quite on solid ground with all that she professes. After some of her observations she'd laugh nervously with, "Perhaps I shouldn't have said that," or "I'm working my way through on that one."

In any event, the study of the mind is not new to her. A psychology major at Smith with a master's degree in education from Bank Street College, soft-spoken Miss Hotchkis taught at a public day care center and a progressive private school in New York.

She quit both one summer and decided to become an actress training under Sanford Meisner and then Lee Strasberg. Eventually, she became a member of the Actors' Studio.

Since then she's appeared in such Broadway plays as "Advise and Consent"; in summer stock with "Mary, Mary" and "Streetcar Named Desire" and in television's "Hallmark Hall of Fame," "Armstrong Circle Theatre" and "Bewitched."

SOAP OPERA buffs will remember her playing the lead role of Myra Lake in "Secret Storm" for two years.

"My parents didn't mind," she recalled. "They loved me and wanted me to find my way. Father didn't think I had the talent, but we agreed I should give it a try. At the end of the first year I knew I belonged in the profession. I felt at home and alive. Now if I can only cope with my hang-ups—"

DEAR ABBY

Tell mom news yourself now!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Last winter I had some extensive surgery and can have no more children. Fortunately I have a little six-year-old son. I didn't tell my parents about my operation at the time because they live far away, couldn't have come anyway, and besides my mother has a heart condition and I didn't want to upset her.

Now my parents are coming to visit me, and I plan to keep quiet about my operation. I've told all my friends and neighbors who know (and that includes about half the town) to please not mention it to my folks. Knowing my mother, she is sure to ask, "When are you going to get busy and have a little sister or brother for Junior?" I don't want to worry her about my condition, but what can I say that will be acceptable? DEPENDING ON YOU

DEAR DEPENDING: Tell your mother the truth. If it's her heart you're concerned about, she'd be better off hearing the news from you at a time of your own choosing than from an absent-minded friend whose mouth works faster than her brain. And if you don't have at least one, you're the lucky exception.

DEAR ABBY: Why is it considered "improper" for a young man and his steady girl jointly to give gifts to either of their relatives or to mutual friends?

Johnny and I are both 18 and we don't have a lot of money, and we can get nicer things if we share the cost.

We have been told that this is "improper" until we are married — or at least officially engaged. What is your opinion? PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: When a gift is sent from a couple it is naturally assumed that the couple is in fact a "couple" legitimately. Joint gifts from officially engaged couples, yes. From "John and Mary," who happen to be going together, no!

DEAR ABBY: This is how my husband put an aggresive young secretary in her place. She asked him if they could have lunch together sometime. He said, "Certainly," so the next day he handed her half of a peanut butter sandwich. STILL LAUGHING

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Karpin on bridge

by Fred L. Karpin

In all competitive endeavors, there are times when the underdog wins and the favorite loses. Similarly, in bridge, there are occasions when the correct "percentage" play fails, while the against-the-odds play turns out to be the winning one.

The deal shown here is a case in point.

Both sides vulnerable. South deals.

With West opening a low diamond, declarer was confronted immediately with a problem that could not be deferred: was West leading away from the diamond king?

If so, the winning play would be to play low from dummy. If not, a low card from dummy would enable East to capture the trick with the king; and the success of the contract would then depend on avoiding the loss of a trump trick.

SINCE WEST was a good player, it was a 50-50 proposition as to whether he was leading away from the king or not. But it is a 62 per cent chance that the seven outstanding hearts were divided 4-3.

If this distribution did exist, then South could play the diamond ace, and promptly cash the queen, king, and ace of hearts.

NORTH
♠ K J 3
◇ A Q 7 4
♣ K Q 9 4 2

WEST
♠ A 5 4
♡ 9 4 3 2
◇ K 9 6
♣ A 10 7

EAST
♠ Q 10 7 6
♡ 10 5
◇ J 10 5 3 2

SOUTH
♠ 9 8 2
♡ A K Q J 8 6
♣ J 8 5

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♣	Pass	1 ♡
Pass	2 ◇	Pass	3 ♡
Pass	3 N/T	Pass	4 ♡
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Four of ♠

The diamond queen could then be discarded on the third heart lead.

So declarer availed himself of the percentage play. As can be observed, East ruffed the third heart lead. South overruffed, of course, but he now had to lose a diamond trick and a trump to the king.

It is obvious that if South had played a low diamond from dummy on the opening lead, his queen would have captured the trick, and the slam contract would have been fulfilled.

Unfortunately for South, this happened to be a day when a 50 per cent chance turned out to be better than a 62 per cent chance.

Don Ho opening night benefits Gamma Phi

Gamma Phi Beta alumnae will be among first nighters at the Greek Theater Sept. 8 when Hawaii's favorite son, Don Ho, opens a singing engagement at the outdoor amphitheater.

The event will be the 15th annual charity benefit of the Intercity Council of the sorority.

South Bay festivities will begin with a Hawaiian theme cocktail party at the Rolling Hills home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rice. Following cocktails, the alumnae and their guests will board chartered buses for a picnic dinner in Griffith Park before the show.

Chairman of the benefit is Mrs. Thomas Day of Palos Verdes. Assisting her with arrangements are Mmes. William Furlong of Harbor City, Dale Leisy of Los Alamitos, Robert Mitchell of Sierra Madre and Rober Lee of Palos Verdes Peninsula.

More than $50,000 has been donated in the past 15 years by Gamma Phi Betas as a result of their charity night. Proceeds go to Good Samaritan Hospital and Torrance Memorial Hospital.

Couples repeat vows

Searson-Steffen

A home in Huntington Beach awaits Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Grant Searson (nee Gloria Jean Steffen) following their honeymoon in the Hawaiian Islands.

Married Saturday afternoon in Holy Cross Lutheran Church, Los Alamitos, the bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar K. Steffen, 801 Lees Ave. She was attired in a princess style gown of Lutesong satin with chapel train. Reembroidered Chantilly lace accented the sleeves and bodice.

Gail Steffen was her sister's maid of honor. Patricia Acrée and Linda Bucknam attended as bridesmaids.

Grady Stewart served as best man for the son of Mrs. William McBride, 3621 Pacific Ave. Donald Steffen, brother of bride, and Timothy Sweeney seated guests.

A reception honored the newlyweds at the church.

Cunningham-Wilcoxon

A quiet wedding ceremony Saturday in Las Vegas, Nev., witnessed by 30 guests, united Linda Gale Wilcoxon, daughter of Mrs. Virgina M. Wilcoxon and R. G. Wilcoxon of Lakewood, and Gary Lawrence Cunningham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Cunningham of Tacoma, Wash.

The bride wore a short, A-line gown of silk ottoman with lace tiered sleeves. Her sister, Shirley Wilcoxon was maid of honor while Howard L. Cunningham, brother of bridegroom was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham are graduates of Millikan High School and attended Long Beach City College.

After a honeymoon in Las Vegas and San Francisco the newlyweds will live in Westminster. They will be honored at a reception at Calls Fine Arts Center on Sept. 27.

Hansen-Brass

Carmel is destination of a wedding trip by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Hansen (nee Penelope Lynn Brass) who were married Saturday afternoon in Blessed Sacrament Church, Westminster.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Lorn Brass of Huntington Beach wore an A-line gown of imported silk organza. The empire waist was accented with baby blue satin ribbon and Venice lace highlighted Victorian neckline and cuffs.

Lynn Loth was maid of honor while Mrs. Jeffry Nash and Christine Stowe were bridesmaids.

Richard Lapham served as best man for the son of Mrs. Elwood Hansen of Gardena and the late Mr. Hansen. Jeffrey Nash and William Brass seated 140 guests. Elwood Hansen, brother of bridegroom was ring bearer.

Mrs. Hansen attended California State College at Long Beach where she was on the Dean's and President's Lists. Her husband is a graduate of CSCLB where he affiliated with Circle K and was on the Dean's List.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents before they left for Carmel. They will live in Gardena.

UCLA students wed in Presbyterian rite

Married Saturday in First Orthodox Presbyterian Church were Terry Ann Hammond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis E. Hammond, 4617 Goldfield Ave., and Carlos M. Yordan Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos M. Yordan of Berlin, Germany.

The bride wore an empire gown of saki cloth with standup collar. It was trimmed with appliqued daisies and had a detachable chapel train.

Barbara Black was maid of honor. Attending as bridesmaids were Jana and Shelley, Hammond, sisters of bride, and Katherine Kleinkauf.

Robert Clark served as best man while David Hammond, brother of bride, Dennis McNeal and Gregory Maciulla seated 200 friends and relatives.

A reception at the church followed the ceremony. After a trip to Carmel, Monterey and San Francisco the couple will reside in Westwood.

Regatta set to go

With a roar of engines and a spray of water, 11 classes of inboard power boats will race through Long Beach Marine Stadium Monday in the 23rd annual All-Inboard Speedboat Regatta.

The Labor Day event is being sponsored for the 13th year by Long Beach Pilot Club and conducted by Southern California Speedboat Inc. It is sanctioned by the American Powerboat Association.

Qualifying heats will begin at 8:30 a.m., with racing scheduled to begin at noon.

Tickets are $2.50 for adults and children under 12 are admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Regatta chairman is Mrs. Mildred Morris. Assisting her are pilots, Mmes. Chodie Ray, Vernon E. Troft, John Halden, Mark Miner and Anna Louise Gruber along with members of the Anchor Club at Jordan High School.

Anchor Club is a service club sponsored by Pilot Club for high school junior and senior girls of good scholastic standing. Led by Judi Rusteun, president, the members will sell programs, greet visitors and award trophies.

GETTING READY FOR THE RACE

. . . Helmets, a must for speedboat drivers, are tried on by Anchor Club president Judi Rusteun assisted by woman competitor Mary West of Pleasant Grove, Utah, and Mellis Herron.

PEDDLING PROGRAMS FOR REGATTA

BETWEEN PARENT & TEENAGER
by Dr. Haim G. Ginott

BESTSELLER NOW SERIALIZED

Not every youth has adopted long hair and granny glasses and not every father is a compulsive preacher; But scarcely a home in the land is untouched by wounds of the parent-teenager relationship.

Dr. Ginott, out of his many years of experience working with parents and teenagers in guidance and psycho-therapy, has written a wonderfully easy-to-read book that should help to bridge today's "generation gap".

Now you can read the 24-part serialization of this famous book. Funny yet painful. Wise and intimate. Don't miss it!

IF MANAGEMENT AND UNIONS WON'T MEET---

How can the curtain rise at the Met?

By HAROLD C. SCHONBERG
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK, Aug. 30 — It may be a war of nerves, but informed people do not think so, and as of this moment they are betting that the curtain of the Metropolitan Opera will not rise on Sept. 15. Some are talking about December, and others believe that there may be no season at all. In the meantime the negotiations between labor and management will have all but come to a halt.

As in previous years, each side is accusing the other of arrogance and bad faith. And each side honestly believes that it has God on its side. The Metropolitan Opera, in a financial squeeze, is horrified at the wage hikes that musicians and chorus members are asking. The musicians and chorus members claim that they are underpaid, and some of them demonstrably are. Both sides will have to meet somewhere in the middle, but right now neither is taking the first step.

All this is indicative of the mess that American musical organizations currently find themselves in. Cultural organizations are faced with a dismal future of rising costs, lessened income, longer seasons and potential bankruptcy. The problem looks all but insoluble, and it is compounded by stupidity in certain top levels of labor and management. Throughout the country there are high officials of symphony orchestras who know and care nothing about music, who detest unions and who secretly would like to see those troublemakers and agitators get a kick in a place where it would do the most good.

NOR HAVE UNIONS made it any easier, and some of their policies are aimed to kill. Unions, for instance, have virtually priced out of the market any domestic recording of opera and symphony. Some union officials are as small-minded as their opposite numbers on symphony boards. And a lot of them are geared not to the needs of orchestral musicians, who are artists, but to the musicians who play in roadhouses and other places of entertainment. That is where the majority of the membership of the various musicians' locals lies. For some years there has been talk of symphony musicians breaking away and forming a craft union of their own.

THE BIG FIVE of American orchestras — Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, New York and Philadelphia, in alphabetical order — are approaching the problem differently. They are not talking merger, but cooperation. Worried about the future, they have been meeting to discuss mutual problems. And they have much to discuss. A set of figures published by them last May shows that since 1963-64 costs have increased by 59 per cent while operating revenues have risen only by 44 per cent. Annual losses have risen from $300,000 to $1.6 million over the same period. The projection for the 1971-72 season indicates an aggregate operating deficit approaching $8 million. This may be equivalent merely to the cost of three helicopters used by the army, but it nevertheless is a lot of money.

How to survive? The conclusion of the big five calls for the complete cooperation, for "A setting in which the presidents and general managers would share ideas and make decisions on questions facing the orchestras — individually and as a group." A program for fund-raising will have to be developed to obtain more funds from the federal government, foundations and corporate donors. These efforts will have to be coordinated. In addition, management and musicians will have to work more closely together.

IT IS INTERESTING that the report of the big five carefully steers away from the touchy subject of government subsidy, aside from one line about seeking more federal funds. Some orchestra managers and presidents believe that government subsidy creates more problems than it solves: and, in some of the more conservative sections of the United States, government subsidy is equated with creeping socialism. The reasoning is faulty, for the government seems to be subsidizing everything in sight — farmers, railroads, airlines, steamship companies, oil companies — and there is no cry of creeping socialism from those beneficiaries.

Whether or not the managers like it, the time is going to come when the various governments — federal, state and local — are going to step in. That, or watch some fine cultural groups go under. It is preposterous that this country does not have in operation the equivalent of the Canadian or British Arts Council. The costs are miniscule, the advantages overwhelming. We do have a kind of Arts Council in Washington. It was headed by Roger Stevens, who resigned when the new administration came in. Nobody has been named to replace him.

Whoever does come in will find that Congress, in its infinite goodness, has provided him with $7 million to minister to the cultural needs of the entire country. During the same period, Austria, with a population of 7.3 million (less than New York City), will be laying out $20 million for its state-owned theaters alone.

SUSAN SVERCEK, PIANIST

'Pajama Game' to initiate musical theater workshop

A Musical Theater Workshop will be offered for the first time this fall by Long Beach City College. Open to persons interested in all phases of musical comedy production, the workshop class (Creative Arts 81) will meet from 7 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays starting Sept. 17 in Room 422 on the Liberal Arts Campus.

The first production of the Musical Theater Workshop will be "Pajama Game," by Richard Adler and Jerry Ross. Herbert Caesar will direct.

Vocal auditions for lead roles and the chorus will be held by Wayne B. Gard, vocal director, from 7 to 10 p.m. Sept. 17 and 24 and from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 28, in Room 422 on the Liberal Arts Campus.

AUDITIONS for dancers are scheduled by Mrs. Dawn Sare, choreographer, from 7 to 10 p.m. Sept. 17 in Room 422, 7 to 10 p.m. Sept. 24 in Room 1013 (women's gymnasium), and 2 to 5 p.m. Sept. 28 in Room 1013.

Arrangements for auditions at other times may be made by calling Gard or Mrs. Sare at the college after the start of the fall term on Sept. 15. Persons interested in other areas of music theater production may obtain further information from Caesar.

To enroll in Creative Arts 81, interested persons should make appointments to register in the Student Personnel Office on the Liberal Arts Campus.

Lively launching for LBAA year

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Determined to launch its new exhibition season with a lively show, Long Beach Art Association today opens "Motion and Commotion" in its gallery, 860 E. Ocean Blvd.

Winners, chosen by Betty Ingram of Los Alamitos, are: Loyce Carhart, best of show, "Peace;" Robert Adams, second, "Enveloping Light;" Anna Hayes, third, "Wire." Honorable mentions went to Randy Morich, George Morser and Eleanore Smith.

At the LBAA's Art Fair in Bixby Park, held in conjunction with the International Sea Festival, best of show was awarded to Richard Stine. Loretta De Grandis captured second and Marco Sassone, third. Esther Miller was judged painter of the best nautical theme.

REDESIGNED with "300 percent change," the first International Tactile Art Symposium at California State College, Long Beach, will reopen briefly.

The symposium, under the direction of CSLB associate professor Dr. August F. Coppola, attracted national attention during its original showing in July. It was structured for constant change, with participants modifying and adding exhibits.

Response, literally, was overwhelming, with hundreds of persons lining up to experience the show — an experiment in communication.

The symposium will reopen Thursday and will continue through next Sunday from 4 to 8 p.m. Admission, however, will be by invitation or reservation only. For further information, call the comparative literature department at the college and ask for Jeanne Edmondson or Frances Granger.

TOP WINNER in the Los Angeles All City Outdoor Art Festival was Ed Duin of Hollywood who was awarded the $1,175 Purchase Prize. Arnold Mesches of Beverly Hills and Karen Mortillaro of Silverlake won 1,000 each.

The total of $10,000 in purchase awards was donated by Home Savings.

Other winners include Willie Suzuki of Torrance, $315 for a lithograph, and Dick Swift of Long Beach, $225 for an intaglio.

Richbourg's paintings startling and arresting

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Paintings" by Lance Richbourg at the Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., are as startling and arresting a body of work as I have laid eyes on in the last five years.

Max Beckmann, the late German "New Objectivity" painter explained in an address in London in 1939 his non-participation in abstract forms: "The real is unreal enough." Richbourg's work is akin to Beckmann's approach in other aspects.

Richbourg warps space indications and forms of persons and objects, not according to any system, but according to the way he sees the real.

WHILE THE ARTIST notes chic and stylish details of dress and coiffure, there is also a sense of tackiness. Liberties are taken with color which is "super real." Most vivid is No. 9, "Red Plastic Chair," an inflated one in reflecting lacquer reds, almost unbearably red.

Richbourg's subjects, seen in geometric planes and froms, slightly dwarfed, assert themselves militantly, standing out from the highly decorative backgrounds.

There is a montage of portrait heads, 43 of them in the East Gallery. Each is done in such a unique style as to communicate 43 individuals.

The painter conveys his hard, bright visions with superb technical mastery and yet injects a quality of human intuition that is nigh mystical.

This "must see' exhibt continues through Sept. 21.

'Romantic speculation'

. . . Back in 1491, sea captain Christopher Columbus set out to prove the world was round and to find a trade route to the riches of the Far East. For this, he enlisted the help of Queen Isabella of Spain. Meredith Willson of "Music Man" fame put these circumstances together in "1491, a Romantic Speculation" which will have its world premiere by L. A. Civic Light Opera Tuesday in The Music Center Pavilion. Above, John Cullum as Columbus, Jean Fenn as Isabella.

pick on photos of the President or the hippies instead of US?"

"I don't care who made the error — JUST PRINT A RETRACTION!"

As calls poured in, a few remarks were recorded. Among them was the comment of Mrs. Cecile Steel, 721 S. Shore Drive, Seal Beach:

"My children took one look at that photo and accused me of lying about my age. I know one little old gray-haired lady who recalls wearing a uniform like the one in the photo, but I never did."

Mrs. Donald Wertz, 127 St. Joseph Ave., stated:

"We wore bobby sox and saddle shoes in 1941, but not BLACK STOCKINGS. Several friends called after they saw THAT picture and asked if I really wore such a uniform."

Phone calls have abated, but letters continue to roll in — such as the one from Mrs. Donald French of Los Alamitos.

"I've really taken a razzing from my family, especially my husband who graduated from Poly in 1941. I'm enclosing a picture of the regulation uniform I wore at Wilson the same year."

Excerpts from a note written by Mrs. Dorothy Sikkema, 3635 Cerritos Ave., read:

"Either Long Beach, especially Wilson High School, is more Antediluvian than I imagined, or someone had the wrong date . . . I always knew California was behind-the-times in many respects, but I find it difficult to believe 'mom' wore such a get-up in '41."

In an attempt to mollify those wrathful callers who crashed down the receiver before leaving their names, the I, P-T is printing a photo of an actual Wilson High School coed of 1941.

We hope this will reinstate all "over-aged" Wilson alumna with their juniors.

Nuptial vows were exchanged Saturday in California Heights United Methodist Church by Bobbie Quintella Lyons and Nicholas Philip Stumbaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Harding Stumbaugh, Lemon Grove.

Mrs. Roger D. Seguine was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Mac L. Lyons and Paulette Seguine. Lisa Plemmons was flower girl.

Richard A. Stumbaugh was best man for his brother. Ushering the more than 200 guests were S. Thomas Stumbaugh, Paul F. Stumbaugh and Howard F. Estes Jr. Robert A. Lyons was ring bearer.

After a church reception and champagne buffet luncheon in the home of the bride's mother, the couple departed on a trip to San Francisco. A first home will be made in San Diego where the bridegroom is a graduate student at San Diego State College.

The weird phenomenon of clothes that grow

By ERMA BOMBECK

There's a lot of weird things that go on in this world that seem to have no logical explanation. One of them is the phenomenon of clothes that grow while they're being stored.

I was looking over my entire fall wardrobe just this week and was quite disturbed to discover I'm going to have to hem all three dresses again!

When I told the girls at card club about it, they concurred. Something goes on with those weird little devils when they're cooped up in a dark closet or drawer all winter that defies explanation.

"I thought clothes had a sex life," said Mavis. "So I scaled a knit jacket in a garment bag all by itself. When I took it out in the spring, it still sagged around my thighs."

"Maybe they take hormones," said Laura. "I packed away a mini-skirt last year that covers my knees this year. Either that skirt grew or my legs shrunk."

The entire conversation brought back memories of an old fake fur coat I bought during a post-natal depression period. (That lasted eight years.) When I bought it, the length was perfect . . . right at the ankle bone.

The following year, the styles shot up again but the lousy coat was still at my shin-bone. I made a car coat out of it.

NEXT FALL, same story, it was swirling around my ankles again. This time I got drastic. I made a clutch jacket out of it. That fall I was almost afraid to unpack it. Sure enough, it touched the floor. (I thought I saw it breathe.) With some misgivings I gave it to Goodwill.

But there are still memories of that fake fur coat all around the house: muff for my daughter, three TV cushions, a stadium blanket for the dog, a hostess gown, a throw pillow for the porch glider, ski hats for the entire family, a parka for Barbie and Ken and a roll of it in the attic big enough to carpet Madison Square Garden.

"Well, if you ask me," said Mavis after hearing the story, "I think the growth of clothes has something to do with all this atomic testing going on."

"I think it's the Republicans' fault," said Norma.

"No, it's all that cigarette smoke and air pollution," said Laura.

"It's probably due to all that violence on televison," said Liz.

"No, it's all those dirty shows on Broadway," said Goldie.

You know, I think Goldie put her finger on it.

Freshmen honored at luncheon

Three Long Beach coeds will be attending Mills College this fall.

They will be honored, along with other Los Angeles County freshmen, at a luncheon Wednesday hosted by the Los Angeles Mills College Alumnae.

Among the freshmen are Prudence Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee, Nancy Lee Vander Lans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Vander Lans, and Mary Wiltse, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leon L. Wiltse, all of Long Beach.

Hosting the 12:30 p.m. luncheon at their Beverly Hills home will be Mills students, Sheryl and Darlene Rose.

Helping with arrangements is Mrs. Ross Hancock of Long Beach, who heads the alumnae student referral committee.

Snacks and hats

The Social Service Committee of the Women's City Club will sponsor a snack bar and card party Friday at the clubhouse, 1309 E. Third St.

A hat bar will be conducted by Mrs. Laura Middlemiss.

Women may continue education at BTC

Registration at the Continuing Education Center for Women, Long Beach City College, will take place Monday, Sept. 8. Students may enroll at the Business and Technology Campus, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Highway, Room 305, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The center, designed to enable women to resume or begin college studies, was opened last year under direction of Beverly O'Neill, then women's advisor at LBCC. She recently was appointed dean of the liberal arts campus, but will retain her participation in the center's program and will conduct the college and career opportunities class which will feature speakers from the college and community.

BEGINNING this Tuesday, counseling assistants will be on duty from 9 a.m. to noon to offer general information and to assist in class planning. Classes will be filled on a first-come first-served basis; a pre-registration survey shows full-class interest.

Women who wish to assess their aptitudes and abilities, may enroll in a five-week vocational planning class, to be held Tuesdays and Thursdays.

A CHILD Development Center will start this fall at the Business and Technology Campus; it will be open from 8:45 to 11:45 a.m. daily.

Courses at the center will include modern math, public affairs, English 1A, vocational planning, health education, political science and social welfare.

For further information, call Long Beach City College, BTC.

TOURISTS REPLACE RUSSIANS

Sitka's where Alaska began, and where it's still going big

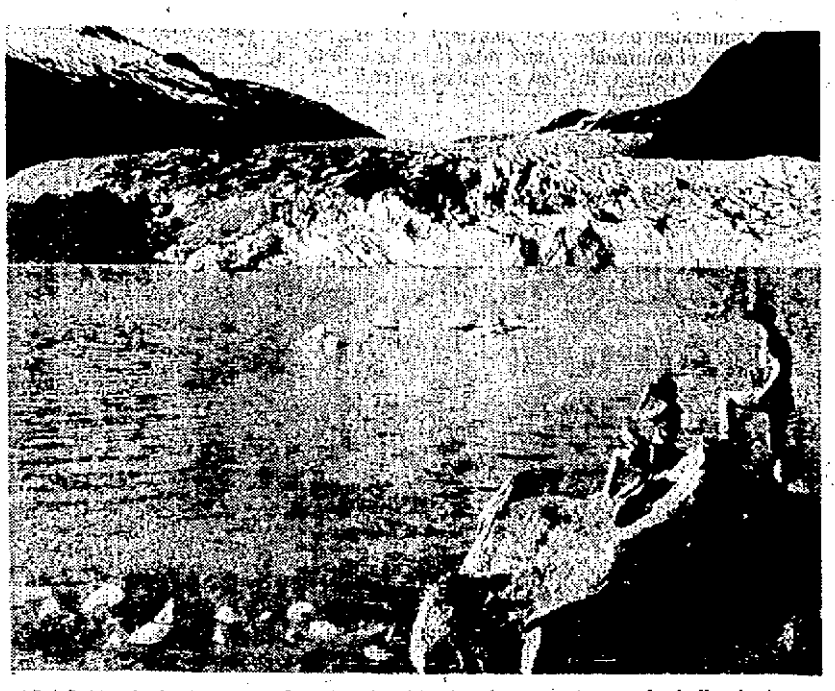

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third and concluding report by Travel Editor Fred Kraft on his recent Alaska tour with Alaska Airlines.)

By FRED TAYLOR KRAFT
Travel Editor

SITKA, Alaska — This is where Alaska began, and where it's still going big.

The Russians came first, nudging the hostile Tlingit (KLIN-git) Indians out of the way to establish a trading post near here in 1799 where they might carry on a rich trade in sea otter pelts. The place grew like Topsy. Before the middle of the last century, when San Francisco was still a struggling mission settlement, Sitka was the most industrialized community on the western coast of North America.

KRAFT

ALASKA IS GLACIER COUNTRY. This is the noted Mendenhall glacier, near Juneau. (Alaska Airlines photos by Mob & Ira Spring)

"THE SHOOTING OF DAN McGREW" is recited to his guests at Cripple Creek Resort's Malemute Saloon by proprietor Don Pearson.

It was a swinging city, too. Traders and trappers and crews of sailing ships and ne'er-do-wells all liked the action. They referred to Sitka as the "Paris of the Pacific."

Then with a single, bold stroke of the pen and the exchange of $7.2 million in 1867 on Sitka's Castle Hill, Russian-America (now Alaska) became the property of the United States. Atop this same hill, where the Russian Double Eagle was originally replaced by the Stars and Stripes, the first 49-star U.S. flag was raised — July 4, 1959 — over the new State of Alaska.

Castle Hill, of course, is still here but it's now swarming with tourists arriving daily throughout the year at Sitka's new jet airport — where Alaska Airlines' sleek "Golden Nugget Jets" sweep in from Seattle and Anchorage — and via the famous Marine Highway.

NEW ARRIVALS note the Hill's significance and see further evidence that the Russians actually came this way in the covey of historic buildings still standing.

Furthermore, all of Sitka can be viewed from this promontory along with countless islands of the archipelago that make up much of the southeast Alaska Panhandle, and the beginning of the pageant of some of the most varied and spectacularly beautiful scenery on the continent.

First, though, Sitka itself should be explored. There is the Sitka National Monument, or Totem Park, where 18 outstanding examples of authentic Alaska totems are displayed along original Indian trails. The new Visitor Center, at the park entrance, has shops for Alaska natives working in creative arts and crafts, and other Indian lore. Nearby Sheldon Jackson Museum contains one of the finest collections of Eskimo artifacts in the world.

The Russian Mission, open to visitors, is the oldest documented building in Alaska. It contains priceless icons. Displays at the Centennial Building commemorate Alaska's 100 years as a U.S. territory. There's the Russian Orthodox Cemetery, Old Sitka, the Tlingit Indian village, lumber mills and boat harbors.

BEYOND Sitka, to the north, east and south, the Panhandle unfolds its awe-inspiring glacial or alpine scenery from Alaska Airlines planes bound for Glacier Bay National Monument, a 3,600-square-mile wonderland of steep-sided fjords, snow-capped peaks, virgin forests teeming with wildlife, and mighty glaciers. An eight-hour cruise to the glaciers originates at Bartlett Cove, near Glacier Bay Lodge and Gustavus Inn, both of which offer splendid accommodation and food.

Dotted between the wilderness of islands and peninsulas of the Panhandle are Ketchikan, a popular terminus for cruises up the Inside Passage; Haines-Port Chilkoot, where Chilkoot dancers provide entertainment and where the world's tallest totem pole — 132 feet high and weighing 30 tons — is being carved for next year's Alaska exhibit at Expo '70 in Japan; and Juneau, thriving capital of Alaska.

Juneau's many tourist attractions include a 12-mile drive to Mendenhall Glacier; the House of Wickersham, home of Judge James Wickersham who established the first court and government in interior Alaska, whose large collection of historical documents and artifacts are now presided over by a niece, Mrs. Ruth Allman; the state capitol and Governor's mansion; and an interesting museum. Juneau abounds in comfortable hotels, fine dining and good gift shops.

The entire Panhandle is dotted with resorts, large and small, which offer unexcelled fishing, hunting and boating and a chance to get away from the mundane life. Alaska Airlines offers help in spotting these havens.

The Panhandle summer air is cool, thanks to the Japan current in the nearby Pacific, and scented with the breath of the forest. In winter, contrary to the belief of many travelers, the mercury seldom dips below the 30s.

DEEPER into the big state are other inviting resorts. One of these is Mt. Alyeska (Al-ee-ESS-ka) Ski Resort, the only luxury spot in the largest ski area in the state.

Mt. Alyeska was the site of the 1963 U.S National Championship races and Olympic Trials, the 1969 Junior National, and is attracting a growing number of skiers each year. At the ski house atop the mile-and-a-quarter-long lift is a breath-taking view of the valley and lodge half a mile below.

Owned by Alaska Airlines and presided over by Chris von Imhof and his attractive wife, Nina, the lodge has 32 units ($50 a day, double, American plan, $40 single) with 42 condominium units abuilding. The large outdoor pool is in use throughout the year, since winters at the resort — only 300 feet above sea level — are comfortably mild.

FOR FUN and color, no Alaska watering place can top Cripple Creek Resort at Ester City, a few miles outside of Fairbanks. One of Alaska's biggest gold strikes was made near here. When dredging finally petered out in 1964, the present owner, Don Pearson, brought the entire mining camp — lock, stock and barrel. It includes the world famous Malemute Saloon, locale for Robert Service's epic poem, "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" which Pearson recites for his guests with dramatic effect.

Pearson is a former California sociologist who sees to it that there's never a dull moment at Cripple Creek — "like in sourdough days." He's in love with Alaska in general, his resort in particular, but often quips for laughs:

"Do I ever go sour on this country? Sure, but I don't have enough dough to get out."

Reciprocal pact

LOS ANGELES — Air Canada and Japan Air Lines have reached a reciprocal agreement to act as general agents for each other in their home territories. The agreement will provide improved interline service to the Orient through the Los Angeles and Vancouver gateways.

Alaska autumn beckons

JUNEAU, Alaska — It's going to take a while, but residents of the 49th State slowly are clearing away the mythical image that Alaska is covered in eternal blankets of snow, that Alaskans live in igloos, and that icebergs float year-round in every harbor.

Autumn, for example, offers an especially inviting off-season vacation treat. The September-October visitor can combine astonishing scenery, the 49th State's own blend of fall color, and a growing array of man-made and natural attractions.

In a state which cuts across four time zones and is more than twice as big as Texas, a variety of weather conditions (none of them harsh) is likely. Alaskans point out that early fall travel throughout the state can give you anything from balmy Indian Summer days in many regions to the fascinating early awakening of winter in the Arctic.

Special attractions of fall, 1969, run from Indian dances, to religious ceremonies, to a fair in one of the world's most extraordinary farmlands.

Palmer, in the center of the famed Matanuska Valley farm country a few miles north of Anchorage, will be the scene of the annual Alaska State Fair on Labor Day weekend. Visitors can expect to see some of the magnificent produce grown there during the long Alaskan summer days.

Sitka, the Russian capital of Alaska more than a century ago, has two major fall events on its calendar. On Sept. 20 and 21, the Panhandle city will host the 175th anniversary celebration of the establishment of the Russian Orthodox Church in Alaska.

A month later, from Oct. 17 to 19, Sitka will celebrate Alaska Day, the commemoration of the great land's transfer from Russia to the United States. Tlingit Indian dances, recreations of the historic transfer ceremonies and many other activities will be featured.

AS FOR Alaska's grandeur, it's just as abundant in the fall, and sometimes can be seen at a more leisurely pace than in midsummer.

Autumn bonuses, most certainly, are Alaska's game and fish. Most of the state's remote hunting and fishing lodges continue their seasons through September and early October.

The great beauty of Alaska's desolate arctic and sub-arctic regions, coupled with a possible brief taste of the oncoming winter can be found along air routes to such other waypoints as Nome, Kotzebue, and Barrow, all serviced by regular jet flights.

The list of such attractions is long and growing.

Detailed information on traveling in fall or any season in Alaska can be obtained from the Alaska Travel Division, Pouch E, Juneau, Alaska, 99801.

You will see spectacular scenery in the Falkland Islands in the Lemaire Channel, in Paradise Bay and along the coasts of the many islands and the Antarctic peninsula. You will see six species each of penguin, seal and dolphin, including if we are lucky, the little-known Wilson's dolphin — no specimen of which has ever been caught.
On previous expeditions, 110 species of birds and 16 species of indigenous mammals were recorded.
You will also meet the people of the Falkland Islands and be enthusiastically greeted, since the islanders receive very few visitors.
Scientific stations of Argentina, Chile, the Soviet Union, the United Kingdom and the United States will also be visited.

DISSOLUTION OF MARRIAGE

Divorce reform is 'good' law

custody instead of determining the cruelty factor."

White added that cruelty is not usually the main factor for the breakdown of a marriage. He voiced agreement with an article in the June issue of Family Law Quarterly favoring the abolition of divorce grounds. It stated:

"THE BREAKDOWN of a marriage is seldom the fault of one of the partners. It results rather, from a much more complex interaction between two, and frequently more than two personalities."

The basic differences between the old and new law are:

1 — The previous seven grounds for divorce have been reduced to only two, irreconciliable differences and incurable insanity.

2 — Provision is made for substantially equal division of community property.

3 — Granting of alimony and support payments is made on basis of need and ability to provide and ability of supported spouse to work.

4 — The interlocutory period (time from granting of divorce until it's final) is reduced from one year to six months.

There have been cries of dismay that the new law makes divorce easier to get. However, local judges and lawyers disagree.

Presiding Superior Court Judge Max Wisot claimed the new law won't make it any less or more difficult to get a divorce because "divorce already is the most easily obtained thing in the courts."

Judge Truman added he didn't expect to see any increase and there might be a decrease since the "day in court" concept has been removed. One spouse can no longer detail how bad it was.

Judge Wisot also said the new law is not reform per se, but merely a clarification of existing rules and a change in language.

"Irreconciliable differences as reason for dissolving the marriage is merely a melting and merging of previous causes for divorce."

Attorney Marie Coyer said it should make a difference in women's attitudes so that they won't think of a husband merely as a meal ticket.

The elimination of the fault factor and finger pointing in divorce cases drew praise from both legal and non-legal persons questioned.

HUGH McISAAC, executive director of Family Service in Long Beach, said it will make reconciliation more possible or at least allow the couple to part on friendlier terms and remain parents to the children.

He would have preferred more emphasis on prevention in the new law, explaining that Family Service is a United Way agency offering marital counseling to 40 percent of its clients. There are about 60 new families accepted each month out of the 110 who apply. McIsaac sees a need to broaden such services in the community so that more people can take advantage.

A SAMPLING of opinion from divorced men and women also drew favorable comment on the new law.

An engineer from San Pedro, who has since remarried, calls elimination of fault a tremendous thing. "Men are all in favor of it. Women will suffer most because they won't be able to have their day in court."

An area businesswoman with three grown sons said, "the new law is a lot better than what we've been dragging through," noting it took nine months just to have her divorce case heard in court. She thinks the six months waiting period is an improvement, adding, "I can't see the necessity of waiting one year."

However, a twice-divorced Long Beach man said the six months waiting period has no bearing because anyone who gets a divorce isn't going to jump into another marriage right away.

A Lakewood mother of four, who has been divorced five years, thinks removing the finger-pointing is fine as long as the children are taken care of. "The emotional scars are terrific. I don't think six months time is long enough to recover," she said.

A Long Beach secretary and mother of three, still awaiting her final divorce papers, commented on the equal division of community property. She believes it is a good idea because "both parties put time into the marriage and it's no more than right for both to get something out of it."

DIVISION OF J. C. PENNEY'S

'Treasury' Stores Are Started at Lakewood, Buena Park, Orange and Torrance Locations

Officials of J. C. Penney Co. who this May announced the company's 'Treasury' Division would be expanded to Southern California with the simultaneous opening of three 'Treasury' stores in 1970, has announced two additional sites and held consecutive groundbreaking ceremonies at four of the five locations.

"The Treasury" is the new name selected by Penneys for the stores formerly called Treasure Island.

Jack F. Behrendt, vice president and director of Treasure Island stores announced that negotiations for two additional 'Treasury' sites have been finalized in Granada Hills at Chatsworth Street and Zelzah Avenue, and in Lakewood at Carson Street and Paramount Boulevard. Behrendt, who is headquartered at Penney's New York central office, was joined by Robert R. Van Kleek, Penney's vice president and western regional manager from San Francisco and city officials from Torrance, Lakewood, Buena Park and Orange at the groundbreaking observances.

JACK F. BEHRENDT
VP at Rites

In addition to the Lakewood site, ceremonies were held in:

—Torrance at Sepulveda and Hawthorne Boulevards.

—Buena Park at Orangethorpe Avenue and Beach Boulevard.

—Orange at Garden Grove Boulevard and Manchester Avenue.

Site acquisition for all five 'Treasury' locations was handled by Coldwell, Banker & Company realtors of Los Angeles and general contractor for the stores will be Walter Kidde Contractors, Inc., also of Los Angeles.

The Southern California 'Treasury' stores will be patterned after those opened recently in the Atlanta, Ga., market. The buildings, distinguished by their so-called "squiggly roofs," will have approximately 180,000 square feet. Wide aisles will facilitate the use of shopping carts, and central check-outs will be incorporated.

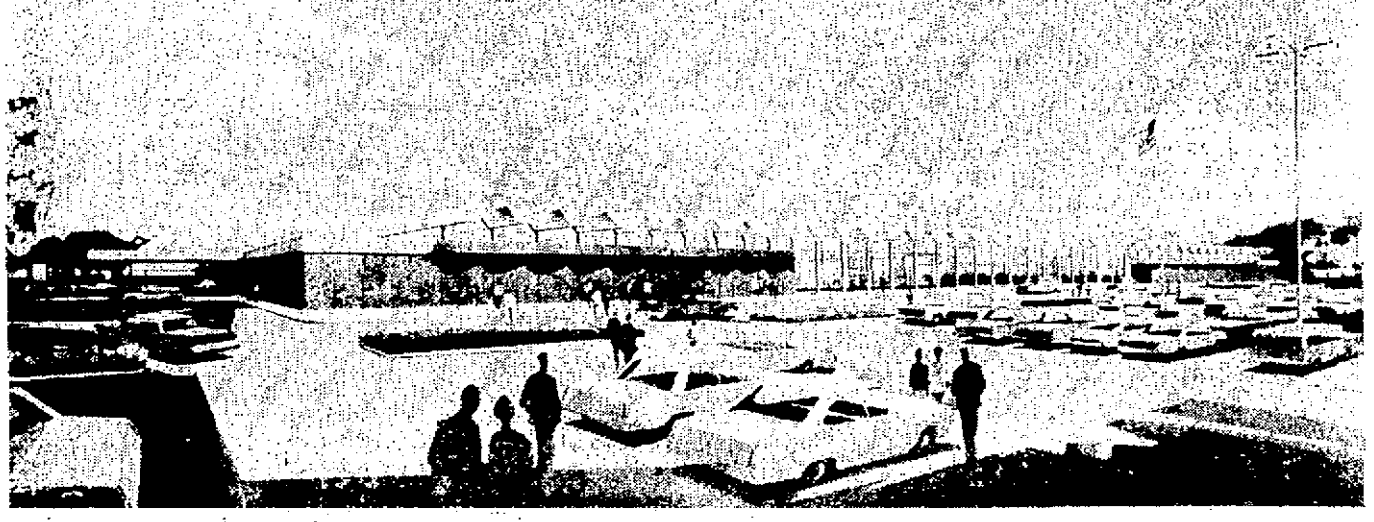

A broad range of merchandise and services is planned. Apparel and home textile lines will be under The Treasury's own brands, while hard lines will feature nationally-branded merchandise. In addition, each store will have a large supermarket, automotive center, as well as a number of other convenience departments.

The Southern California expansion was the first for The Treasury operation after the company's March announcement that these stores had moved beyond their original status as a working experimental laboratory and become a corporate operating division. After Southern California, plans for two 'Treasury' stores were announced for the Miami, Fla., market in 1970.

Egon Gerner, vice president of the Kidde organization said that he expects the concrete portion of the building project to be completed by mid-November. "Once the walls, foundations and slabs are in, work will proceed to completion at a steady pace," he explained.

Gerner's timetable calls for erection of the structural steel to commence by the first of the year, with the building and ground facilities ready for use and occupancy by the last quarter of 1970.

The Penney Company currently has 10 stores of The Treasury type -- six in Wisconsin where they originated and four in Georgia.

Starlets Spice Up Opening

Mermaids and goldfish will highlight this Labor Day weekend continuation of builder William Lyon's Grand Opening ceremonies at Franciscan Fountains By-the-Sea in Huntington Beach.

Hollywood starlets in glittering Mermaid costumes will be strategically placed on Brookhurst Street at Pacific Coast Highway to direct visitors to the festive ceremonies for the new homes within walking distance to the beach.

Goldfish will be given to each child accompanied by a parent or guardian and free refreshments will be served. The gala Grand Opening will continue through Labor Day up until 6 p.m.

THE NEW homes are an exact duplicate of Lyon's highly successful Franciscan Fountains homes which are still being built on Slater Ave., between Golden West and Edwards Street in Huntington Beach. The new By-the-Sea series marks the first time the executive homes have been built in another location.

"We feel there's a definite market for the executive or professional man who likes the Newport-Balboa way of life," explained David Langlois, area manager, "But who perhaps has invested his capital and doesn't want to pay the high premium prices for similar type housing in the adjacent beach cities."

The By-the-Sea location has many of the advantages of its neighbors, Newport-Balboa.

HOMEOWNERS can walk to the beach from Franciscan Fountains. The beach is fenced and protected and there are areas for campfire, surfing, sunning, swimming and boating. The new one and two story homes priced from $33,490, are within minutes of Newport-Balboa's marinas, gourmet restaurants and elegant shopping centers.

Perhaps one of the most popular features is the "Sweeping Curved Staircase Entry" home. This has up to five bedrooms, and Lyon's exclusive "Parent-Saver Retreat."

The "Parent-Saver Retreat" is an adult apartment which is contained completely within the master bedroom suite. Additionally, there is a huge walk-in closet, dressing room and bathroom.

To reach the furnished Franciscan Fountain By-the-Sea models take either the Pacific Coast Highway or San Diego Freeway to Brookhurst. From Coast Highway drive north one block to Bushard and from the Freeway drive south to Hamilton; then west one block.

Peninsula Getting a Chalet Gourmet

By BILL SHELTON
Staff Writer

Esgro, Inc., diversified merchandizing and manufacturing concern, registered a 19.3 per cent net earnings increase in the three months ended July 31, Francis J. Esgro, president, announced at the firm's annual meeting Wednesday at the Biltmore in Los Angeles.

Esgro, with interests in food and beverages, apparel, cameras and jewelry, electrical products and floor coverings, operates 23 jewelry and camera units and 21 liquor and gourmet food departments within White Front Stores.

A new concept for the firm is a group of Chalet Gourmet stores, featuring fine foods and beverages. Five Chalet Gourmets will be operating in Southern California before the end of 1969, including one at Palos Verdes Boulevard at Pacific Coast Highway, Palos Verdes. Esgro told the Independent, Press-Telegram Wednesday that he expects to have one operating soon in Long Beach.

These outlets, Esgro said, offering such features as U.S. prime meats on a cut-to-order basis, hot foods to go and oven-ready cookery preparations, cater to exactly the opposite demand as that of the supermarket.

Pending the success of the five test units, says Esgro, about which the company is most optimistic, Chalet Gourmet at a mature stage of development is expected to boast about 200 stores in California.

In the Apparel Division, two Archibald Foxx stores have been opened as an experiment looking toward establishing and franchising a chain of retail outlets specializing in men's dress and sport shirts, primarily from Esgro's factory in Hong Kong. The stores also will sell custom tailored shirts and neckwear, Esgro announced at the meeting. The company's high quality shirts are sold through 100 franchises selling these garments and Esgro's stock shirts. Expansion to 400 dealers is expected.

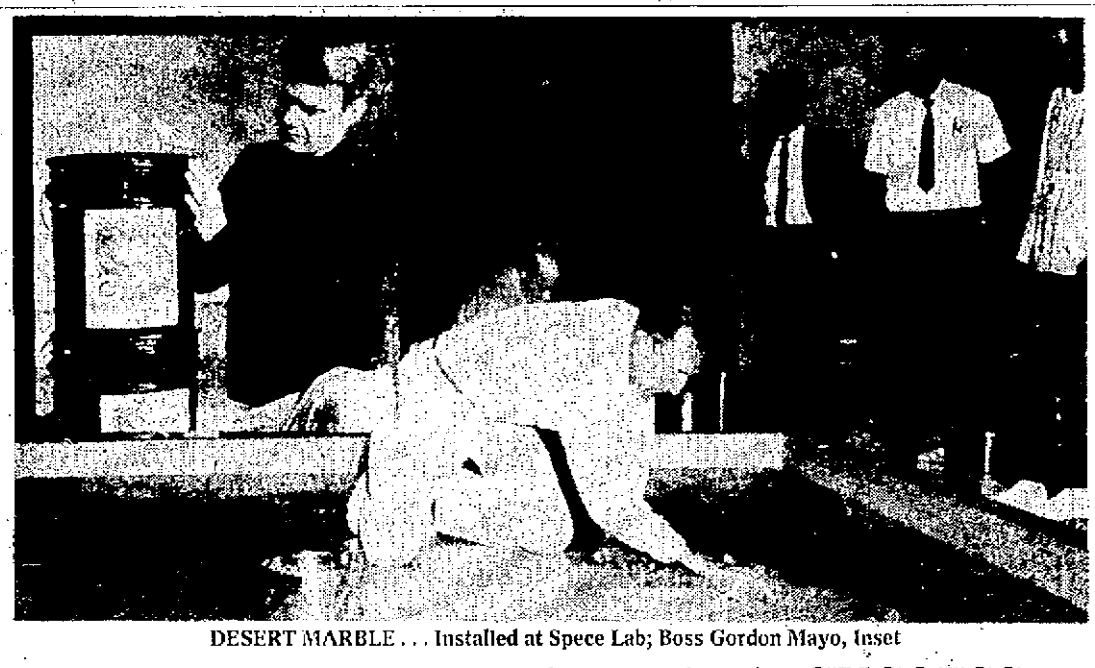

The company distributes through its Lake Sales Group, soft and hard surface flooring material such as rugs, carpeting, padding, tile and linoleum.

Through its subsidiary, California Wholesale Electrical Co., Esgro distributes some 18,000 different electrical items including motors, cable, conduit, switches and testing apparatus, wiring devices and many other categories.

Lawrence Harvey Board Chairman

TORRANCE (AP) — Lawrence A. Harvey, president of the Harvey Aluminum Inc., was named Thursday as chairman of the board, succeeding Leo M. Harvey, founder, who becomes chairman of the executive committee.

Succeeding Harvey as president on Sept. 1 will be J. Donald Rauth, former president of the aerospace group of Martin Marietta Corp.

DESERT MARBLE . . . Installed at Spece Lab; Boss Gordon Mayo, Inset

INSTANT FLOOR COVER A SUCCESS
Desert Marble Is Produced in Santa Ana

A unique self-leveling poured flooring, with plant and headquarters in Santa Ana, is doing over $1 million volume business in domestic and foreign sales.

Desert Marble, the product of Research Laboratories Inc., 2145 South Grand Avenue, is in use not only in hundreds of U.S homes, plants, restaurants, supermarket and other large-area installations, but also in Canada and Mexico. Negotiations are being carried out for an affiliate company in Tokyo and Osaka.

The seamless flooring, which costs an estimated $1.25 per square foot, is the brain child of Gordon P. Mayo who also heads up the Santa Ana manufacturing company. Mayo "discovered" Desert Marble when he accidentally spilled a tube-ful of a chemical formula with which he was experimenting on a coffee table. It began to level itself into an accidental color and design.

"THE BASIC APPEAL of the product," says Mayo, "is not only that it levels itself but that, while it functions as a self-waxing, seamless flooring, it also allows the buyer, whether his installation is only a 25 square foot bathroom, or a 25,000 square foot factory or supermarket, to choose his own color and design."

Basically, Desert Marble, says Mayo, consists of approximately 60 per cent resinous plastic containing 12 waxes and 40 per cent ground marble of varied particle size.

The main plant of Research Laboratories is in Santa Ana, but the company maintains training schools in California and Logansport, Indiana, for applicators and dealers. It has distributors and dealers in 31 states. National recognition for the Santa Ana firm is being accorded through feature stories and photos in such publications as "Engineering News-Record, "Flooring magazine, "Progressive Grocer," and "American City" magazine.

THE FLOORING IS shipped in 5 gallon containers with specified colors included.

"Yes," said Mayo, in answer to a question about individualized coloring, "you can make up your own color scheme. This is what the managing director of "The Fisherman," restaurant at Huntington Beach did in ordering Desert Marble for two kitchens, bar, terrace, and lounges. He chose colors and design reminiscent of the sea."

Professional applicators, trained in the company's schools, do the design work on the premises.

"These men are hard to come by," said the manufacturer, recalling that "Flooring" magazine complimented the company for operating its own schools. The company pays for flying dealers and applicators to the schools and provides free lodging while they are in training.

There is no basic color in the solution. Chemical ingredients for protected mixing under a formula known to only two people, are obtained from such nationally known suppliers as Union Carbide, Upjohn and others.

THE COST OF THE flooring is a little higher, Mayo concedes, than that of other similar flooring,

★ BE SAFE WITH PROFESSIONAL CARE — DEAL WITH A REALTOR ★

Ten ways the Realtor takes the worry out of home buying.

Buying a home can be a barrel of fun. Or a pack of pitfalls. And that's where a Realtor comes in. Even though you may know the difference between a dormer window and a bay, his expert help can open your eyes to other features you might never notice. And steer you clear of drawbacks you might easily overlook. Below you will find ten of the best reasons we know for starting your search for a home in the Realtor's office.

1 THE REALTOR SAVES YOU TIME, EFFORT AND HEADACHES. He discovers your architectural interests, learns something of your personal tastes — and tries to show you only the types of homes you want to see, within your price range.

2 THE REALTOR ADVISES YOU ABOUT NEIGHBORHOODS. His professional experience is invaluable to you in analyzing future trends and the potential value of your home as a long-range investment.

3 THE REALTOR HELPS YOU SEE THROUGH INFLATED PRICES. Owners who try to sell personally, often tend to overprice a home. But homes listed with a Realtor benefit from his knowledge of current market values.

4 THE REALTOR ARRANGES FOR DEFINITE INSPECTIONS. He makes appointments for your convenience. He will also see that you have plenty of time for a thorough, unhurried inspection.

5 THE REALTOR HELPS YOU SHARPEN YOUR VISION. He inspects homes with you, calls your attention to improvements and advantages you could overlook. And points out any disadvantages his trained eye may spot.

6 THE REALTOR PROVIDES YOU WITH FULL INFORMATION. He will give you essential facts about taxes, maintenance costs, quality of construction, adequacy of public services, schools, churches — even introduce you to the neighbors.

7 THE REALTOR ACTS AS A NEGOTIATOR. Settling of the finer points of price and other differences can get pretty hectic. Your Realtor smoothes over the details and helps buyer and seller arrive at a mutually advantageous agreement.

8 THE REALTOR HELPS YOU STAY WITHIN YOUR BUDGET. He will help you analyze your financial situation, give you sound mortgage advice. Then, if you desire, he can recommend sources of mortgage funds so you can arrange financing.

9 THE REALTOR HELPS YOU KNOW FINAL FACTS AND FIGURES. At the closing of the transaction, you will need a complete financial statement, giving you an exact record for insurance, tax and other purposes.

10 THE REALTOR IS PLEDGED TO SERVE YOU WELL. Display of the NAREB seal is evidence of a pledge to uphold the ideals of the Association. The term Realtor is your assurance of competence, fair treatment and integrity.

Downturn in Interest Rates Seen Before Year is Out

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business Editor

The very forces that have led to the highest interest rates in a century are now being reversed, and this foreshadows a downturn in interest rates getting under way before the year is out, according to a study by Wall Street economist Dr. Robert H. Parks, Director of Economic Research, Francis I. duPont & Co.

The rapid stepup in military spending, deep Treasury deficits, and easy money have been the prime ingredients in the boom. The recent sharp rise in bond yields is explained primarily by inflation and inflationary psychology, the extraordinary demand for funds stemming from a booming economy, and current severe restraint by the Federal Reserve.

The evidence that the economy is slowing appears conclusive, and government efforts to bring the rate of inflation under control will be successful, according to Dr. Parks.

The climb in interest rates this year is a product of two forces which do not support the view that further boom lies ahead. The first force centers on the aftermath of the hyper-growth of demand in the 1965-1968 period, fueled by large Treasury deficits and easy money (except for the "credit crunch" of 1966). This legacy of the 1965-1968 period is spilling over into severe cost pressures from sharply rising wage rates despite the markedly slower rate of growth of real demand during the last three quarters.

The second force underlying current levels of interest rates lies, paradoxically in current policies of government to decelerate economic growth. "To be sure, the short term impact of restrictive policies tends to add to cost-push pressures on prices and interest rates Dr. Parks points out". "An increase in the cost of funds borrowed by manufacturers tends to be passed on to buyers in the form of higher prices. Also, restrictive economic policies designed to slow the growth of real output at the same time force unit costs higher as industry operations tend to fall further below capacity of plant and equipment. These anti-inflationary measures induce cost-push pressures, thus unavoidably tend to make an inflationary situation appear worse, at least for a time".

The study stresses, however, that the basic forces of demand-pull inflation are now being tamed. Most important, military spending actually declined during the last quarter after jumping from $50 billion in 1965 to $80 billion in 1968. Treasury operations have shifted from large deficits to current surplus and the monetary authorities have shifted from high stimulation to severe and active credit restraint. As a reflection of the restrictive policies of recent months, consumer demand has been growing at a slow rate, and residential construction expenditures appear to be headed down. Finally, there are signs that business spending on capital goods, the only type of spending that has truly been booming so far this year, is about to slow markedly.

TEENAGERS BY THE hundreds of thousands are likely to choose work over school again this year, knocking at the doors of a national labor force that already has in it 2-million struggling minors without a high school education.

According to Kenneth C. Robertson, western (San Francisco) manpower chief for the U.S. Labor Department, "Education is still very much a must for our young people."

"School dropouts will discover that the world of work is a small world indeed for the uneducated and the untrained."

"The high school dropout takes a far longer chance than his father did," Robertson said. "Unemployment is highest among the unskilled, who is usually the last hired and first fired."

The dollar-and-cents value of a high school education has been accurately measured, the Labor Department official noted.

"During his working life, a high school graduate averages about $57,000 more than a dropout, and about $94,000 more than a worker with only a grade school education." "And a college graduate averages about $200,000 more than a high school graduate."

Robertson urged parents and friends to persuade youngsters to change their minds about leaving school without their diploma. "The payoff is what they really want most — a good job at good pay with a good future."

GENERAL MOTORS Chairman James M. Roche and President Edward N. Cole released the following statement in Detroit concerning the motor vehicle market in the 1969 model year and the prospects for the forthcoming 1970 model year.

Retail sales of new passenger cars and trucks in the United States in the 1969 model year, ending in September, are expected to establish a new record of 11.6 million units — including 9.7 million passenger cars and 1.9 million trucks. This will exceed the prior record of 10.8 million units, established in 1966, by almost 7.5 per cent.

General Motors sales of both passenger cars and trucks also set new records for the model year.

The sales of North American type passenger cars will total 8.6 million units for the 1969 model year as compared with 8.5 million units for the 1966 model year or an increase of 1 per cent.

General Motors North American type car sales are expected to total nearly 4.6 million units for the 1969 model year as compared with 4.4 million for the 1966 model year, or an increase of about 3 per cent.

Sales of imported cars in the United States will exceed 1 million units for the 1969 model year as compared with 640,000 units for the 1966 model year, or an increase of nearly 70 per cent. Included among the imports are the sale of about 100,000 Opel Kadetts — the GM entry — during the 1969 model year as compared with 30,000 units in 1966, or an increase of 230 per cent.

The industry's record sale of new trucks in the 1969 model year of 1.9 million units will represent a 12 per cent increase over the previous record of 1.7 million truck sales attained in the 1968 model year. GM's 1969 model truck sales will exceed the 1968 record by 14 per cent.

ALTHOUGH THE STOCK market declined rather sharply during the month of July, mutual fund sales moved ahead of the June figures, the Investment Company Institute, national association of the fund industry, reported.

Redemptions dipped last month as compared to June, indicating that the vast majority of fund shareholders hold their investments, do not panic in a down market, and are prepared to ride out stock market distress.

Gross sales in July were $503.4 million, up 6.0 per cent from June sales of $474.8 million. Gross sales in July, 1968, totalled $582.0 million.

Redemptions dropped 22.9 per cent in July from the June figure. Redemptions of $260.4 million were recorded by the Institute, as against redemptions during the previous month of $337.6 million.

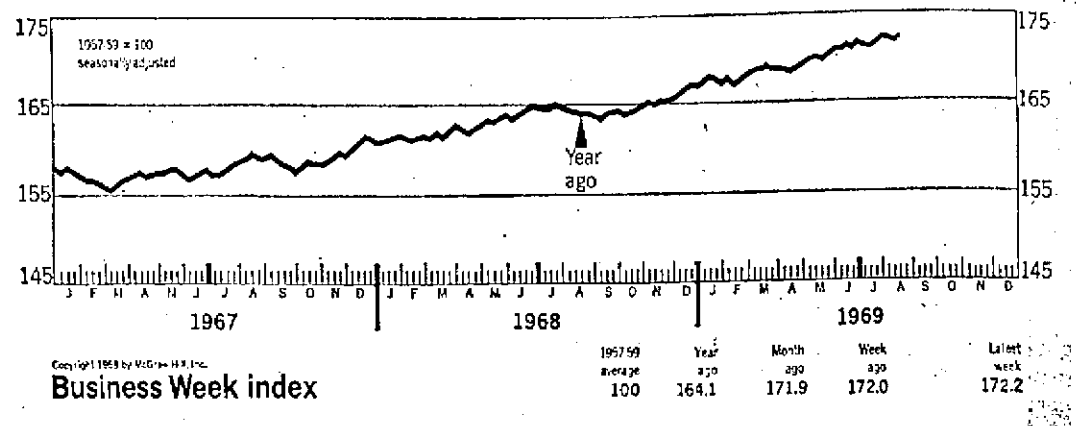

Mutual funds continued to attract new money last month as net sales — the difference between sales and redemptions — totalled $243.0 million in July.

BULWARKING RETAIL activity in the week ended this Wednesday were purchases of school apparel, reports Dun & Bradstreet, Inc. This demand continued to spiral despite high heat and humidity which took some of the starch out of downtown shopping but did not deter the pace in suburban areas. Accessories and shoes drew substantial attention along with children's and teenage clothing. The call for luggage began to soar, and there was a heartening pick-up in personal care items and portable entertainment goods.

Except for a solid boost in some appliances, notably air conditioners and refrigerators, dullness prevailed in home goods buying. Whereas the rain abated in the North East and South Atlantic areas and led to improved retail gains in many cities, slackness and spottiness in shopping in the Mid West were attributed to rains there.

Mixed trends were noted in the South West, as Houston stores continued to chalk up sizzling advances in hot, dry weather while in contrast buying slowed on the weekend in New Orleans with the approach of Hurricane Camille and was wiped out by wind and water in towns along the Gulf Coast. New York's year-to-year headway was widened robustly by comparison with last year when the school strike situation created a cautious tempo.

The total dollar volume of retail sales in the week ended this Wednesday ranged from 4 to 8 per cent above the similar week last year according to spot estimates collected by Dun & Bradstreet.

New Car Production in Full Swing

The Index rose 0.1 per cent in the current week.

Auto production jumped 7.0 per cent as new model production got into full swing. Output gained 11.5 per cent above the month-ago level.

Steel output slipped 1.1 per cent; predictions for future production remains strong.

The power components offset each other in the latest week. Crude oil refinery runs went down .1 per cent, while electric power output increased .5 per cent.

Miscellaneous carloadings fell 3.6 per cent, reflecting a drop in metals and products. All other carloadings inched .4 per cent ahead, and inter-city truck tonnage fell .3 per cent.

Paperboard production decreased 3.7 per cent.

Policing on Campus Talk Topic

C. Lee Chandler will speak on "Campus Disruptions — One of the Problems of Policing" at the Tuesday meeting of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors at the Elks Club. He is chief of police at California State College at Long Beach.

"For the past 14 years Chief Chandler has been specializing in high crime area policing pertaining to car theft, burglary and theft of car parts," says Judy Bowman, September program chairman for the board.

Western Air Lines Promotion for Cain

George Cain, a resident of Long Beach for many years, has been named Southwestern Regional Agency and Interline manager for Western Air Lines, it was announced Saturday by William J. Grant, regional sales manager.

Cain will direct Western's sales efforts, serving nearly 1,000 travel agents and transportation company representatives in Southern California, Clark County, Nev. (Las Vegas), and the greater Phoenix, metropolitan area

Cain is a native of Salt Lake City. He joined Western in January, 1941 after working for the Santa Fe Railroad. He is a veteran of World War II and is still active in the Air Force Reserve in which he holds the rank of colonel.

Following the war Cain served with Western's sales staff in Long Beach, becoming district sales manager. From 1959 until his new assignment he was district sales manager in Los Angeles.

TRADE TIPS ON THE WORLD MARKET

By REVAN KOMAROFF

EXPO '70: Japan's world fair extravaganza offers marketing showplace for the Far East. Electric numerals on a large countdown device hanging outside Tokyo's busy Shinjuku Station inform passersby that there are so many days, hours and zero minutes left until opening day of the first world exposition ever held in Asia — EXPO '70. Participation is expected from the 129 countries with whom Japan has diplomatic relations.

EXPO '70 will certainly represent a unique occasion to fix a corporate image in millions of minds — against the background of a super-spectacle that will remain in Japanese memories for years to come. Whatever the form of participation, it is expected that interest by American industry is sure to quicken, and the many U.S. companies are taking advantage of EXPO '70's once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

The Japanese are pushing on with their usual verve, determined to make EXPO '70 no less successful than was the 1964 Tokyo Olympiad. Because the host city Osaka, Japan's second largest, enjoys a rivalry not unlike the one between Los Angeles and San Francisco. Osakans are going all out to surpass the capital city's widely praised performance during the last Olympics.

Some $1.67 billion will go into EXPO-related construction projects in the area, including the expansion of Osaka International Airport, road, railroad, and subway construction. Japan EXPO Assn. will spend another $230 million in on-site construction and operating costs. Exhibitors, domestic and foreign, will invest an estimated additional $278 million.

"Dollar-defense" policy or not, American firms, intrigued by the prosperous Japanese market of 100-million people will doubtless go all out for EXPO '70 opportunities. Estimates of visitors run from 30-million to 50-million during the Exposition's six-months season from March 15 to September 15, 1970. Foreigners coming from abroad should be around the 1-million mark, mainly from the United States and the remainder mostly from bordering Asian nations. These figures mean that a private U.S. entry should think in terms of making an impact primarily on the Japanese. And the rules of the game insist that it be made as subtly as possible: Hard Sell is out.

There are many ways to make one's image known without taking direct part in the fair: The City of San Francisco, for instance, is donating 10 cable-car shaped buses to haul passengers from parking lots to the main gates. An enterprising manufacturer of typewriters will put a substantial number of his products at the disposal of the press corps. Other companies are contributing a variety of goods ranging from baby carriages through clocks and benches in an effort to make their names more well known to the Japanese public.

And last but not least, our very own Long Beach Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a delegation to EXPO '70, departing on March 7, 1970. Some 59 bookings have already been made, and the interest continues.

How now for some Trade Tips to whet your appetite? Read:

TURKEY — Machinery and equipment for the production of plain aluminum foil, is the interest of Enver Bakioglu, Isciler Caddesi 130 - A, Box 411, Izmir, Turkey.

Other Afghanistan inquiries are: farm tractors, seed sprayers, plows, threshing, harvesting machines for Haibiullah Nurzai Trading Co., Serai Nurzai, Darwazi Kosh, Herat, Afghanistan. The same concern is also interested in water pumps, diesel-powered, 2-8 in. diameter capable of drawing water from depths up to 60 meters. Foreign Trade Association Set to Mark Its 50th Anniversary

What promises to be one of the most outstanding events of the year is the 50th Anniversary Observance of the Foreign Trade Association of Southern California.

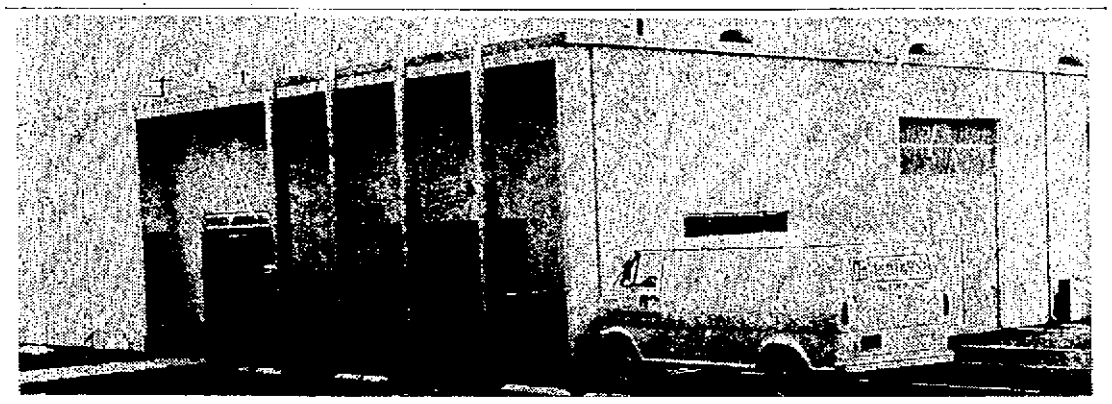

It seems but yesterday when a handful of Exporters from Los Angeles County, met in 1919 for the purpose of forming an association that would put Los Angeles County on the map for World Traders.

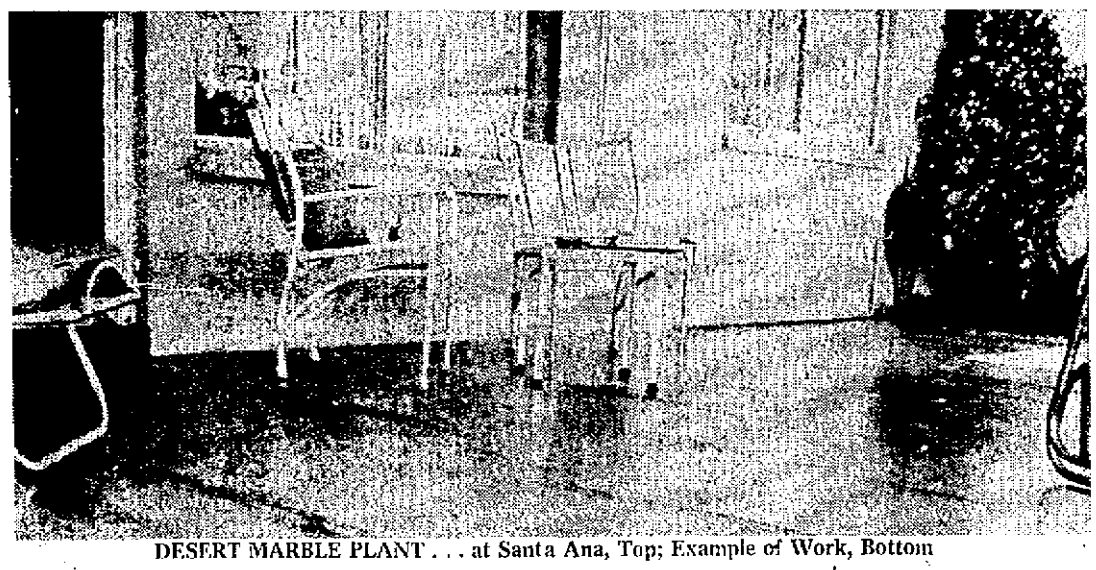

Heretofore, outside of New York and San Francisco, world traders knew relatively nothing about Southern California as a manufacturing center or of the facilities of the adjacent ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach. But by dint of perseverance the word got around, and as more and better failities became operative each succeeding year, the mission was accomplished. Today, thousands of visitors from all over the world know that to visit Long Beach and Los angeles is a must.

The entire International community of Southern California will therefore honor the Foreign Trade Association of Southern California's 50th anniversary at the Biltmore ballroom on the evening of Thursday, October 2. A program of tremendous importance and originality is in process, headed by the indefatigable Robert D. Kleist, regional manager of Pacific Far East Line, Inc.

Assisting Kleist will be David A. Artko, Bank of America International office; Robert H. Autenrieth, export manager, Sunkist Growers, Inc.; Charles Chodzko, vice president, California Cartage Co.; L. E. Coppersmith of L. E. Coppersmith, Inc.; Robert D. Hudson, Los Angeles Harbor Department; Revan Komaroff, chairman of the Board, PME International; Michael J. Long, Trade Commissioner for the Government of Australia; Howard McCargar, Southern Pacific Railroad; Robert Metzgar, Port of Long Beach; Jessie Miller, Balfour Guthrie & Co., Ltd.; Charles Nevil, Meridian Enterprises, Inc.; Sam E. Orr, American Express; and Melvin Wolf, Overseas Shipping Co.

A gala evening and attendance is in store, with representation from the Consular Corps, International Trade Commissioners, Mayors from Southern California cities, Chambers of Commerce, the Shipping and Transportation fraternities, and world traders in gereral.

ROBERT HILL . . . at Dodge Dealership

Hill Gets Dodge Dealership

Robert E. Hill, newly appointed franchise Dodge dealer for the Compton area, this week announced his Grand Opening Celebration of Boulevard Dodge at 401 North Long Beach Blvd.

Planned as a week-long event, Hill said that special events was to be held over the weekend of August 22nd and through Labor Day.

Hill, the first Negro dealer named by Dodge in the area, will carry the full line of Dodge cars and trucks, as well as offer a complete parts and service department to serve the needs of Compton and vicinity.

Prizes and favors will be part of the celebration. Balloons and lollipops for children along with pens, yard sticks, key rings, and road atlases for adults will be given away.

For the performance minded auto enthusiast, Hill will have a full display of the "hot ones" from Dodge's Seat Pack stable. The new Dodge Daytona, an aerodynamically styled stock race car will be featured. Designed for use on the high speed oval tracks, this car will debut at the new Talledega Raceway in September. This production car is equipped with a rear stabilizer wing and front spoiler.

Hill, a long time resident of Southern California and a graduate of UCLA, joins the retail automobile business following a year's training by Dodge both locally and in Detroit.

Management Courses Set

Apartment and Income Management courses in the North Orange County Junior College District have been scheduled to begin the week of September 15, according to Donald L. Kennedy, director of adult education.

Kennedy announced the reappointment of Eugene L. Zechmeister, director of the Apartment House Association, Long Beach-Southern Cities, to be the instructor for the second year. The Apartment Management Class will not be held on the Cypress Junior College Campus, but the Oak Street Junior High School. 10921 Oak Street, Los Alamitos has been the designated site to meet the anticipated large class enrollment. Kennedy stated. The class enrollment will begin on Monday at 7 p.m., September 15.

Floor Covering Proving a Success

but maintenance costs are cheap due to the fact that the Santa Ana flooring needs no waxing, scrubbing, polishing or staining. Waxes are built in and it is easily, quickly cleaned with soap and cold water.

Mike Defabis, head of Safeway of Indianapolis, recently had Desert Marble installed in a high-style supermarket. He said in Flooring Magazine:

"Desert Marble cost us more than a vinyl asbestos tile floor — but it is worth every penny we paid for it. You can't wax this floor, there are alreday 12 different kinds of wax in it. Over a period of time these waxes work to the surface, so all you have to do is buff it with a soft nylon pad, and it comes out clean as a dream. I spend more time talking to people who like this floor than anything else in the supermarket."

One type of customer for Desert Marble are the producers of TV programs and commercials because it can dry between shows. It has been known to be ready for use in as little as 19 minutes, though it's safer to give it a few hours to dry.

THE PRODUCERS OF such shows as Steve Allen, Della Reese, the King Family and others, have chosen it for this reason for "goof-proof" flooring on their stages.

The distributor who did the flooring 4,000 square feet of stages at Hollywood Video Center — Carl Raelser of International Terrazzo Service in Burbank, says he chose the Santa Ana product primarily because of the low maintenance.

Desert Marble, according to its manufacturer, is easily renewable and is guaranteed for five years without treating.

Asked what shape the surface to be covered has to be in, Mayo cited the case of Hollywood Video Center — the parent company of which is to construct a 53-story building with 10 stages, across Vine Street from their present location.

FOR HALF A CENTURY previous to its acquisition by Hollywood Video Center as a television production unit, the building was a bowling alley six feet below grade. This extensive reconstruction job was undertaken with the consultation of Mayo and his staff but its cost was borne by the client. Desert Marble was then poured on its practically level surface for five stages.

Mayo's staff in Santa Ana now consists of eleven technicians, applicators, and office workers — dealers in the U.S. number 300 from coast to coast.

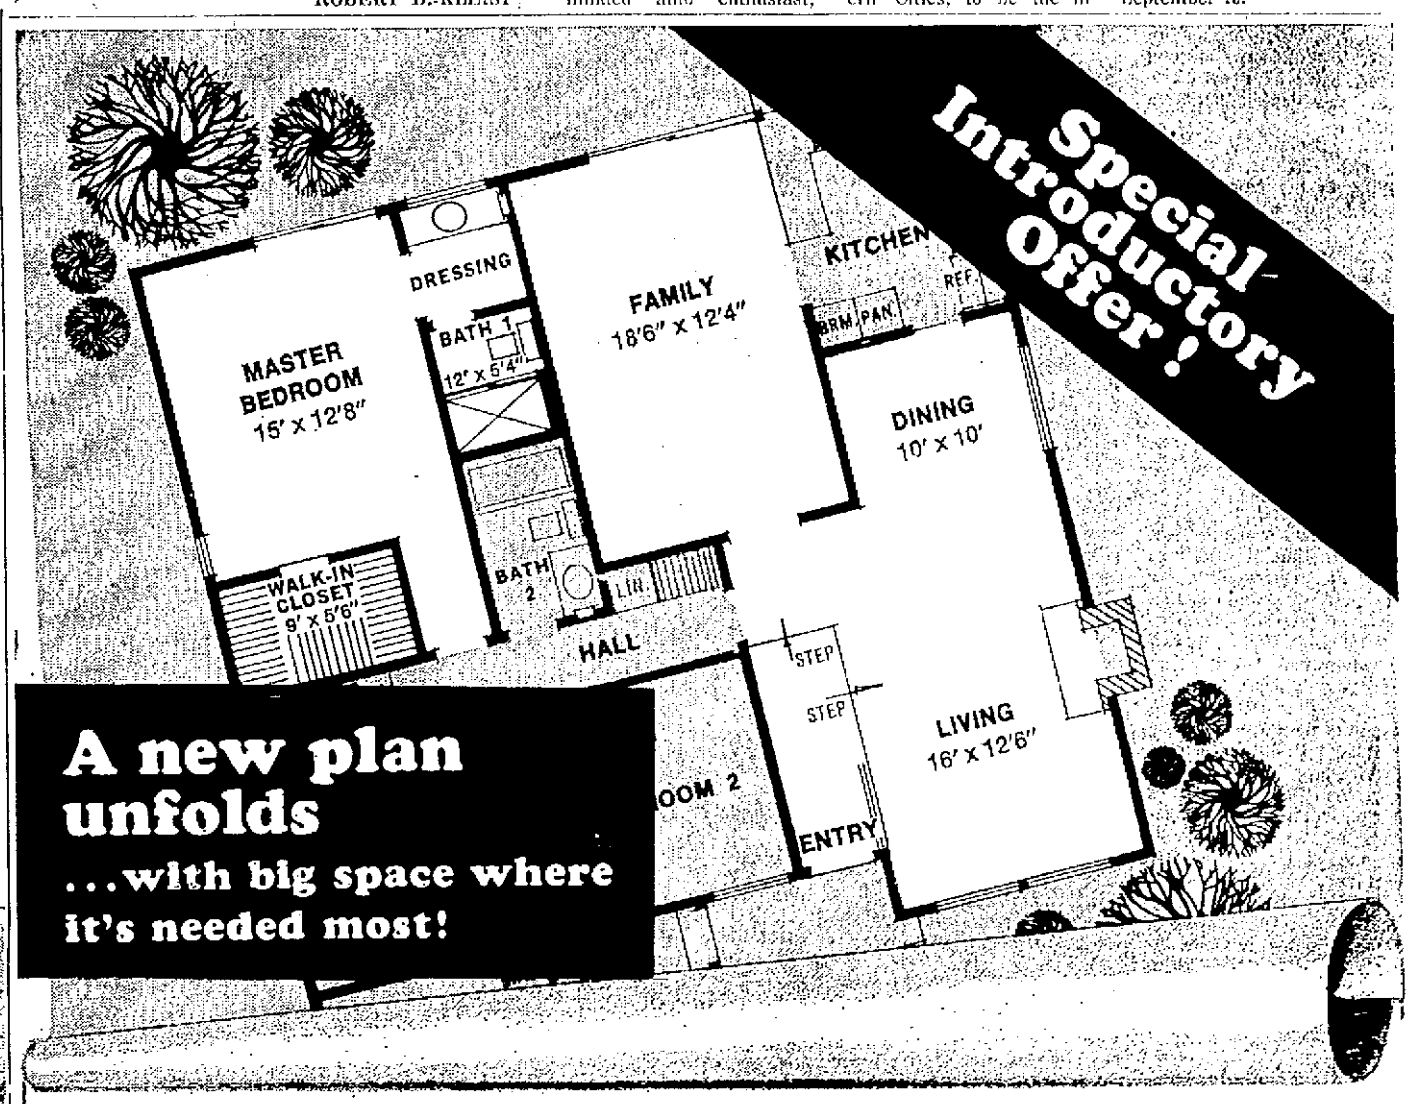

Desert Marble's Mexican affiliate is Seamless Systems de Mexico, S.A., which last month did the largest shopping center in Guadalajara, and anticipates large-scale business for the Republic of Mexico.

Asked for a specific estimate on the cost of an average-size bathroom, Mayo said that any one of his dealers could do the 25 square-foot area of a bathroom for $29.95.

LOMBARDO HONORED

Leonard Lombardo, right, owner of Lombardo's Restaurant, receives a plaque of commendation from Long Beach Gas Department General Manager L. L. Bendinger for his "outstanding use of commercial gas," in the design of the new Long Beach downtown restaurant.

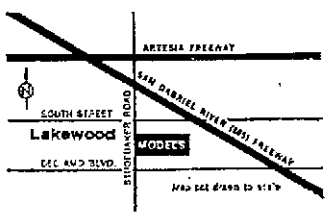

Here's a brand new home model. Right now it's Priced at $29,950 ...and it's in a $32,000 to $40,000 neighborhood!

El Ray Park

The new "Del Amo" is a value breakthrough. It's designed for the three-bedroom family, and it's truly spacious; a full 1500 sq. ft. At this price, there can be only a sprinkling of the "Del Amo" models in El Ray Park. After all, many families have paid far more to own in this prestige community. Best of all, the "Del Amo" retains the quality, the beauty and the deep down strength of its larger, more expensive neighbors. See it this weekend. You'll never find a bargain to match it.

El Ray Park Homes are priced from $29,950 to $37,950. Selection offers striking single story, two story and split level homes, with three and four bedrooms and two and three baths.

A FREEWAY-PERFECT LOCATION • El Ray Park is at the heart of the Lakewood-Cerritos freeway network!

Driving Directions: Take the Santa Ana or San Diego Freeway to the San Gabriel (605) Freeway. Follow 605 to the South Street off-ramp, and go west to Studebaker Road. Turn left at Studebaker Road to reach the models.

EQUITY TRANSFER TRADE PLAN • Equity in your older house can move you into a sparkling new El Ray Park Home.

Three New Tax Centers Requested by IRS

In a drive to combat growing pains triggered by the ever-increasing number of tax returns filed each year — now running at 108 million annually and leading to record collections — the Internal Revenue Service has requested three new service centers to supplement seven others now operational, says Commerce Clearing House.

The new sites, hoped for within two years, would be Fresno, Calif., Memphis, Tenn., and Suffolk County, Long Island, N.Y., under the proposal submitted to the General Services Administration. Each center would run about 400,000 square feet in size.

These centers would be similar to the existing Automatic Data Processing centers in Austin, Tex., Chamblee, Ga., Covington, Ky., Kansas City, Mo., Andover, Mass., Philadelphia, Pa., and Ogden, Utah.

The IRS has a data center in Detroit where statistical information from tax returns is processed and where certain administrative functions for that agency and others are handled, CCH reported.

Under the ADP system, taxpayers file their returns directly with the IRS service center in their area. These returns are processed at the regional center and data from them is sent to the National Computer Center, Martinsburg, W.Va., where it becomes a part of each taxpayer's master file.

Daily IRS operations are handled by 58 district offices, with at least one in each state. These district offices and more than 900 local offices provide information and assistance to taxpayers and administer enforcement programs — activity which contributes significantly to the growing pains experienced by the service centers which have to do the return processing, CCH said.

Owners of large trucks, truck-trailers, or buses may be required to file a federal highway use tax return, Form 2290, F. S. Schmidt, District Director of Internal Revenue for Southern California, said.

A newly revised schedule of taxable gross weights, effective July 1, contains 21 weight categories for single unit or straight trucks, tractor-trailers and truck-trailer combinations.

The new schedule recognizes that larger trucks are using the highways, and also that some trucks are of sturdier construction, and are carrying heavier loads. No change was made in the fee schedule for buses operating on public highways.

The regular period for the highway use tax runs from July 1 through June 30 of the following year. Owners of trucks in use on public highways during July have to file a return by September 2 this year. Subsequent returns may be required concerning vehicles used for the first time on public highways after July.

IRS Publication 349, "Federal Use Tax on Trucks, Truck-Tractors and Buses," furnishes detailed information on this subject and may be obtained by dropping a post card to Internal Revenue Service, P.O. Box 1711, Los Angeles, 90053.

AND YOU THINK IT'S HOT

Ad and PR Firm in New Location

Hubbert & Associates, Inc., Los Angeles-based advertising and public relations firm, has moved to new and larger quarters at 5967 W. 3rd St. according to an announcement by president Robert C. Hubbert.

The full-service agency has been expanding operations steadily in recent months, Hubbert said, and the company's former offices on Wilshire Boulevard were no longer adequate. The agency now occupies one complete floor of a modern three-story office structure just west of La Brea Avenue.

Hubbert & Associates is one of the largest advertising and public relations agencies specializing in real estate accounts, covering all phases of the industry, and the firm represents many of the major building and development companies in Southern California.

In recent months, however, Hubbert explained that as part of the agency's diversification and expansion program, a number of varied products, manufactured for national distribution, have been added to the firm's account roster.

ROBERT LICHTENHAN

Board Member

Robert Lichtenhan, manager of the Long Beach Convention and Visitors Bureau, was appointed to the executive board at the meeting of the International Association of Convention Bureaus in Portland, Ore.

Lichtenhan, manager of the Long Beach Bureau for eight years, also will serve on the Intercontinental Convention Committee of the LACB.

The International Committee will work with the United States Travel Service and European associations in promoting conventions in this country for organizations with predominant European membership.

Broadway Earnings

Broadway-Hale Stores, Inc., sales and earnings increased 11.2 per cent in the first half ended Aug. 2, it was announced by Edward W. Carter, president, in a Los Angeles release.

Consolidated sales for the 26 week period were $269,845,000 compared with last year's $242,739,000 for the same period. Consolidated net earnings were $4,867,000 (59 cents per share) compared with last year's $4,376,000 (51 cents per share).

Consolidated sales in the second quarter were up 11.2 per cent to $138,529,000 compared to $124,537,000 in last year's first 13 weeks.

Home Savings Buys Parcel for Anaheim Headquarters

The recent sale of two prime parcels of land, one on Wilshire Blvd. in Los Angeles and the other in Anaheim, was announced by Lawrence N. Field, president of Lawrence N. Field Associates, Inc., real estate brokers.

Home Savings & Loan Association, the largest savings institution in the United States, will build its Orange County headquarters on 51,000 square feet at Harbor Blvd. and Lincoln Ave. acquired from the Hartmann Corp. for a reported $500,000, according to Field, whose company represented both the buyer and seller in the transaction.

Field's company also represented a local investment group in the purchase of 25,000 square feet on Wilshire at Fremont Pl. from a partnership headed by Norman Elzer, owners of the land for the last nine years, for an undisclosed amount. Jeffere F. Van Lieu of Frank Dutra Co. handled negotiations for the seller.

Field said the new owners plan to develop a five-story office building of more than 500,000 square feet on the property.

Market Research Is Topic

"Better Marketing Through Research" will be the subject at a dinner meeting of the Orange County Chapter, Building Industry Association of California, on September 8 at 6:30 p.m. in the Golden Pheasant Restaurant, Anaheim.

Three outstanding panelists will participate, according to Program Chairman Robert Duff, vice president of First American Title Insurance Company.

Speakers include Richard McElyea, executive vice president of Development Research Associates, and Nicholas S. Winslow, general manager of Facts Consolidated, a subsidiary of Economics Research Associates, both of Los Angeles. Serving as moderator will be W. E. Mitchell of Tustin, owner of Market Profiles, marketing consultant firm.

McElyea, who will discuss "Economic Feasibility and Product Demand," holds a master's degree in business administration from Stanford Graduate School of Business. He is guest lecturer at UCLA and various University of California campuses, and has conducted numerous seminars.

Winslow's topic will be "Understanding the Consumer and Product Relationship." Also a graduate of Stanford with an M.B.A. degree, he has been associated with ERA since March 1967 and is a member of the American Marketing Association.

Widely known in Southern California real estate and building circles, Mitchell has served as sales manager and marketing director for several real estate and land development firms. He is secretary-treasurer and director of marketing for PSI Escrows, with offices in Pasadena, Newport Beach and San Diego, and is co-author of a recently published book, "Marketing Concepts and Sales Strategy for Resales." Mitchell attended the University of Michigan and Pacific Coast Law School.

NEW SITE IN CARSON

International Harvester Co. will relocate its Long Beach area truck sales and service center to a four-acre site in Carson, near the northwest corner of 223rd St. and Wilmington Ave. Purchase of the property from the Eighth Sanitation District, Los Angeles County totaled approximately $210,000, and was arranged by Coldwell, Banker & Co., Realtors. Describing the facility which International Harvester will build in 1970 is the firm's district manager of Southern California operations, J. D. Richardson (center). At left is George H. Fox, Jr. of Coldwell, Banker & Co.; and at right is City Councilman Gilbert D. Smith, City of Carson.

FAKE LANDSCAPERS ON MAKE

Men posing as landscape contractors are bilking unsuspecting homeowners and businessmen out of millions of dollars through deception, misrepresentation, or shoddy workmanship, warns the California Landscape Contractors Association.

Robert L. Curtis, president of the Orange County-Long Beach Chapter, reports that complaints against bootleg landscapers have now reached an all-time high. "Our two offices in the Los Angeles and San Francisco areas have been deluged with more complaints this summer than at any time in our history," he said.

Bootleg landscapers are unlicensed, fly-by-night operators who thrive on the ignorance and the gullibility of the public. They prey on new homeowners and small businessmen who need landscaping, but don't know how to find a competent contractor.

"Few people realize that any person offering to perform landscape work in excess of $100 must be licensed and bonded by the State of California," said Curtis.

"The license assures you that he is a competent contractor who has at least four years of experience and was required to pass a rigid, state-administered examination to get his license.

"In addition, the bonding assures you that he is an established businessman in the community who stands to lose a great deal of money if the work is not completed or performed according to professional standards."

Curtis said that the methods of the bootleg landscaper are almost always the same:

1. They operate door-to-door, never give a business address, and invariably employ a telephone answering service.

2. Their usual stock in trade is a hard-to-resist bargain. They justify their cut rates because "we're doing a couple other jobs in the neighborhood."

3. They usually request a sizable portion of the money in advance.

4. They always have a convenient excuse for not being able to show you their contractor's license.

5. They will never give you a written contract, or a reference that can be verified immediately.

"The simplest way to avoid being cheated is to ask to see their C-27 landscape contractor's license," says Curtis. "And take a good look at it. any of them are clever enough to pawn off a $3.00 business license for the real thing."

Guest Speaker

Guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Rancho Los Cerritos Board of Realtors on September 4 will be U.S. Rep. Del Clawson. Clawson, representing the 23rd Congressional District, is a member of the House Committee on Banking and Currency and was mayor of Compton from 1957 to 1963.

Clawson will bring the members of the Real Estate Board up-to-date on the happenings in Washington and pending legislation which will affect their interests.

RADAR STANDS GUARD

A unique radar alarm system installed in their storage yard and warehouse has greatly reduced theft and vandalism for Harbor Truck Lines, Wilmington.

With burglary at warehouses and on the waterfront on the upswing, Harbor needed an alarm system geared for complete 24-hour protection. Specializing in container handling, they needed to insure protection of their clients' containers which are often left in the outdoor yard overnight before pickup or delivery.

The new system utilizes invisible micro-waves to penetrate solid walls and doors. According to the systems developers, Imperial Electronics of Hermosa Beach, Harbor is the first and only trucking firm in the country to install such equipment in their yard.

Called the Radar Sentry Alarm, the system radiates micro-waves up to 5,000 sq. ft. per antenna; a system of three antennae can protect 15,000 sq. ft.

Harbor Truck Lines vice-president Ed Grady, says the new radar equipment is proving highly successful in protecting their container yard as well as the company's 100,000 sq. ft. public warehouse. He reports that the system is so sensitive that it was recently set off by a cat walking across the warehouse floor.

The Radar Sentry Alarm employs all solid-state circuitry and easily maintained printed-circuit modules.

Training Directors Appointed

Stanford R. N. Morrow and James C. Critchfield have been appointed training directors for the National Alliance of Businessmen, it was announced by John P. Condon, Orange County NAB director.

NAB, established nationally in 1968 by President Johnson and continued and expanded by President Nixon, is providing jobs in private industry and business for disadvantaged persons who in the past have been considered unemployable.

Morrow and Critchfield's responsibilities include training of supervisors to cope with special problems involved with orienting disadvantaged persons to a working environment. In addition, they will counsel fellow employes of the new job-holders on these same problems.

The training will be done at one-day seminars as required by companies participating in the NAB program.

Morrow is on loan full time to NAB from Southern Counties Gas Company, where he specializes in functional and management training.

He resides at 364 S. California St., Orange, with his wife, Dorothy, and is a member of the board of the Planned Parenthood Association of Orange County. The couple has a son and daughter.

Critchfield is on loan from McDonnell Douglas Company, where he is in industrial training.

He and his wife, Lillian, live at 1680 Tedmar Ave., Anaheim. The couple has two daughters and a son.

Hospital Project Started

Groundbreaking for Esperanza Intercommunity Hospital was conducted Saturday on the site at Bastanchury (Citrus) between Rose Drive and Prospect Avenue, according to Harry Stewart, administrator of the new unit.

Plans have been under way for the hospital for more than a year. The 18-acre parcel is slated for an entire medical complex, which will include a medical center for professional offices and a 99-bed extended care facility, as well as the full-range general hospital.

The hospital will be built first, with the other developments started as soon as they are needed.

Stewart, who also is administrator of Fullerton Community Hospital and a member of the board of American Hospital Management Corp., which will build the hospital, said plans have been approved by the State Department of Public Health and the next step will be final building permits from the city.

He said strikes in the construction industry could delay construction, but that work will proceed as rapidly as possible. Clearing of the area is in progress.

The architecture will be early California-Spanish, keynoted by a red tile roof. A full basement is planned, with two stories above ground. The facility will include a maternity ward, an emergency room and special units for coronary and intensive care.

The hospital can be expanded to 250 beds, as needed, Stewart said.

Loans Disbursed

Long Beach real estate loans totaling $1,460,000 were disbursed during the first seven months of 1969 by the western home office of the Prudential Insurance Co., according to Isaac C. Corns, Southern California regional general manager for the company's real estate investment department.

BUSINESS WORKSHOP

Alvin P. Meyers, regional director, Small Business Administration, Los Angeles, announced that SBA will conduct a one-day workshop for people planning to start businesses of their own. There will be no fees. The meeting will be held in the Auditorium of the Los Angeles Police building, at 150 North Los Angeles St., Los Angeles, starting at 9 a.m. on Monday, September 8 and will last until 4:30.

The purpose of this all-day meeting is to prepare individuals to better operate a business of their own. Many "do's and don'ts" will be brought to their attention throughout the proceedings.

Meyers said SBA's aim is to inform the potential businessman of the advantages in becoming his own boss, while at the same time pointing out some of the "pitfalls" in owning and operating a business. Questions will be answered after each presentation as well as the end of the day.

Interesting and important presentations will be given by local businessmen on such subjects as finance, record keeping, taxes, site location, insurance coverage, general administrative management matters, and the best form of business to select.

Limited seating arrangements are available. For further information call or write the SBA office, Los Angeles, telephone: 688-2935, or 688-2924. Do not call the Police building.

Blonde to Teach Higher Escrow

A petite blonde, who looks more like a model than a college professor, will teach the Advanced Escrow course at Orange Coast College this fall.

Lourena Strozensky, assistant secretary and chief escrow officer at Mariners Savings and Loan Association, will begin teaching the course Sept. 8 from 7 to 10 p.m. It will continue on Monday nights for the duration of the fall semester.

The course will cover standards of professional rapport with the general public as well as technicalities in handling escrows, such as exchange escrows, bulk sales, and escrow court cases.

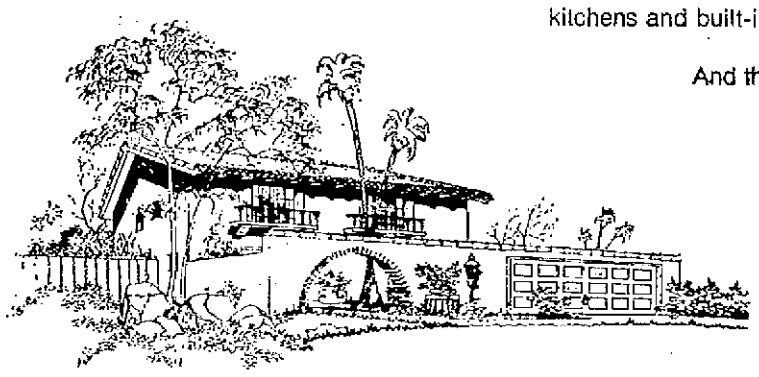

Mrs. Strozensky has been active in the escrow business in Southern California for the past 15 years.

Bob Griggs May Be Youngest Refinery Super in the Nation

At 33 Robert A. (Bob) Griggs may not be the youngest refinery superintendent in the country, but he is among them, though the installation he runs was "born" 13 years before he was.

This, the Signal Hill Refinery of the Macmillan Ring Free Oil Company, was built in 1923, the first in the flamboyant, 1920s' hey-day of the "The Hill" and, at age 46, it is still going strong.

For that matter, beginning to do so again is Signal Hill, 'in cooperation' with the oil industry.

Partly inspired by a secondary oil recovery program now being launched, a $2.8 million 1969-1970 budget ($1 million over the previous year has been just adopted to begin a 10-year program of capital expansion for the City of Signal Hill.

As it has continuously done, the Macmillan Ring Free Oil Refinery, with more than 100 employees, will be an integral part of the whole program, says its superintendent.

And, though comparatively young, Bog Griggs has been around. Several Macmillan employees and officers have been in the oil business longer than he is old, including his immedate boss, Superintendent of Manufacturing, Bruce May who has 42 years with the company.

Griggs, a strapping, six-foot, 210-pounder, Los Angeles-born Lomita-raised, is one-quarter Cherokee Indian, "The rest is English, Scotch and Irish".

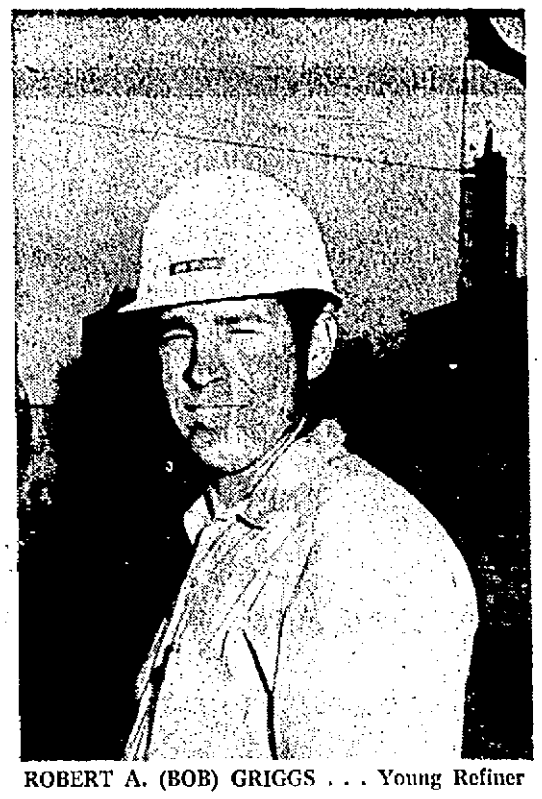

When he went to work for Macmillan 12 years ago, Bob was just one month shy of his 21st birthday (May 26). From there it was a matter of application to the business for the brown-eyed ex-Narbonne High School footballer.

While studying courses related to all phases of processing, and "getting a lot of help from management and technical people", the dedicated Griggs earned his way up.

His work included service as a yield clerk and in transportation; then five years in the industrial sales division— covering outside sales, construction and product application — thence into manufacture (primely, Lake Liners and Color Coating products).

There followed tenure as assistant to the refinery superintendent then, in January, 1969, elevation to his new post.

Griggs, the father of four, a daughter of 15 and three younger sons, resides in Lakewood.

Restaurant Group Treasurer Named

David Tallichet, President of Specialty Restaurants Corporation, today announced the appointment of Michael D. McClelland, 30, of (2505 W. Garvey) Alhambra, as Treasurer of the view-oriented, national restaurant group.

Tallichet said McClelland would assume his new duties immediately. The new treasurer will be in charge of acquisitions and mergers, corporate finance development and investment community relations.

McClelland formerly was with the Bank of California. He joined that banking firm in 1964 in San Francisco and was transferred to Southern California headquarters in Los Angeles in 1965. He has been Asst. Vice President in Commercial Loans since his transfer.

Tallichet said McClelland's appointment marked another step in the rapid development of Specialty Restaurants. He said the emphasis on the duties of the new treasurer would be in the area of acquisitions and mergers.

Specialty Restaurants Corporation owns or operates unique restaurants constructed on sites chosen for spectacular or unusual views. Its restaurant group is in California, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Specialty Restaurants in Southern California are The Reef in the Port of Long Beach, The Ports O'Call, Yankee Whaler and Rum Runner in the Port of Los Angeles, Gate of Spain in Santa Monica, The Proud Bird on the final approach to Los Angeles International Airport, The Pieces of 8 in Marina Del Ray, The Castaways in Burbank and Pomona and Los Robles Inn in Thousand Oaks. Two restaurants are currently in construction including an a la carte restaurant on the 40th floor of the Crocker-Citizens Plaza Building in downtown Los Angeles.

MICHAEL McCLELLAND

We'll unload your old house and load up your new one.

We're here to sell homes. And you want to buy one. So here's our deal:

We'll sell your old house at top market value. If you have an existing FHA or VA loan, we'll see to it that you're able to use your equity as cash, without paying "points" (the cost of refinancing).

Or we'll put your house on our Guaranteed Sale Program. If it doesn't sell, we'll buy it ourselves — for cash — at the value set by a professional appraiser, less normal selling costs.

And we'll guarantee you'll have your equity money before you need it to complete the purchase of our home. Guarantee, not try.

We'll take the load off your mind, too, when it comes to buy-sell details. Walker & Lee will handle both transactions, professionally.

If you buy before the end of August, you'll be moved in before the fall semester starts.

To make our bigger, better, brand-new home even more irresistible, we'll pack into it everything you need and want (to keep the cost of good living down).

Like plush carpeting throughout the house including every bedroom, not just yours.

And fencing, both sides and rear, with a gate to the front. Your enclosed back yard can be as deep as 80 feet.

And complete front yard landscaping. Lawn. Shrubs. Walkways. Ground cover. Flower beds, with flowers. And a full-grown specimen tree it would take you years to grow.

Your neighbors get the same deal, so you know your neighborhood won't look brand new for long.

What else? A lifetime concrete driveway. A self-cleaning oven. A dishwasher and all the other today-type conveniences your old house hasn't got.

Take your pick—3, 4, or 5-bedroom plans with 2 or 3 baths, bonus storage space, terrace kitchens with roomy pantry, walk-in closets, separate service room, formal dining room, and fireplace in the family room. If we told you more, you wouldn't believe it.

You have to see for yourself. We're here every day from 10 to 7, until 8 on Sunday.

We salute you today with our 15th Annual Independent, Press-Telegram Cook Book.

Since the advent of our 14th edition, we've landed men on the moon—taken a sneaky look at Mars, and have perused the ocean depths in every scientific experiment possible. And we, here at the I,P-T, have gone INTERNATIONAL! We hope YOU, our readers, will enjoy the format. The recipes we received in each category were most rewarding, both as to quantity AND quality.

This year it was decided to give all those fine clubs of our City, who have assisted in judging each year, a much needed "dark house" for the summer. The judging was done by five of Long Beach's leading Restauranteurs, and Todd Thorney, Independent, Press-Telegram Restaurant Editor. We think you'll agree . . . they know their food.

A "physiognomy" of each of them appears on another page. The clever art creations were done by I,P-T artist, Tony Korba.

A world of thanks to each of you, our judges, for your kind endurance—and to each of you, our readers, who shared your recipes with us. We give you some new ones in return.

To everyone, we wish a wonderfully happy year "touring the world" right in your own kitchen.

Pork Loin, Stuffed With Prunes and Apples

4½-5 lb. boned loin of pork, center cut
12 med. size pitted prunes
2 lg. tart apples, peeled, cored and cut in 1" cubes
1 tsp. lemon juice
Salt and fresh ground pepper
3 tblsp. butter
3 tblsp. vegetable oil
½ cup sherry wine
½ cup sour cream
1 tblsp. red currant jelly

Place the prunes in a sauce pan, cover with cold water and bring to a boil. Remove from heat and let prunes soak in water for 30 minutes then drain and pat dry with paper towel and set aside.

Sprinkle the cubed apple with lemon juice to prevent discoloring. With a sharp knife, make a pocket in the pork by cutting a deep slit to within ½" of each end and within 1" of each side. Season the pocket lightly with salt and pepper and stuff it with the prunes and apples. Sew the opening with strong kitchen twine. Tie the loin at 1" spaces to keep in shape while cooking.

Preheat oven to 350°. In a casserole, melt butter and oil over moderate heat. Remove from heat and when foam subsides, add the loin, turning it from time to time with 2 wooden spoons, about 20 minutes to brown evenly on all sides. With a baster or large spoon, remove all the fat from the pan. Pour in the wine, stir in the sour cream and bring to a simmer on top of the stove. Cover and cook in center of oven for 1½ hours. Remove loin and let it rest on heated platter while you prepare the sauce.

Sauce: Skim fat off liquid, then bring to a boil until it is reduced to about 1 cup. Stir in currant jelly, stirring constantly until smooth. Remove strings from the loin and cut slices about 1 inch thick. Serve sauce on the side.

KOPENI
From Greece

9 eggs, at room temperature
2 cups granulated sugar
4 tblsp. Farina
¾ lb. ground almonds, with peelings on
1 tsp. cinnamon
¾ lb. butter, melted
½ lb. filo *

SYRUP

1½ cups sugar
¾ cup water
1 tsp. lemon juice

Beat eggs with sugar until very fluffy — at least 20 minutes. Add farina, almonds and cinnamon. Mix well. Divide the filo leaves evenly. Butter an 11x16 pan and put half of the filo leaves on the bottom, making sure to butter generously with pastry brush between each filo leaf. Pour almond mixture on the filo leaves and cover with the remaining leaves, making sure to use all the butter between them. The butter will saturate into the filling and make it rich and flavorful. Bake at 375 for 40 minutes. Pour the cold syrup on the warm cake. Serves 20 pieces of cake. Syrup: Combine sugar, water and lemon juice and boil for 3 minutes then cool. *Filo can be purchased at S & J importers at 2169 Pacific Ave., Long Beach.

½ lb. filo *

SYRUP

1½ cups sugar
¾ cup water
1 tsp. lemon juice

Beat eggs with sugar until very fluffy — at least 20 minutes. Add farina, almonds and cinnamon. Mix well. Divide the filo leaves evenly. Butter an 11x16 pan and put half of the filo leaves on the bottom, making sure to butter generously with pastry brush between each filo leaf. Pour almond mixture on the filo leaves and cover with the remaining leaves, making sure to use all the butter between them. The butter will saturate into the filling and make it rich and flavorful. Bake at 375 for 40 minutes. Pour the cold syrup on the warm cake. Serves 20 pieces of cake. Syrup: Combine sugar, water and lemon juice and boil for 3 minutes then cool. *Filo can be purchased at S & J importers at 2169 Pacific Ave., Long Beach.

3 slices of bacon chopped fine
2 lg. heads of green cabbage

Put cabbage in hot water under low heat (do not boil) until limp. Remove outer leaves and heavy center part. Chop this up to mix with the kraut. Saute onions in a little fat. Mix everything (except the kraut and tomatoes and cabbage) together with your hands. Wrap meat mixture in cabbage leaves and tuck in on each end.

Mix the kraut and cabbage together and put some in the bottom of a large kettle. Lay the cabbage rolls on this and then add remaining kraut chopped cabbage mixture. Pour the canned tomatoes over this and cook about 1½ to 2 hours slowly, until meat and rice are done. Pour off some of the juice and thicken this with 3 tablespoons of flour lightly browned in bacon fat or butter; pour juice over this and let come to boil. Add additional seasoning if desired and pour back over cooked cabbage. Serve with cottage cheese and dark rye bread and a dab of sour cream on top.

SECOND PLACE
SZEKELY GOULASH

1½ lbs. lean leg of pork or pork shoulder
2 tblsp. flour
2 tsp. paprika
1½ tsp. salt
2 tblsp. fat
2 tblsp. finely chopped onion
2-3 tblsp. hot water
1 No. 2½ can sauerkraut (about 3½ cups, firmly packed)

Add contents of plastic bag. Brown meat on all sides, turning occasionally. Add 2 to 3 tablespoons hot water, cover pan and simmer one hour stirring occasionally; add small amounts of water as needed.

Shortly before end of one hour cooking period, drain contents of No. 2½ can sauerkraut. Rinse in cold water so that the goulash will have a milder flavor, drain again. Mix kraut with meat; add 2 cups hot water and bring to boiling. Cover and simmer a half hour longer or until meat is tender when pierced with a fork. Remove sauce pan from heat. Gradually blend about 1½ cups cooking liquid into 1½ cups sour cream. Blend into hot mixture. Stirring constantly, cook over low heat 3 to 5 minutes until heated thoroughly. Do not boil. Rinse eggplant under cold water and do not peel outer skin or remove green stem. Dice the onion. Place eggplant in baking pan and bake in oven at 475 degrees until skin turns dark brown and juice starts to bubble, approximately 30 minutes.

Cool eggplant at room temperature until cool enough to handle with fingers. Peel under cold running water and discard the browned skin and green stem. Chop eggplant until smooth, using either a food blender or a wooden chopping bowl with a chopper. When eggplant is smooth, stir in the diced onion, salad oil and salt. Chill in refrigerator in a covered bowl until ready to serve. Serve on small salad plates with wedges of chilled tomatoes. Serves 4.

POTATO DUMPLINGS

- 6 med. potatoes cut in halves
- 1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
- 1½ tsp. salt
- ¾ lb. salt pork, bacon or ham, chopped into 1-inch cubes
- 1 med. size onion, chopped
- 2-3 cups sifted flour
- 2 qts. water
- 2 tsp. salt

Boil the potatoes about 20 minutes or until tender, then drain and shake pan over low heat to dry potatoes. Mash or rice potatoes thoroughly. Whip in the eggs yolk and salt into potatoes until fluffy. Set aside.

Cut the meat into 1-inch pieces. Put into kettle with the chopped onion and cook over medium heat, moving and turning with spoon. When meat is evenly crisp and onion is golden brown, remove from skillet and drain on absorbent paper. Measure 2 to 3 cups of sifted flour and add the flour to the potato mixture, blending thoroughly. Add enough remaining flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on a floured surface and knead as for bread dough. Pat out dough ½-inch thick. Cut into 2-inch rounds using a biscuit cutter. Spoon about 2 tsp. of the meat-onion mixture into the center of one half the rounds. Cover with the other rounds. Seal edges securely and shape into balls.

Bring the water and salt to a boil and gradually add dumplings to boiling water so boil does not stop. Cook about 15 minutes. Remove and drain and place in warm serving dish and serve with melted butter.

1 tsp. each salt and baking powder
½ cup milk
1 egg
¼ cup melted butter, shortening or margarine

FILLING:
½ cup each thinly sliced green onion tops and minced parsley
1 tblsp. melted butter or margarine
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. white or black pepper
1 lb. soft jack or swiss cheese, coarsely shredded (about 4 cups)

Pastry: Sift and measure flour and sift again, into bowl with salt and baking powder. Make a well in center of dry ingredients. Beat together milk and egg; pour into well and stir with a fork until thoroughly mixed. Stir in melted butter, 1 tablespoon at a time, turn dough onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth, about 3 to 4 minutes. Shape dough into a ball, cover with a bowl or waxed paper, and let rest on floured board for 30 minutes.

Filling: Saute onion and parsley in butter until soft. Season with salt and pepper. Remove from heat and mix in cheese.

Roll dough on floured board until ⅛-inch thick. Cut into 14-16 rounds, each 5 inches in diameter (use 1 lb. coffee can lid as cutter) reroll dough as necessary to use scraps. Spoon equal amounts of cheese mixture in center of each round and pack cheese down slightly. Moisten rim of each round with water, fold dough over cheese filling and press edges together, forcing out any air pockets inside the boraks. Seal edges by pressing together with a fork or your fingers.

Heat shortening to 375 deg. and fry boraks until golden on each side. Drain on paper towels. Serve immediately or refrigerate and reheat in a 350 deg. for 10 to 15 minutes. If you freeze them, allow to stand at room temp. about 30 minutes, then reheat in oven. Makes 14 to 16.

SECOND PLACE
CHEESE BORAKS

Pastry:
4 cups flour
1 tsp. each salt and baking powder
½ cup milk.
1 egg
¼ cup melted butter, shortening or margarine

FILLING:
½ cup each thinly sliced green onion tops and minced parsley
1 tblsp. melted butter or margarine
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. white or black pepper
1 lb. soft jack or swiss cheese, coarsely shredded (about 4 cups)

Pastry: Sift and measure flour and sift again, into bowl with salt and baking powder. Make a well in center of dry ingredients. Beat together milk and egg; pour into well and stir with a fork until thoroughly mixed. Stir in melted butter, 1 tablespoon at a time, turn dough onto lightly floured board and knead until smooth, about 3 to 4 minutes. Shape dough into a ball, cover with a bowl or waxed paper, and let rest on floured board for 30 minutes.

Filling: Saute onion and parsley in butter until soft. Season with salt and pepper. Remove from heat and mix in cheese.

Roll dough on floured board until ⅛-inch thick. Cut into 14-16 rounds, each 5 inches in diameter (use 1 lb. coffee can lid as cutter) reroll dough as necessary to use scraps. Spoon equal amounts of cheese mixture in center of each round and pack cheese down slightly. Moisten rim of each round with water, fold dough over cheese filling and press edges together, forcing out any air pockets inside the boraks. Seal edges by pressing together with a fork or your fingers.

Heat shortening to 375 deg. and fry boraks until golden on each side. Drain on paper towels. Serve immediately or refrigerate and reheat in a 350 deg. for 10 to 15 minutes. If you freeze them, allow to stand at room temp. about 30 minutes, then reheat in oven. Makes 14 to 16.

Frozen Foods Storage Hints

Here are some suggestions to follow on freezing foods at home:

Meat — Trim excess fat and, where practical, remove bones to save freezer space. Pad any remaining bones with saran film to prevent puncturing the package.

Poultry — Leave whole or cut into serving pieces. Wrap giblets separately. Never stuff poultry before freezing. Trim leftover meat from bones before packaging.

Shellfish — Freeze shrimp either raw or cooked. Cook and remove crab and lobster from shells before freezing. Freeze clams, oysters and most other shellfish raw.

Baked Goods — Breads of all kinds, cakes, cookies and most kinds of pies are naturals to freeze. Cool thoroughly before wrapping. Freeze frosted cakes before wrapping. Butter icing freezes more successfully than other types. Freeze most pies and cookies before or after baking. Some home economists believe fruit pies are better when the pie is baked after freezing.

Fruits and Vegetables — Methods of preparation vary. Consult your freezer booklet for specific instructions.

Prepared Dishes — Included here are casseroles, soups, stews, meat loaves and creamed dishes. Unless freezing combination-type dishes for only a week or two, season lightly, as seasonings tend to become stronger during prolonged storage. Add potatoes and onions when reheating.

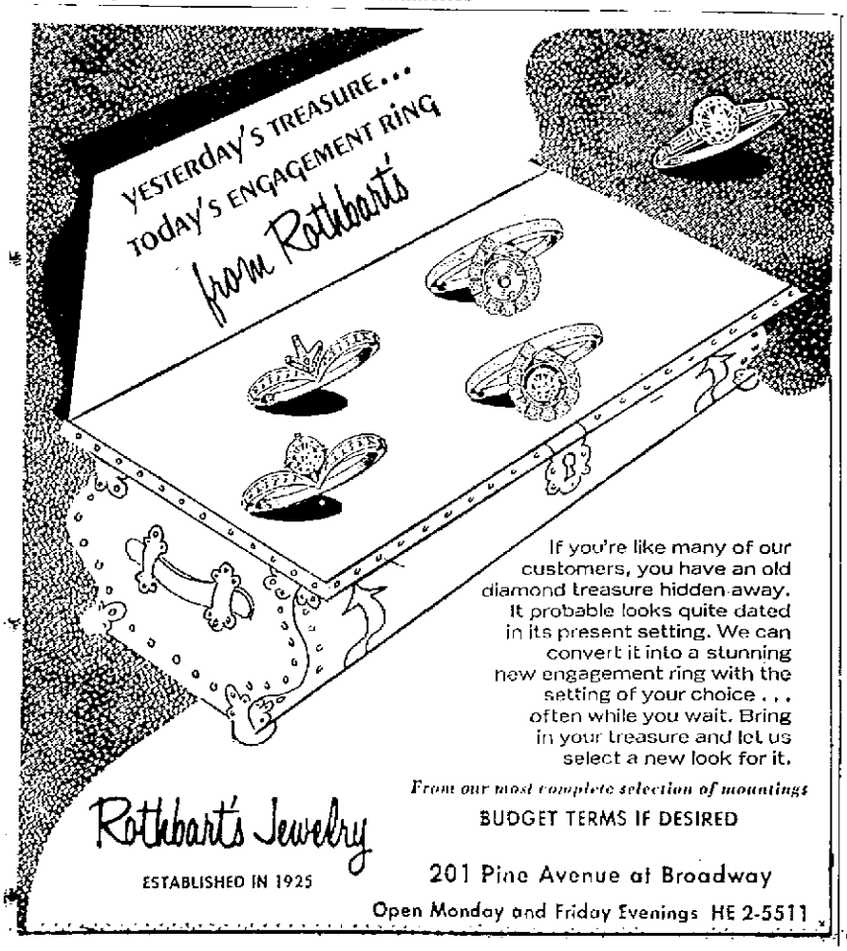

All Foods — Freezing retains quality but cannot improve it. Freeze only high quality foods. Freeze foods as rapidly as possible at 0 deg. F. (or lower). Don't try to freeze too much at one time.

Fry immediately in electric skillet for three to five minutes until golden brown. Place on wire rack or absorbent paper towel. Serve with the very thin sauce with white rice.

Frozen Foods Storage Hints

Here are some suggestions to follow on freezing foods at home:

Meat — Trim excess fat and, where practical, remove bones to save freezer space. Pad any remaining bones with saran film to prevent puncturing the package.

Poultry — Leave whole or cut into serving pieces. Wrap giblets separately. Never stuff poultry before freezing. Trim leftover meat from bones before packaging.

Shellfish — Freeze shrimp either raw or cooked. Cook and remove crab and lobster from shells before freezing. Freeze clams, oysters and most other shellfish raw.

Baked Goods — Breads of all kinds, cakes, cookies and most kinds of pies are naturals to freeze. Cool thoroughly before wrapping. Freeze frosted cakes before wrapping. Butter icing freezes more successfully than other types. Freeze most pies and cookies before or after baking. Some home economists believe fruit pies are better when the pie is baked after freezing.

Fruits and Vegetables — Methods of preparation vary. Consult your freezer booklet for specific instructions.

Prepared Dishes — Included here are casseroles, soups, stews, meat loaves and creamed dishes. Unless freezing combination-type dishes for only a week or two, season lightly, as seasonings tend to become stronger during prolonged storage. Add potatoes and onions when reheating.

All Foods — Freezing retains quality but cannot improve it. Freeze only high quality foods. Freeze foods as rapidly as possible at 0 deg. F. (or lower). Don't try to feeze too much at one time.

Arthur Rubinstein

"All my life I have been on my knees before the art of music. I adored it. I lived for it. It has made me the happiest of men, for my work is the greatest privilege and the greatest joy in the world."

This is the pianist Arthur Rubinstein speaking in the 90-minute special exploring his life and art, "Arthur Rubinstein," at 8:30 p.m., Friday, Ch. 4. Rubinstein narrates the program.

"Playing is a natural outlet," Rubinstein says. "You know it's absolutely like hunger and to eat a piece of bread and cheese, or go to sleep because I am sleepy. I am hungry for music, so I go to the piano and play. It's a natural thing. It's a sixth sense, always has been like that. I love to play the piano and make music, but I loathe the practice technique. And I must tell you it has never changed! I still now loathe to practice technique."

CHOPIN is the "beloved elder brother" of every pianist in the world, Rubinstein says. "He gave us the piano. He knew what the piano could do. No other composer did. But Chopin dreamt, felt, lived music on the piano and that becomes magic. I played very often the most divine sonata of Beethov-

From Here to 70s

Documentary of Decade in the Making

By ROBERT MUSEL
United Press International

In a few months a decade dies and NBC-TV is assembling a two and a half hour obituary of the 10 turbulent years of The Sixties that will also be a forecast of what the world can expect in the era that opens with New Year's Day, 1970.

Outside of the historic moon landing there is little to weep for as The Sixties depart — they were often a tale of war and revolution, race conflict and natural disasters, political assassinations and, in their last stages, the dubious cult of youth.

Producer Robert Northshield, studying the material from his reporters, who include every big name in the NBC News division, believes "From Here to The Seventies" will strike a more hopeful note for the next decade although its own great problems — hunger and population — are already clear and threatening.

THE PROGRAM is scheduled for Oct. 7, and with time growing short Northshield was discovered checking up on progress reports from Chet Huntley, David Brinkley, Sandor Vanocur, John Chancellor, Frank McGee and the rest of his contributors.

"It's very exciting," he said, waving a pipe, "but then every show is -- till it gets on the air. As far as news went, The Sixties were such a rich decade. All we can hope to do is evoke and remind. It's hardly remembered that it opened with Nixon being nominated in Chicago and losing. And who recalls that only a year ago many thousands of people died in an earthquake in Iran?

"We've got to cover the whole race situation in nine minutes and the youth revolution in eleven. But it isn't necessary to go into some of the subjects in depth — a few seconds of a riderless horse in Washington is all one needs to dramatize the assassination of President Kennedy.

"Two Kennedys died during the decade — and we'll be filming on that bridge."

NORTHSHIELD assigned each of his reporters to write an essay about a particular aspect of The Sixties and what could be learned from it for The Seventies and then sent teams out to many countries to find or produce film to cover the points they raised. This is the reverse of the usual procedure of writing a script to fit film.

FORREST TUCKER stars as a lovable con man in "The Flim-Flam Man" at 8:30 p.m., Monday, Ch. 4.

SPORTS TODAY

BASEBALL, 5 p.m. (4), has Curt Gowdy and Tony Kubek at Crosley Field for the last of this season's three prime-time telecasts, as the Chicago Cubs face the Cincinnati Reds.

SPECIAL

NIXON & GOVERNORS — President Nixon has tentative plans to address the national Governors' Conference, at Colorado Springs. Such an address would preempt regular evening programming on the networks.

FLIM-FLAM MAN (4), 8:30 p.m. — In an unsold pilot by 20th Century-Fox, based on the 1967 movie, Forrest Tucker stars as a lovable, fast-moving con man, who victimizes only "the greedy, dishonest and gullible". With Don Scardino as his young accomplice, the flim-flam man poses as a TV show crewman investigating the famed Southern hospitality.

PAN AND FAN MAIL

THIS IS an open letter to all the networks. While viewing the gala affair in honor of the wonderful American (astronauts) who had accomplished so much, the networks had to interrupt every few minutes with a stupid silly commercial.

This, in my opinion, was a gross insult to the honored guests, our President and his gracious First Lady . . .

It is bad enough to view an ordinary program and have to look at some of the people make fools of themselves just to sell a cigarette or detergent, etc., without having them interfere with the most wonderful way of thanking the men who had done so much to further the attempts of science.

. . . I think it was a low blow and in very bad taste.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Smith,
Long Beach

WATCHING Tom Jones in his show last night (Aug. 21), I concluded that the name of it should have been "Tom Jones — Sweats a Lot," or "If You Don't Sweat Like Tom Jones You Ain't In". Or something else more descriptive, like maybe, "Tune In Tom Jones and Watch the Sweat Trickle In and Out of His Ears, Mouth, Nose, etc."

Maybe the cameramen had only super close-up lenses in their cameras, or maybe they are trying to "do-in" the deodorant people by making sweats the "in" thing to do. Shades of high school gym days, Ach!

I dig Tom Jones, think he stands real tall in today's entertainment field of male singers, but I wish he wouldn't try to impress people with the amount of "run-off." Maybe winter outdoors shooting of the show would be the answer.

I WOULD LIKE to know when Joey Bishop will host his annual "recap" of some of his best shows — or have I already missed it?

The five new shows to begin airing Saturday morning are "The Smokey Bear Show," "The Cattanooga Cats" (bottom right), "Hot Wheels" (bottom left), "The Hardy Boys" and "Sky Hawks." (See Specials, Page 14).

PHYLLIS DILLER guests on Liberace's show at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 2.

From Here to 70s

Documentary in Making

"It comes as a surprise to learn that more than 40 countries were involved in wars in the 1960s — alphabetically from Algeria to Zambia," he said. "Those apostles of peace, India, had the most warlike record. They started the decade by taking Goa from Portugal, they fought Pakistan twice, ordered full mobilization for their fight with China and had language and religious riots. We, of course, had Vietnam. Russia nearly made it without shooting except for the recent Ussuri River clash with China."

Film star Paul Newman will be on the show as a guide, linking the 12 essays. Brinkley's closing spot on communications, especially TV, will summarize some of what has gone before. But one of the most intriguing contributions will come from Doug Kiker of the Washington staff who has obtained a list of technological advances expected within the next 10 years. These include:

A cure for Parkinson's (palsy) disease and certain cancers; substantial increase in life expectancy; communication directly from satellites to home receivers; chemicals to improve memory and learning; greatly increased use of organ transplants; and new techniques of effective birth control simple enough to be used in the underdeveloped countries which need them most.

CRITICS' CORNER

COME ON, CARRI! COME ON!, aired Tuesday, Ch. 2.

. . . Clete Roberts did his usual first-rate professional job of narrating the advances in the humanization of the mentally retarded.

As cameras jump from one to another Long Beach track or swimming contest for mentally retarded boys and girls, Roberts reports that the new thinking of doctors is that mentally retarded can be best helped if they are treated as humans rather than monsters to be hidden in someone's dark, remote closet and forgotten . . .

There were several beautiful, heart-breaking close-ups of boys' and girls' faces as they competed in foot races and swimming contests, and then were complimented for their effort, regardless if they won or lost . . . One little girl named Carri won "a hug and loving support"—for winning third in one race.

PHYLLIS DILLER guests on Liberace's show at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday, Ch. 2.

From Here to 70s

Documentary in Making

"It comes as a surprise to learn that more than 40 countries were involved in wars in the 1960s — alphabetically, from Algeria to Zambia," he said. "Those apostles of peace, India, had the most warlike record. They started the decade by taking Goa from Portugal, they fought Pakistan twice, ordered full mobilization for their fight with China and had language and religious riots. We, of course, had Vietnam. Russia nearly made it without shooting except for the recent Ussuri River clash with China."

Film star Paul Newman will be on the show as a guide, linking the 12 essays. Brinkley's closing spot on communications, especially TV, will summarize some of what has gone before. But one of the most intriguing contributions will come from Doug Kiker of the Washington staff who has obtained a list of technological advances expected within the next 10 years. These include:

A cure for Parkinson's (palsy) disease and certain cancers; substantial increase in life expectancy; communication directly from satellites to home receivers; chemicals to improve memory and learning; greatly increased use of organ transplants; and new techniques of effective birth control simple enough to be used in the underdeveloped countries which need them most.

CRITICS' CORNER

COME ON, CARRI! COME ON!, aired Tuesday, Ch. 2.

. . . Clete Roberts did his usual first-rate professional job of narrating the advances in the humanization of the mentally retarded.

As cameras jump from one to another Long Beach track or swimming contest for mentally retarded boys and girls, Roberts reports that the new thinking of doctors is that mentally retarded can be best helped if they are treated as humans rather than monsters to be hidden in someone's dark, remote closet and forgotten . . .

There were several beautiful, heart-breaking close-ups of boys' and girls' faces as they competed in foot races and swimming contests, and then were complimented for their effort, regardless if they won or lost . . . One little girl named Carri won "a hug and loving support"—for winning third in one race.

Terror of the Networks

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

You wouldn't know it to look at him, but Bob Hope is the terror of the networks.

Any regular series or special will be juggled around like a primed hand grenade when a Hope spectacular is in the offing.

Hope wipes out the opposition in the ratings.

ABC-TV side-stepped a confrontation with the comedian by delaying the debut of two of its new series this fall, "The Survivors" and "Love, American Style."

Both were to have been beamed Sept. 22. Now they will be shown Sept. 29 when comedian Hope is nowhere to be seen unless — horrors — one of his old movies should crop up that evening.

MUCH AS Rapid Robert gives the appearance of fun and games, he is all business underneath the gags. He wants to top the ratings as much as anybody in the television rat race.

High ratings mean more money, of which Bob has plenty already, but it also makes him king of the mountain — and he enjoys the altitude.

His first show of the new video season is loaded with talent. Among the guests are Bill Cosby, Johnny Carson, Sid Caesar, Steve Allen, Flip Wilson, Jack Carter and Jimmy Durante.

In all, Hope has 18 comedians lined up for the show.

"It works because I can play straight man for them, or turn around and let them play straight for me."

Whatever. It isn't playing straight with ABC or CBS.

Bob Hope, plus 18 very funny comedians, is absolutely ruinous to the opposition. Bob knows this and grins with anticipation.

Arthur Rubinstein

en with all my heart. I had a great success with it. I played then something grandiose of Schumann, whom I do adore. It all sounded very well, the public was very satisfied, but then suddenly one piece of Chopin, and the perfume comes out of the piano: you know you are suddenly in a magic garden. Something happens to it. I don't know what it is. On the worst piano, it does sound always. He saves even bad pianos."

IN THE program Rubinstein plays three works of Chopin: Polonaise in A flat, Etude in C-sharp minor, and Nocturne in D flat. He also plays the first movement of Beethoven's "Appassionata" Sonata, Schumann's "In the Night," Liszt's "Liebestraum," the March from Prokofiev's "The Love for Three Oranges" and Villa-Lobos' "Polichinelle."

He is heard with the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra in the first movement of Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 3 and the first movement of Brahms' Piano Concerto No. 1, and with the Orchestra de Paris in the third movement of Beethoven's Piano Concerto No. 5 (the "Emperor"). The conductors are Elihu Inbal (Israel Philharmonic) and Paul Kelcki (Orchestra de Paris).

Beware Labor Day Week-end— Somebody will probably gamble with your life!

That person thinks that is he takes chances on the highway, that's his business. The trouble is, the minute he loses control, sombody else's life is in jeopardy. Yours, perhaps. What can you do about it? Be forewarned. Expect trouble. Assume that any driver on the road could do something stupid, any minute. Then if something happens, you won't be completely taken by surprise. Otherwise, when someone else begins to gamble with your life, the odds are against you. Your independent insurance agent suggests: drive defensively.

For Art's Sake

"ART FOR ART'S sake is my motto," says 17-year-old Danya Thomas. If you'd like one of her poems, she'll give it to you, but don't ask to buy it.

Danya, who will be a senior in September at Downey High School, writes poetry and short stories, paints, and makes jewelry. Her jewelry has been exhibited at the Laguna Festival of Arts, and she has won various prizes for her writing and painting.

Her future plans include living in New York City, college and then a career as an airline stewardess or model. Currently, she lives with her parents at 10552 Chaney Ave., Downey.

Her views:

—I don't want to make a profit out of art. I do it for myself. It's true I sell some of my jewelry, but only for the cost of materials. The real reason I started making jewelry two years ago was because I got tired of wearing the same things as everyone else. I want to wear jewelry that is a reflection of my personality.

—I think a lot of young people are making their own things as a move toward self-sufficiency and as an outlet for creativity. When you wear jewelry or clothes you have made, you feel like an individual, not a carbon copy of someone else.

—Young people seem to be more concerned about art than their parents. The older generation thinks only of their jobs, color television sets and Cadillacs. Young people like art because they have a lot of things to say, and art is a means of expressing these thoughts.

—My poetry deals with people and their problems, especially people's inability to live together peacefully. People are more important than materialistic possessions, and most of the world's problems are caused by materialism. I think if they took the financial profit out of war, there would be no more wars.

—Art improves your sensitivity. The artist feels more deeply about the world's problems than the person who has no interest in art.

—Despite the importance of art, very few high schools have adequate courses and facilities for the student who is interested in art, literature or creative writing.

—However, if I wanted to take a science or math course, I would have a wide selection to choose from because this society is technologically oriented. I think we need scientists and mathematicians, but we also need facilities for artists and writers.

—When you stifle a student's interest, he becomes disenchanted with education. I know many students who can't wait to get out of high school because they can't take the classes they want and there is no challenge. Teachers talk down to you. I had an English teacher whose entire course consisted of giving a spelling test once a week and reading to his students. Can you imagine reading to 11th grade students? This type of education leads to rebellion.

—Administrators need to listen to students and try to work out courses that fit the students' needs. If the administration refuses to talk to students, then civil disobedience is justified. However, all demonstrations must be nonviolent and involve only students. Outside agitators stir up trouble, and they should be barred from campus.

—Many adults can't understand why students are dissatisfied. Each generation has a different set of values. Most adults think life means only going to work, coming home, watching TV and spending money to keep up with the Joneses. Young people are saying, "No thanks. There has got to be more to life than that."

—Carolyn Ruzkiewicz

Glad You Asked That!

Q. HOW MANY marriages have the Gabors totaled?—Inez J., Cincinnati.

A. As of this writing, the amorous, glamorous Gabors won the gold ring 14 times. Mama Jolie is happy with her third, Count Odin de Szigethy (once a Freedom Fighter). Magda (the Quiet One) recently lost her third husband, Tony Galluci. Eva, after three "I do's" that didn't, found rapport with Dick Brown. And Zsa Zsa, after five notches on her belt, is currently between husbands. She once confessed: "George (Sanders) was my true love — even though he used to charge me a nickel apiece whenever I asked him for a cigarette."

Q. Isn't Leslie Uggams a Sammy Davis discovery? — D. J. Blum, Madison, Wis.

A. No. At the age of 14 Miss Uggams won $12,500 as a contestant on "Name That Tune." Mitch Miller, in the studio audience, was impressed enough to hire her on the spot and make her a star. She's now 26 and poised to launch a reahhhly Big Series of her own.

Leslie Uggams . . . discovered by Mitch Miller.

Q. I heard that "Margie" has been adopted as the official marching song of the army of a foreign nation. Which one? — Beryl Adis, Pittsburgh.

A. Biafra.

Q. When and why did Leo Durocher say, "Nice guys finish last"? — Peter R., Chicago.

A. "I never did say that," Leo admitted to me. "It stemmed from a conversation I had with sportswriter Frank Graham at Ebbets Field. After Stanky's flying spikes helped the Dodgers nose out the Giants in the ninth, Graham condensed my tribute to the player's fighting spirit into a four-word phrase that's been credited to me ever since."

Q. I understand David Merrick still hasn't given 20th Century Fox permission to release the Barbra Streisand "Hello Dolly!" film. What's he waiting for? — Grace Armstrong, Dallas.

A. More money. "When they sweeten the pot and up the ante, I'll say OK," Merrick says. Even then, the Broadway hit with Pearl Bailey and Cab Calloway will continue to run since Merrick believes a live show can always hold its own against a movie.

Time was — and not too many years ago, at that — when Cal State Long Beach was referred to as the "Mausoleum on the Hill" on the sports pages of Long Beach's newspapers. But in the last few years some great new coaches and some outstanding athletes have been creating considerable excitement at the giant college. Not only that, but athletic prospects look better than ever as the 1969-70 season is about to get under way. In our cover photo, four of the 49er coaches pose with athletic director Fred Miller. From the left: Jerry Tarkanian, basketball; Don Gambril, swimming; John Gonsalves, baseball; Jim Stangeland, football, and Miller. Outside House Painting Eliminated for 15 Years

LONG BEACH, CALIF. (CT)—Painting is a thing of the past. Let us show you how Fiberglas TEX-COTE insulates, waterproofs and beautifies and is factory guaranteed for a full 15 years.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residences until they hear the TEX-COTE story. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every fiberglas TEX-COTE job is factory guaranteed for 15 full years against chipping, flaking or peeling.

Fiberglas, a product of Owens-Corning, brings to TEX-COTE its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER THE YEARS

TEX-COTE is one of the oldest coatings now marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings since 1946. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 15 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

TEX-COTE is applied with heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. TEX-COTE fuses itself to the walls and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects. TEX-COTE may be applied over stucco, wood, brick, block or shingles.

CITY OF LONG BEACH

Cal-Tex Improvements, Inc., is a licensed City of Long Beach Building Contractor. Most of the work now being done by Cal-Tex is in the greater Long Beach and West Orange County areas.

Cal-Tex has been applying TEX-COTE to homes in the Greater Long Beach Area for many years. For a Free Home Demonstration — without obligation — or for your FREE brochure regarding TEX-COTE — call GA 3-8411.

THE WELLS REPORT

Hall of Mirrors

By Bob Wells

IN LONG BEACH, two young police officers are dispatched to an apartment house to investigate a complaint of a noisy, midweek party. They find the offending apartment dimly lit but filled with people. The guests are sitting on the floor in small groups. The stereo is intoning ". . . the hand of the person opposite you. Examine it closely. Feel it. . . ."

"My God," one patrolman says to the other, "it's a seance."

The middle management echelon of a large corporation is gathered around the swimming pool of a resort hotel. They are listening to one of the younger men in the group. He is not talking to the group but to an older, red-faced man whose face is becoming progressively more red. He is the young man's boss.

"You like to think of yourself as brutally efficient," the young man is saying. "Actually you are brutally rigid. You haven't had a new idea in 15 years and you make sure that no one else around you has one."

In Orange County, the local newspapers receive a flood of letters to the editors, obviously inspired, denouncing "the introduction of Communist brainwashing techniques in our colleges and churches."

In a church camp in the San Gabriel Mountains, an angry man strides from a cabin with a suitcase, tosses it in the back seat of his car and drives off. He is the activities director of a Los Angeles area high school and he has just been called a string of unprintable obscenities by a student, a girl whom he had regarded up until now as "nice but rather quiet."

A public utilities executive finishes dinner at home and decides to prepare for a business conference the next day. His homework is a book entitled, "The Autobiography of Malcolm X."

In Woodland Hills, a young psychology professor and his wife are the objects of speculation among their neighbors. Some say they belong to a group of swingers. Others say they belong to a chapter of the John Birch Society. Still others speculate that they may be members of Alcoholics Anonymous. Reason for the speculation: One weekend each month or two, many cars are parked around the couple's house at all hours.

A middle-aged housewife feeds her family then rushes off to her psychologist's office. In an informal conference room are several other people, whom she greets. They chat a while, then the psychologist says, "Well, shall we begin? I thought this week. . . ."

THESE PEOPLE AND MANY, many others are all participating in or reacting to what is becoming America's latest fad. It goes by many names — group therapy, sensitivity training, basic encounter groups, team development, interdepartmental confrontation, marathons, nonverbal communication, experiments in communication, to name only a few.

It has also been described in differing ways. The radical right calls it brainwashing. The psychologist who heads the Western Behavioral Center in La Jolla calls it "a beautiful little piece of social architecture."

Some people who participate in what we shall here call "group encounter" come away radiant and describe it in such terms as "awe, wonder, self-transcendence." Others, their attention caught by some of the nonverbal exercises, speak of going to "the feelies."

GROUP ENCOUNTER consists basically of a group of people sitting around talking about themselves and each other. Participants are instructed to be as honest as they can. They are told to express feeling rather than thoughts. They may say anything they want any way they want to say it, no matter how shocking. Violence is barred.

Group sessions often sound like the conversation in the kitchen at a cocktail party sometime after midnight that is started by one guest saying to another: "How come you don't like me? I like you, how come you don't like me?"

To increase perception and to break down the normal defenses of reserve with strangers, nonverbal warmup exercises are often used. Participants are told to look into each other's eyes for a full minute, to express how they feel about other participants without using words, to hold hands, to hold themselves rigid and in turn be lifted up by the rest of the group.

Some encounter sessions are stretched out to last from 12 to 48 hours. Participants during these long periods are allowed little or no sleep except that which they get catnapping on the floor during the session. These long sessions are called marathons. Dr. Frederick Stoller, one of the inventors of the marathon, says the fatigue of the participants destroys their normal defenses and makes them more honest.

THE JOHN BIRCH SOCIETY and other radical right groups have attacked group encounter as akin to Communist brainwashing. The individual is forced by subtle group pressure to abandon his values and accept those of the group, it is charged.

Curiously, many psychologists agree in part with this estimate, but find no evil in group encounter. Man is a social animal and does not function outside a group, they say. The members of an encounter group act as mirrors in which the individual can see many images of himself. He can see how his behavior appears to others and modify it.

"An individual goes away from the group feeling better about himself and able to function better," says clinical psychologist Dr. Verne Kallejian.

But Dr. Richard Farson of the Western Behavioral Center doubts that encounter groups significantly modify behavior. The individual often goes away feeling that his life has been changed and enriched, but objective psychological tests fail to find anything more than small personality changes, Farson says.

He believes that group encounter should be practiced and enjoyed for its own sake.

"IT'S LIKE GOING TO A SYMPHONY," Farson says. "Whether people really change is not as important as what happens to people. It is an esthetic experience."

Nevertheless, group encounter is being used for emotional therapy, to better racial understanding, to improve industrial efficiency, to save troubled marriages and to bridge the generation gap.

Dr. Kallejian sees a further function for group encounter.

"The time will come," he says, "when what now passes for cocktail conversation will become sensitivity training."

I don't know about his set, but the letters I know have been practicing group encounter for years — but only in the kitchen after midnight.

THE WELLS REPORT

Hall of Mirrors

By Bob Wells

IN LONG BEACH, two young police officers are dispatched to an apartment house to investigate a complaint of a noisy, midweek party. They find the offending apartment dimly lit but filled with people. The guests are sitting on the floor in small groups. The stereo is intoning ". . . the hand of the person opposite you. Examine it closely. Feel it. . . ."

"My God," one patrolman says to the other, "it's a seance."

The middle management echelon of a large corporation is gathered around the swimming pool of a resort hotel. They are listening to one of the younger men in the group. He is not talking to the group but to an older, red-faced man whose face is becoming progressively more red. He is the young man's boss.

"You like to think of yourself as brutally efficient," the young man is saying. "Actually you are brutally rigid. You haven't had a new idea in 15 years and you make sure that no one else around you has one."

In Orange County, the local newspapers receive a flood of letters to the editors, obviously inspired, denouncing "the introduction of Communist brainwashing techniques in our colleges and churches."

In a church camp in the San Gabriel Mountains, an angry man strides from a cabin with a suitcase, tosses it in the back seat of his car and drives off. He is the activities director of a Los Angeles area high school and he has just been called a string of unprintable obscenities by a student, a girl whom he had regarded up until now as "nice but rather quiet."

A public utilities executive finishes dinner at home and decides to prepare for a business conference the next day. His homework is a book entitled, "The Autobiography of Malcolm X."

In Woodland Hills, a young psychology professor and his wife are the objects of speculation among their neighbors. Some say they belong to a group of swingers. Others say they belong to a chapter of the John Birch Society. Still others speculate that they may be members of Alcoholics Anonymous. Reason for the speculation: One weekend each month or two, many cars are parked around the couple's house at all hours.

A middle-aged housewife feeds her family then rushes off to her psychologist's office. In an informal conference room are several other people, whom she greets. They chat a while, then the psychologist says, "Well, shall we begin? I thought this week. . . ."

THESE PEOPLE AND MANY, many others are all participating in or reacting to what is becoming America's latest fad. It goes by many names — group therapy, sensitivity training, basic encounter groups, team development, interdepartmental confrontation, marathons, nonverbal communication, experiments in communication, to name only a few.

It has also been described in differing ways. The radical right calls it brainwashing. The psychologist who heads the Western Behavioral Center in La Jolla calls it "a beautiful little piece of social architecture."

49ers on the Rise in Sports

By Jim McCormack

IN 1967, WAYNE WELK, then sports information director at California State College at Long Beach, emblazoned the motto "The Fastest Growing Power in the West" across the cover of 49er pressbooks.

In 1967, Welk may have been more enthusiastic than he was accurate.

But that seems long ago. Today, many of Cal State's athletic opponents would consider Welk more prophet than promoter.

The rise made by 49er athletic teams in two seasons is beyond the wildest dreams of the fans who had to bear the burden of the "Mausoleum on the Hill" reputation through the late '50s and early '60s.

In 1968-69 the 49ers won California Collegiate Athletic Association championships in basketball, baseball, water polo and swimming. CSLB also received the CCAA "Ironman" trophy for overall athletic excellence.

The three students nominated for Cal State's top athletic award—Billy Parks, Sam Robinson and Hans Fassnacht—had proved to be among the best in the nation at their respective sports.

Parks was chosen the split end on the football coaches of America All-America college division team after running his two-year CSLB totals to 147 receptions for 2,495 yards and 20 touchdowns.

Robinson ranked second only to UCLA's Lew Alcindor on United Press International's All-Coast basketball team after leading the 49ers to a 23-3 season, the best in the school's history.

Fassnacht won two NCAA university division swim championships and was runner-up in a third. This summer, the West German Olympian has added a pair of world records to his successes.

THERE IS EVERY indication 1968-70 will be better.

Don Gambril, the first "super coach" hired by Fred Miller, who became athletic director in 1967, will be in his third year as head swim coach. In his first year at CSLB the Olympic coach inherited a team that had sent one swimmer to the NCAA college division meet the season before.

In one year, Gambril put together a team that won the college title by more than 300 points and then finished 11th in university competition.

This past season, Gambril's swimmers, vying only on a university level, finished sixth among the nation's finest swim teams.

This summer, Gambril, who is currently lecturing in Australia, directed his Phillips 66 Swim Club men's team to a 102-point triumph in the National AAU championships.

Jerry Tarkanian, the second "super" to team with Miller, will be in his second year. In the 1968-69 season he presented CSLB its first basketball title ever and produced a team that won 23 of 26 games.

Tarkanian, who won four state titles in five years while coaching at Riverside and Pasadena city colleges before coming to State, has his top eight performers returning and has recruited two outstanding junior college athletes in George Trapp of Pasadena and Dave McLucas of Ventura.

Trapp was the California player of the year and McLucas was the state's top rebounder and also junior college high hurdle champion.

Jim Stangeland, the former Long Beach City College dynasty-builder and assistant coach at USC, has worked diligently in his first year at CSLB to build the finest football team in the school's history.

John Gonsalves, who replaces assistant athletic director Bob Wuesthoff, will inherit five starters from a conference champion baseball team.

Wuesthoff will fill in for Miller this year. Miller leaves Sept. 14 on a year's sabbatical.

Jack Rose, who will also work in athletic administration, and newcomer Ted Banks, former head coach at Pasadena City College, are working on a track team that will maintain a tradition of quality in that sport.

Parks, Robinson and Fassnacht are back.

CAL STATE is entering a larger, university division-oriented conference, the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. Charter members are UC Santa Barbara, CSLB, San Diego State, Cal State Los Angeles, Fresno State, University of Pacific and San Jose State.

The football team has intersectional contests with the University of Hawaii, Texas A&I and Northern Arizona plus a renewal of the series with San Diego State, two-time NCAA college division champion.

The basketball team has the toughest nonconference schedule in Cal State's history, playing the University of Houston, Texas Tech, the University of Hawaii, Lamar Tech, Oklahoma City University and Tulsa.

Yet, despite this sudden success, the athletic department unanimously indicates the program does not aim to produce "another" San Diego State, USC or Green Bay.

"We don't want to become another San Diego State," says Miller.

"This is Long Beach and we have problems that are germane only to Long Beach."

Although Cal State's athletic program has grown up quickly, its "parents,"

49ERS ON THE RISE

Miller and his coaches are determined that it become a responsible citizen in the community it represents.

"Part of the problem of many university programs, the successful ones, is that their athletic program is out of the mainstream of the educational community," Miller reports.

"I don't think that is the case here. We look to our own priorities. Our No. 1 priority is the participant in our program. Then we have a priority to the public we serve.

"The Long Beach community is a public we serve. So is the student body. And the faculty. I think we move toward serving those publics by hiring all our coaches as teachers.

"I think that this is the right approach because we're not removed from the student body. We're involved with the academic senate, student government and student representatives. This is the right way to do it.

"But to go this way in athletics, it needs the kind of person who will fit into this. Jerry (Tarkanian) fits, he's half-time in the dean of students office. He's done an amazing job, especially with this tremendous rapport he has with the black community.

"Jim (Stangeland) fits into this system so easily because he grew up teaching.

"They all fit, Don (Gambril), John (Gonsalves), Jack (Rose), Ted (Banks), Randy (Sandefur), Ken (Bartlett) and Jack (Montgomery).

"These people like to have balance and balance is important. We don't want anyone who is so gung-ho that they're going to eliminate the needs of kids involved in our instructional program."

"I ENJOY MY associtaion with the other kids," Tarkanian explains. "It gives me a chance to know them better and them a chance to know me better.

"I like to have the kids around. To know what they're doing. We want them to know we are interested in them.

"We don't hold closed practices, you know. All of our practices are open. Last year we had 40 to 100 students watching our practices every day. Some were only fans, but many were physical education majors.

"They'd come up to me after practice and tell me they were going into coaching and that they'd enjoy watching us work. That's good. That's part of our job, too."

Stangeland also enjoys working with other students.

"It is very good," the 49ers' head football coach says, "because you have constant communication with all students, not just football players. You feel the pulse of the students.

"You're also dealing with the faculty through luncheons and conferences. Many football coaches in highly professional programs do not know the faculty. Or the students.

"Another healthy thing we have here is an intermingling of students. Our kids live in dorms with other students, or they commute with other students."

Gambril is also an advocate of the "Cal State Concept."

"In coaching or teaching," Gambril explains, "you have to be more dedicated than the student. You have to have their respect. You must always work for the benefit of your kids and never yourself."

Off campus, the most pleasing response to Cal State's improvement in athletics has been the sudden mutual admiration society formed between the school and city.

"When I took the job," Miller recalls, "I felt that the school and the city would always remain apart unless we had athletic success.

"There are really very few areas on a college campus that can go forward to the community. Fine arts would be one. Drama would be one.

"But there is no area that can equal athletics as far as establishing rapport with the community. And this being the case, then, for God's sake, we have to go ahead and get with it.

"The time is ripe now for the city and school to come together.

"And we are. It's obvious by the variety of support groups that have blossomed.

"We've gotten a tremendous reception downtown with city government. These people are interested in making Long Beach a better city.

"Now, the city has this opportunity, and it may have always been a latent desire, to go ahead and attach itself to the community.

"But when we start hiring people like Tarkanian, Gambril and Stangeland, we have the type of individual that will go forward into the community and produce in the community. Then, the community wants to meet us halfway and it's doing it."

ALL OF MILLER'S coaches feel Long Beach is one of the strongest "pluses" they have in recruiting athletes.

"I came to Cal State because of the very healthy possibility of having a fine football program here," Stangeland explains.

"Everything is here, the school, the community and the people in town. Long Beach has always been an enthusiastic sports town.

"And it's a beautiful city. When you show boys this city, you do it with great pride.

"Also, the support of the people in town has been fantastic. Better than that when you consider that we haven't made a first down. We're only threatening to make a first down.

"The Touchdown Club is the perfect example. Its membership includes people from all walks of life."

How did Stangeland attract athletes so quickly after coming to CSLB?

"I think the word slowly got around that perhaps there was something here for the athlete.

"Why else would I leave USC, would Chuck Boyle leave Tulsa, would Bill Miller leave Anaheim and Ernie Johnson leave El Rancho?

"The reason we came here is the same reason the athletes came. All of the ingredients are here to have a fine football program."

Tarkanian, who came to Long Beach with only his reputation, is also happy with the community's response.

"We have gotten a great deal of help from the city," Tarkanian admits, "and it continues to improve. This year there are more people willing to help. I've met people I can go to now that I didn't know when I first came here."

Tarkanian's basketball team will be the first 49er club to truly test how far Long Beach wants to go with the school.

"I think we'll know this fall how much support we're going to get," Tarkanian says, pointing out his club will move into the 12,000-seat Long Beach Arena for eight home games.

"If we get the good support for those games that I hope, and it looks like we will, we should have no problem having an outstanding program here.

"I can't think of a better place to coach. We have a tremendous community, good campus and students. All those things are important."

IS THE FUTURE of athletics at Long Beach promising?

"Yes," Miller states. "It was inevitable that this was going to happen. Good people want to be part of a good program.

"I don't think this community, in the future, will have to relate to what goes on in Los Angeles for their sporting entertainment needs.

"A lot of things have happened in this city in the last five years. People in Long Beach are taking more pride in the city.

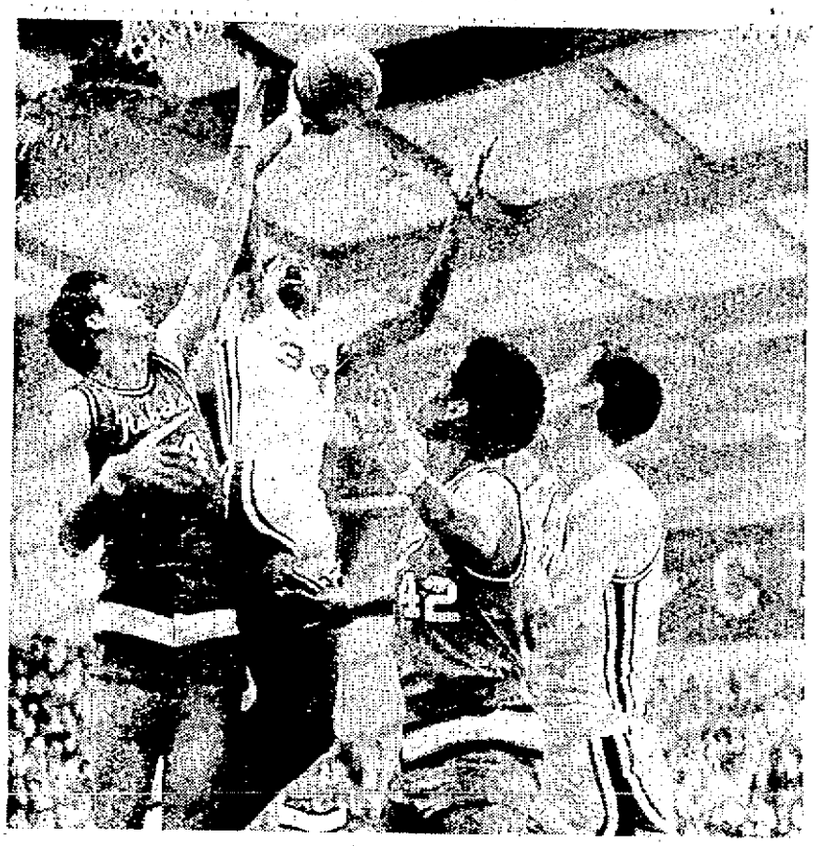

"And they should. With the exception of a stadium, we have outstanding facilities in Long Beach. Belmont Plaza, Marine Stadium and the arena are prime examples.

"When you consider everything, I don't see how we can help but be successful.

"Look at our total athletic program. We feature 14 intercollegiate sports here. Look at LSU. It has six. Some Southeast Conference schools have only eight sports.

"It's easy to see the potential here and that's why we are getting the Gambrils, Tarkanians and Stangelands to coach here and it's why we're getting Long Beach to support them."

Hopefully, the days of the "Mausoleum on the Hill" are history.

Sam Robinson (No. 34) paced 49ers to a best-ever 23-3 basketball record last season, and will be back for 1969-70. He ranked second only to Lew Alcindor on UPI's All-Coast cage team.

ALL OF MILLER'S coaches feel Long Beach is one of the strongest "pluses" they have in recruiting athletes.

"I came to Cal State because of the very healthy possibility of having a fine football program here," Stangeland explains.

"Everything is here, the school, the community and the people in town. Long Beach has always been an enthusiastic sports town.

"And it's a beautiful city. When you show boys this city, you do it with great pride.

"Also, the support of the people in town has been fantastic. Better than that when you consider that we haven't made a first down. We're only threatening to make a first down.

"The Touchdown Club is the perfect example. Its membership includes people from all walks of life."

How did Stangeland attract athletes so quickly after coming to CSLB?

"I think the word slowly got around that perhaps there was something here for the athlete.

"Why else would I leave USC, would Chuck Boyle leave Tulsa, would Bill Miller leave Anaheim and Ernie Johnson leave El Rancho?

"The reason we came here is the same reason the athletes came. All of the ingredients are here to have a fine football program."

Tarkanian, who came to Long Beach with only his reputation, is also happy with the community's response.

"We have gotten a great deal of help from the city," Tarkanian admits, "and it continues to improve. This year there are more people willing to help. I've met people I can go to now that I didn't know when I first came here."

Tarkanian's basketball team will be the first 49er club to truly test how far Long Beach wants to go with the school.

"I think we'll know this fall how much support we're going to get," Tarkanian says, pointing out his club will move into the 12,000-seat Long Beach Arena for eight home games.

"If we get the good support for those games that I hope, and it looks like we will, we should have no problem having an outstanding program here.

"I can't think of a better place to coach. We have a tremendous community, good campus and students. All those things are important."

IS THE FUTURE of athletics at Long Beach promising?

"Yes," Miller states. "It was inevitable that this was going to happen. Good people want to be part of a good program.

"I don't think this community, in the future, will have to relate to what goes on in Los Angeles for their sporting entertainment needs.

"A lot of things have happened in this city in the last five years. People in Long Beach are taking more pride in the city.

"And they should. With the exception of a stadium, we have outstanding facilities in Long Beach. Belmont Plaza, Marine Stadium and the arena are prime examples.

"When you consider everything, I don't see how we can help but be successful.

"Look at our total athletic program. We feature 14 intercollegiate sports here. Look at LSU. It has six. Some Southeast Conference schools have only eight sports.

"It's easy to see the potential here and that's why we are getting the Gambrils, Tarkanians and Stangelands to coach here and it's why we're getting Long Beach to support them."

Hopefully, the days of the "Mausoleum on the Hill" are history.

How to Get O ut of the Swim

By Mary Davis

DO YOUR FRIENDS with pools spoil your weekends by asking you over for a swim?

It's not the invitations you mind so much, it's the note of charity in their voices that you resent. And the imposition. You have to stop a gin rummy game that you're winning, cooled by the breeze of your electric fan, or leave your air-conditioned den before the end of a close ball game on TV to suffer in the hot glare of their pool yard.

Pool owners split into two classes. The languid lollers never swim at all. With them, you'll stand around the shallow end, discussing campus riots or the merits of group therapy while the lower half of you freezes and the upper half bakes. If, for a little relief, you should float off, dead man style, you may be called anti-social and most certainly will be accused of splashing.

On the other hand, when the hyperactive aquabats invite you to swim, by Neptune, that's what you'll do. Without warning, you're shoved in the pool, which is never heated, and worked through a series of races and games the likes of which you haven't faced since camp as a kid. As you struggle for air, the family's adolescent diving champion lands on you with all the force of his backward one-and-a-half somersault and you're rescued by the 12-year-old who's taking junior life-saving.

If you're tired of the watery circuit, but don't know how to get out of the swim, here's a list of special pool rules which, if followed, guarantee that your next aquatic invitation will be your last.

1. Arrive well ahead of time. This will disconcert your host and hostess. At least you may interrupt a battle over why they asked you in the first place, and at best you could find them in the pool skinny-dipping.

2. Never bring your own towel. Borrow one from your hostess, who probably doesn't have enough to go around the family. But come armed with styrofoam rings and floats, the kind that break when they strike the water and crumble into fine pieces. And don't forget plenty of sun tan oil which will grease up the pool tile nicely.

3. Criticize the temperature of the water and its eye-burning effects. Display the toe you've mangled against the rough bottom and ask your host if he knows anything at all about chemistry.

4. Monopolize the diving board. Hit the water with tidal-wave splashes that will be sure to drench any large panes of glass in the house nearby.

5. When you come out of the pool, drip on dry guests. Sneak up behind a fully clothed one, preferably a great pal of your host, and push him into the water. This will take the sizzle out of any friendship.

6. Walk through the house sopping wet. The goal to keep in mind here is a trail of soggy chlorinated footprints on all the carpets.

7. Demand your drink in a real glass. When you're finished, wade into the pool with the empty and use it to start a vigorous game of keep-away.

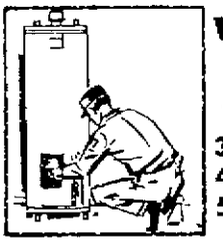

8. If the children are invited, bring along their skateboards so that they can dry off by swooping at breathless speed around guests basking on the deck.

9. If forced into night swimming, roar like a stormy ocean. The later the hour, the harder you tax your vocal cords. Yell "everyone in the water" and, as they jump, switch off the pool and patio lights. Your host'll wish he'd doubled his insurance.

10. If, by chance, all of these rules fail, there's one more thing, in self defense, that you can do. Sink a swimming pool in your own back yard.

A Touch of France . . . Down Mexico Way

By Les Rodney

Intricate work of art with a French flair was made at a plant in San Miguel de Allende, in Mexico. Figure is 15 inches tall.

Photos by PHIL BOCK

AN UNDISTINGUISHED building at the cobblestoned intersection of two narrow streets in San Miguel de Allende, deep in the heartland of Mexico's central plateau, is the unlikely source of a stream of delicately crafted, sophisticated papier-maché creations to be found in the most elegant shops of New York, San Francisco, Dallas, Paris and London.

Here some 125 artisans, all natives of the hilly old colonial town, go through the processes which turn strips of old newspapers into varied, original objets d'art.

The end product may be a gilded, subtly antiqued cabinet (expensive!), a droll animal, or a playful human figure, all with an unmistakable French flair.

Yes, French.

Presiding over this domain of waste paper, plaster of paris, glue, string, paste, paints and lacquer at Zacateros No. 27 is Mme. Jeanne Valentine. She is a pleasantly shrewd former Parisian whose age is difficult to guess, but soon seems highly unimportant.

Mme., or Senora, Valentine — she is near the end of the lengthy process of becoming a Mexican citizen — opened shop in San Miguel 10 years ago, training young area people in the exacting techniques of the ancient French craft.

"I spend two, three months training them," she said as she led the visitors through the fiberglass-ceilinged workshop, a large atrium with small rooms and offices radiating off the center. Walls adorned by fey drawings set a colorfully relaxed tone. "They are easy to train, I found. Many of them bring with them a born sense of design, a feeling for the work. A few have more than ordinary artistic possibilities."

She stopped at a table where four young women were decorating figures with color, and singled out a shyly smiling 18-year old. The workers do not see many visitors in the plant. "This is Juanita Sanchez. Now, she has the luck to be a promising artist," Mme. Valentine said, and promptly translated her pretty good English into pretty good Spanish for the benefit of the girls.

Absentee creator of most of the objects produced here is Jeanne Valentine's own son, 27-year-old Nicolas Schlee, currently in New York. His mother describes him matter-of-factly as a leading theatrical designer, excellent painter and sculptor.

"He can design anything."

It is from Schlee's sculptures that the more skilled Mexican workers form the plaster molds, a crucial step in the quality of the final product.

Not only the production workers, but manager, clerks and bookkeepers are Allendians.

Felix Luna, 27, the general manager, is responsible for setting and meeting of work schedules, solving of personnel problems, securing of raw materials and supervising of shipping.

"He came to us at 17, when we started," Mme. Valentine related. "He is from simple people, like the rest of them. He speaks their language. They have confidence in him, you see."

Questions about volume of output pain Mme. Valentine. She feels it is the wrong emphasis. "We are not a factory," she chides. "We do not mass produce. Each item is an individual creation."

Pay scales are set by the federal government. There are candidates aplenty for apprentice training in the Valentine workshop in this city of 10,000, but the turnover is not great.

When a new girl is brought in, the veterans rally around her with maternal concern.

"The new one comes in as a country girl, as the others were at first," Mme. Valentine explains. "They all chip in money to take her right away to a beauty parlor, maybe help her get some new clothes, so she should look right and feel at home. You should see them sometimes combing out the hair of a new one . . ."

A look around on an ordinary weekday morning revealed workers totally absorbed in what they were doing, yet, as Mme. Valentine had suggested, relaxed and unhurried, quite unlike assembly line workers. They work like people with a loving appreciation for the end product as each performs her separate task — whether applying into the molds layers of paste-soaked newsprint, removing the dried thin sections of paper from the molds, assembling them into sculpted forms, delicately accenting them with string patterns textured on the surface, painting the complete figures, or the final skilled effect — the "antiquing" with stain and flying fingers.

Jeanne Valentine unmistakably likes and respects her workers — and her adopted town, which is one of Mexico's more picturesque, increasingly included on the "must see" tourist list out of Mexico City.

"I think we have been good for each other," she says. "Certainly I get something from San Miguel de Allende, and I give it back something good."

The feeling of respect seems mutual. She is the recipient of a rare honor for a non-Mexican. Each birthday, "St. Jeanne's Day," her employes tender her a swinging fiesta.

When this business woman speaks of her fiesta, she almost purrs like the Jeanne Valentine trademark — a regal yet saucy papier-maché cat, bowtied and heart-bedecked, the very embodiment of serene and disdainful feline superiority over such oafs as dogs.

French-born Jeanne Valentine . . . she trains Mexican workers in techniques of ancient French craft.

A Treat at Sea or in Camp

By Mildred Flanary

Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

WHETHER "a-float or a-ground," the successful summer hostess keeps the meals for warm weather parties simple and food preparation to the minimum. And with careful planning and appropriate selection of food, the task can be fun.

The floatable menu featured here is designed to please the crew as well as the cook. And when a camping trip is on the agenda, this menu can easily be transported to the campsite.

Following are the recipes:

KING CRAB STEW WITH CHIVE DUMPLINGS

2 (7½-oz.) cans Alaska King crab or 1 pound frozen Alaska King crab
¼ cup chopped onion
½ cup chopped celery
2 tblsp. corn oil
2 cups water
2 beef bouillon cubes
1 (1 lb. 12 oz.) can tomatoes
½ tsp. each, thyme and basil
Chive Dumplings

Drain and cut crab into bite-size pieces. Saute onion and celery in oil. Add Alaska King crab and remaining ingredients, except dumplings. Bring to boil. Drop dumpling batter, by spoonfuls, over top of stew. Cover and simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Makes six servings.

For Chive Dumplings, combine 1½ cups biscuit mix with 3 tablespoons chopped frozen or freeze-dried chives, ¼ cup grated cheese (optional) and ¾ cup water. Cook as directed above.

NOTE: Stew may be partially prepared at home, omitting seafood and dumplings. Reheat on galley stove, adding seafood and dumplings. Cook as above.

If there is a lucky fisherman aboard, fresh fish may be added along with Alaska King crab.

CREAMY COLESLAW

(This colorful coleslaw can be made at home and kept cool in an insulated bag. The tangy mayonnaise dressing flavors the crisp vegetables as it chills.)

½ cup real mayonnaise
¼ cup light corn syrup
1 tblsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. salt
4 cups finely shredded cabbage
½ cup shredded carrot

Mix together mayonnaise, corn syrup, lemon juice and salt. Lightly mix shredded cabbage and carrot; toss with real mayonnaise mixture. Chill. Makes three cups.

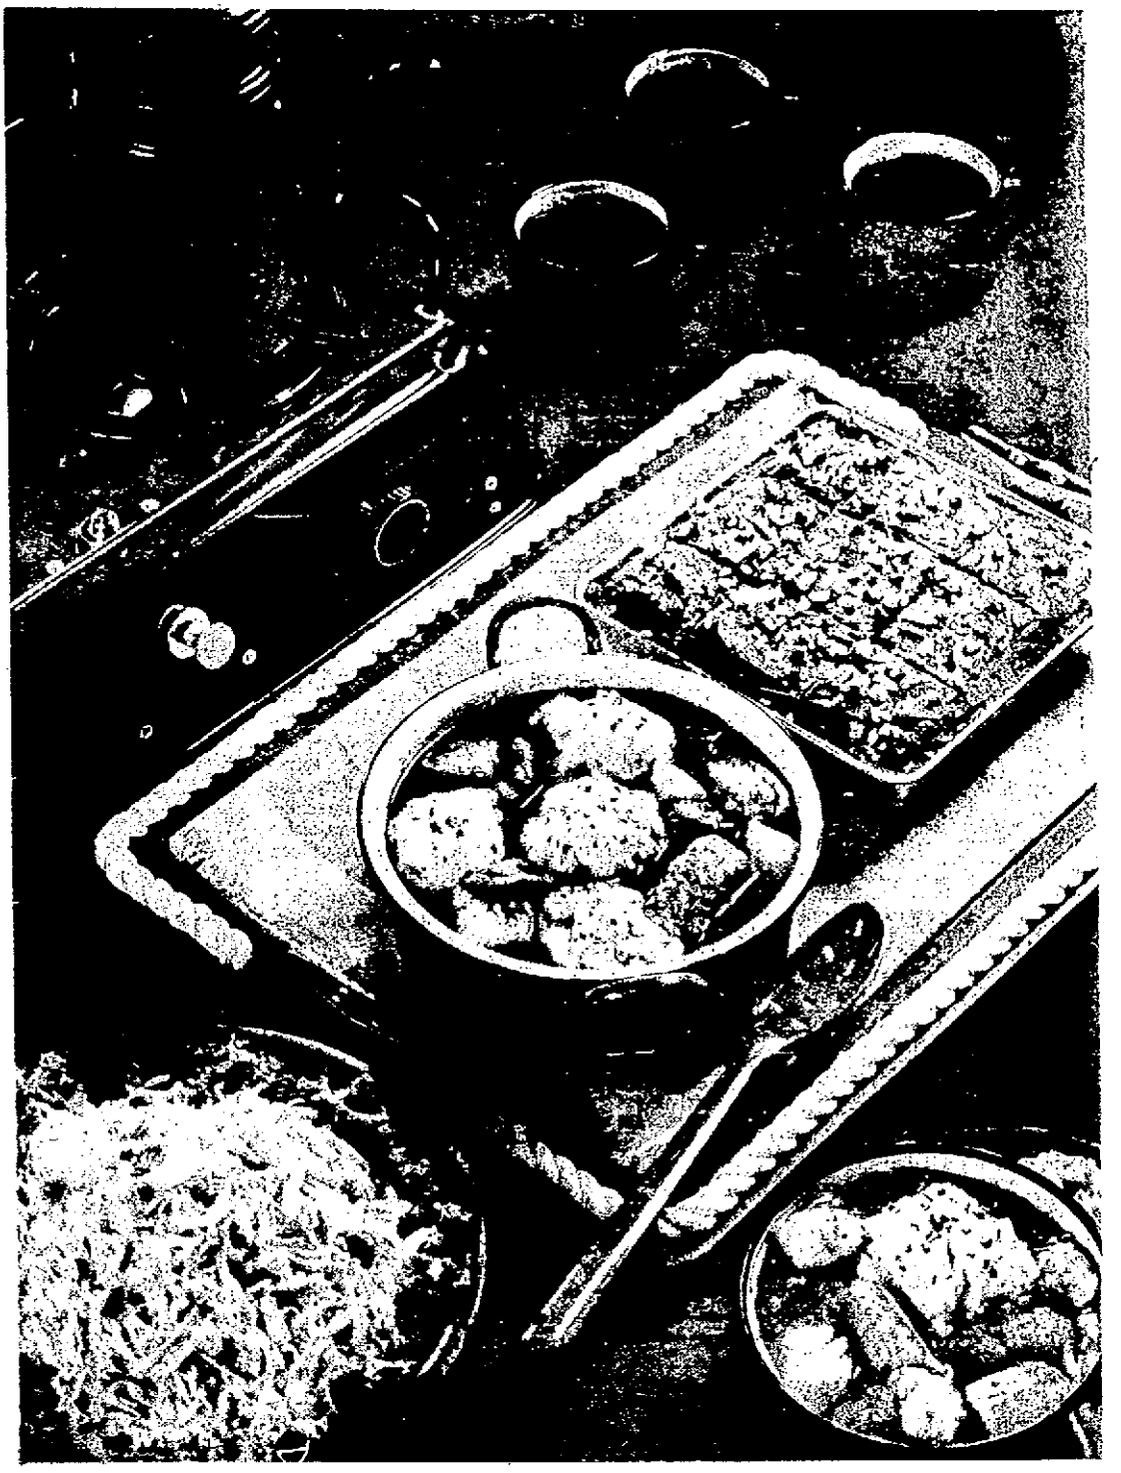

NOTE: 1½ tablespoons dill pickle juice may be substituted for lemon juice.

What better way to end this hearty meal than with perfectly brewed coffee and a piece of fudgy, chocolate cake? The magical ingredient that keeps the cake moist and gives it rich flavor is mayonnaise. Prepared and frosted at home, the cake travels well and is served right from the pan. To be sure the coffee is equal to the flavorful cake, get an enamel or aluminum drip pot. It will taste so much better than the old-fashioned camp fire coffee or ship's galley brew.

MAYONNAISE CAKE

2 cups unsifted flour
1 cup sugar
4 tblsp. cocoa
1½ tsp. baking powder
1½ tsp. baking soda
1 cup real mayonnaise

1 cup water
1 tsp. vanilla
1 recipe Creamy Chocolate Frosting

Sift together flour, sugar, cocoa, baking powder and baking soda. Mix together mayonnaise, water and vanilla. Mix dry and wet ingredients together until smooth and blended. Pour in a lightly greased 9x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. (moderate oven) 45 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean when inserted into middle of cake. Cool on rack. Spread with Creamy Chocolate Frosting.

CREAMY CHOCOLATE FROSTING

1 pound powdered sugar
½ cup cocoa
⅛ tsp. salt
½ cup margarine
1 tsp. vanilla
5 to 7 tblsp. milk

Sift powdered sugar, cocoa and salt together. Add one third the mixture to margarine in mixing bowl. Blend well. Gradually blend remaining cocoa mixture, vanilla and 3 tablespoons milk into margarine mixture. Mix in enough remaining milk to make frosting good spreading consistency. Makes enough to frost generously top and sides of 1 (9x9x2-inch) cake.

Recipe of the Week

STUFFED TOMATOES

6 med. size tomatoes
2 15½-oz. cans corned beef hash
½ tsp. salt
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
½ cup crushed corn chips

Cut a thin slice from stem end of each tomato. Scoop out pulp and combine with hash and salt and stuff mixture into tomato shells. Place in shallow baking dish. Top tomatoes with grated cheese and sprinkle with crushed corn chips. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes. Serves six.

½ tsp. each, thyme and basil
Chive Dumplings

Drain and cut crab into bite-size pieces. Saute onion and celery in oil. Add Alaska King crab and remaining ingredients, except dumplings. Bring to boil. Drop dumpling batter, by spoonfuls, over top of stew. Cover and simmer 15 to 20 minutes. Makes six servings.

For Chive Dumplings, combine 1½ cups biscuit mix with 3 tablespoons chopped frozen or freeze-dried chives, ½ cup grated cheese (optional) and ¾ cup water. Cook as directed above.

NOTE: Stew may be partially prepared at home, omitting seafood and dumplings. Reheat on galley stove, adding seafood and dumplings. Cook as above.

If there is a lucky fisherman aboard, fresh fish may be added along with Alaska King crab.

CREAMY COLESLAW

(This colorful coleslaw can be made at home and kept cool in an insulated bag. The tangy mayonnaise dressing flavors the crisp vegetables as it chills.)

½ cup real mayonnaise
¼ cup light corn syrup
1 tblsp. lemon juice
¼ tsp. salt
4 cups finely shredded cabbage
½ cup shredded carrot

Mix together mayonnaise, corn syrup, lemon juice and salt. Lightly mix shredded cabbage and carrot; toss with real mayonnaise mixture. Chill. Makes three cups.

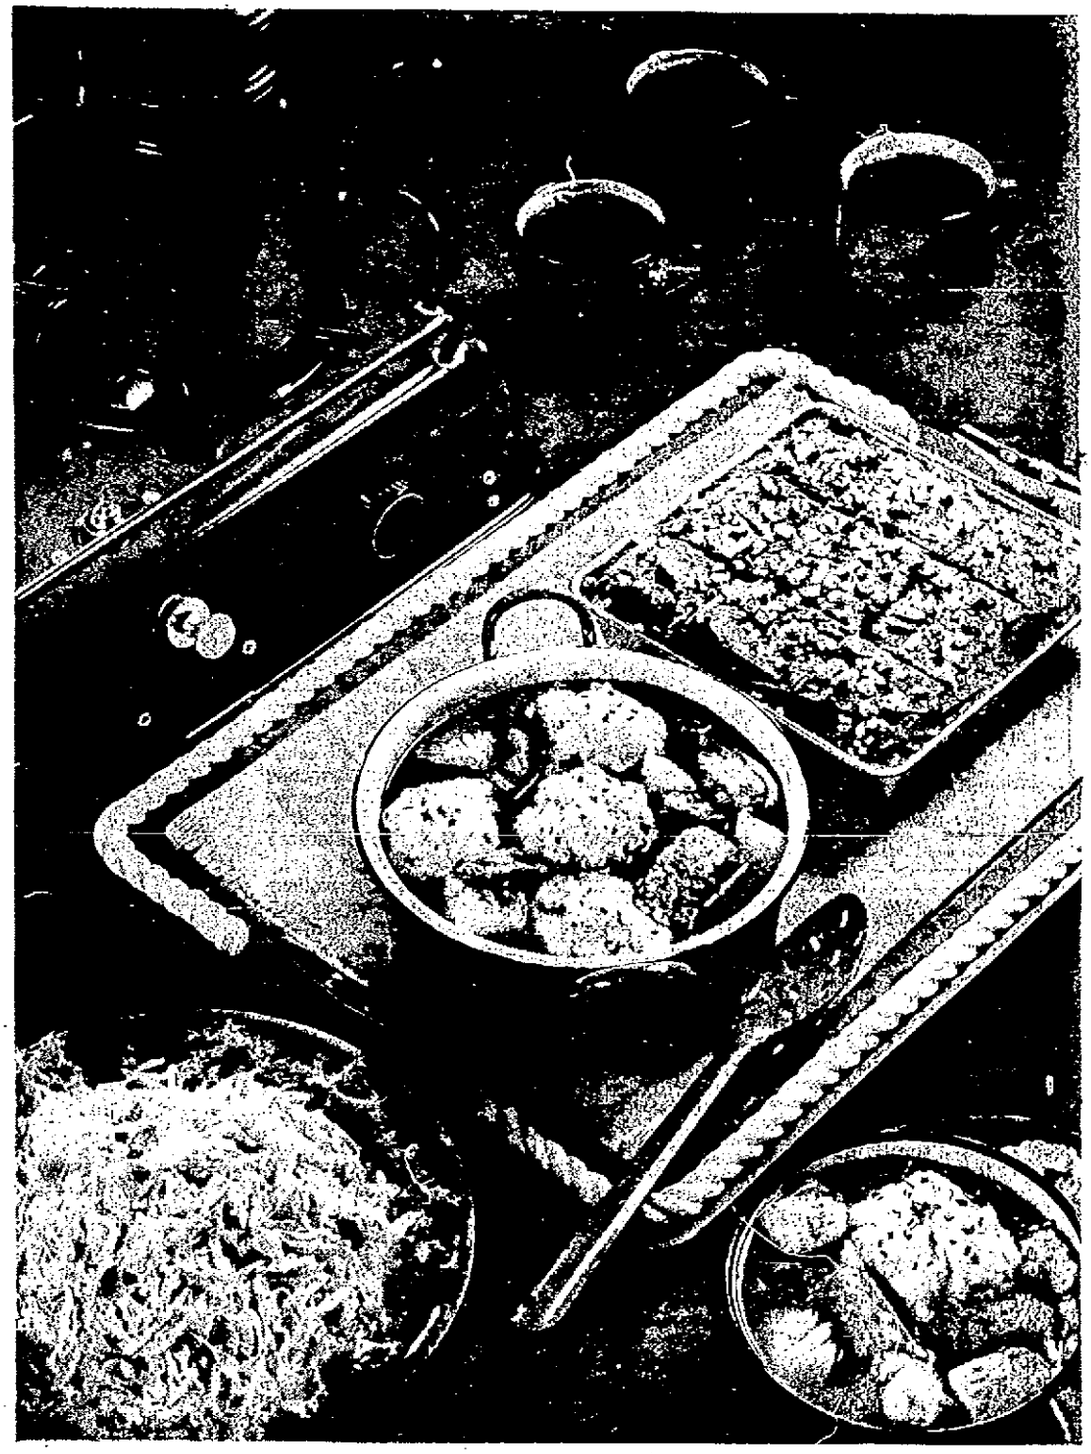

NOTE: 1½ tablespoons dill pickle juice may be substituted for lemon juice.

What better way to end this hearty meal than with perfectly brewed coffee and a piece of fudgy, chocolate cake? The magical ingredient that keeps the cake moist and gives it rich flavor is mayonnaise. Prepared and frosted at home, the cake travels well and is served right from the pan. To be sure the coffee is equal to the flavorful cake, get an enamel or aluminum drip pot. It will taste so much better than the old-fashioned camp fire coffee or ship's galley brew.

MAYONNAISE CAKE

2 cups unsifted flour
1 cup sugar
4 tblsp. cocoa
1½ tsp. baking powder
1½ tsp. baking soda
1 cup real mayonnaise

1 cup water
1 tsp. vanilla
1 recipe Creamy Chocolate Frosting

Sift together flour, sugar, cocoa, baking powder and baking soda. Mix together mayonnaise, water and vanilla. Mix dry and wet ingredients together until smooth and blended. Pour in a lightly greased 9x9x2-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees F. (moderate oven) 45 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean when inserted into middle of cake. Cool on rack. Spread with Creamy Chocolate Frosting.

CREAMY CHOCOLATE FROSTING

1 pound powdered sugar
½ cup cocoa
⅛ tsp. salt
½ cup margarine
1 tsp. vanilla
5 to 7 tblsp. milk

Sift powdered sugar, cocoa and salt together. Add one third the mixture to margarine in mixing bowl. Blend well. Gradually blend remaining cocoa mixture, vanilla and 3 tablespoons milk into margarine mixture. Mix in enough remaining milk to make frosting good spreading consistency. Makes enough to frost generously top and sides of 1 (9x9x2-inch) cake.

Recipe of the Week

STUFFED TOMATOES

6 med. size tomatoes
2 15½-oz. cans corned beef hash
½ tsp. salt
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
½ cup crushed corn chips

Cut a thin slice from stem end of each tomato. Scoop out pulp and combine with hash and salt and stuff mixture into tomato shells. Place in shallow baking dish. Top tomatoes with grated cheese and sprinkle with crushed corn chips. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes. Serves six.

Interior BOUTIQUE

No Place Like the Office

By Ellen Krec

SKY-HIGH, one - fourth - floor wide and handsomely decorated is the business suite shared by insurance executives Bill Wilson and Alan Pollack.

Watching the Federal Plaza Building take form created a desire to change from tired surroundings, and "nothing could top this building for attractive convenience," according to Wilson.

A two-sided view from the fifth floor supplies the inhabitants with ship and shore view, seen-but-not-heard parades and instant weather reports.

Grappling with the problem of interior detail was Andy Lehman of Western Office Furniture.

Considering the come-with-the-building carpeting and draperies, Lehman developed a new home-office look that the insurance firm required.

Permanent innovations include the bar of air conditioning which alternates with light panels in the acoustic ceiling.

All vinyl walls throughout, for easy care, change face from solid color to wood texture with an occasional scenic panel.

With office flow at a minimum, the bulk of activity is on the outside, the firm decided to stress happy, attractive home-type surroundings for the employes.

Lehman cleverly included furniture from the previous offices but updated them with paint and formica.

Since the building combines Mediterranean architecture with contemporary function the interior was selected to complement the design.

Fashion, but not at the expense of comfort or utility, set the design pace.

Good earth tones blend to form a welcoming waiting room for suite offices shared by insurance executives Bill Wilson and Alan Pollack.

Spacious office features massive but fashionable masculine furnishings.

Accessories were given increased importance by individual selection.

Each office contains a wide variety of interesting "look-ats," and rented paintings provide an ever-changing inner appeal.

While luxurious rooms greet the executives and the visitors, the work units weren't overlooked in the total design.

Each small office has its own view of either city or shore and highly prized work centers with flip-top files.

The surroundings proved to be so inviting Mrs. Pollack joined her husband in the office that was so hard to come home from!

Receptionist's section forms divider between waiting room and inner office.

As elegant as a home is the thickly carpeted office. Mediterranean wall system provides fine display for ever-changing collection.

What Your Name Means

By LA REINA RULE

Send your name to La Reina Rule, Post Office Box 64151, Los Angeles, Calif. 90064, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

MISS RULE: Would you give brief history on MEYER? — B. M., Garden Grove.

MEYER, German, is a form of Meier, which over eight centuries ago began as a professional title for a bailiff or steward, an overseer of a nobleman's castle and estate. The basic source word of Meyer was the Latin "Maior" meaning "great one." The Meyer armorial shield from the German Duchy of Hesse is blue, emblazoned with two green lily-of-the-valley stems with silver blossoms.

MISS RULE: Kindly analyze WINGO. — C. W., Seal Beach.

WINGO, German, had two sources. The chief one, the warrior name "Wini-Gar," means "friendly spearman." Wingo also developed from the early German term "Wenig" meaning "small man." Both Wenig and Wini-Gar were altered after long usage as surnames to Winge and Wingo.

MISS RULE: What is the origin of McGINN? — W.M., Westminster.

McGINN, Irish, traces to the Gaelic clan name Mag-Fhinn of County Down. Mag-Fhinn described "descendants of the fair-complexioned one." The McGinn armorial shield is silver, crossed by a silver stripe placed between three black owls.

MISS RULE: May we learn about PRUITT? — D.P., Garden Grove.

PRUITT, English, began as "Prue-eft," portraying the ancestor as "young and valiant." In the late 1200s, land owners of Cambridge, England, included William and Andrew Prewet or Pruitt. The Pruitt armorial shield is blue, decorated with three gold lions.

MISS RULE: Is GILBERT Irish? — C.G., Long Beach.

GILBERT, English, was introduced by French Norman ancestors, derived from the Teutonic hero name "Willi-Beraht," meaning "with brilliant willpower." Sir Humphrey Gilbert, born in 1539, was a famed English explorer. He was a half-brother of Sir Walter Raleigh, who introduced tobacco to Europe from Virginia. The Gilbert armorial shield granted in 1300 is red, decorated with a diagonal fur-covered black and silver stripe.

MISS RULE: Please explain KOLBE. — R.L., Paramount.

KOLBE, German, developed from the 12th century term "Cholbe," describing "club-wielder." An alternate source, the warrior name "Kolb-Beraht," denoted "shining helmet." The Kolbe shield from Franconia is blue on the upper half, emblazoned with a pair of crossed war-clubs; the lower half is gold with no emblem. The two halves of the shield are divided by a rectangularly drawn line representing a castle wall with crenellations.

KITCHEN KORNER TIME IS MONEY

MR. KITCHEN'S
REMODELING CENTER

Does the mere cost of eating out make you a little afraid of having your kitchen remodeled? Just to think about having to eat out two to three months makes a person's pocketbook shrink and his hopes of remodeling dwindle. However, the fact is, that the average contractor takes from 60 to 90 days to restore your kitchen back to a useable portion of your home. When choosing a contractor, make sure he is a specialist and you can eliminate a large portion of this headache. Some of these specialists can even guarantee completion within 21 days or pay a penalty of $50 for every working day over the 21. Therefore, if it only takes 21 days to complete the job, you are actually deprived of the actual use of your kitchen about 5 days.

Watch for this weekly series with helpful ideas on kitchen planning and design. If any questions come up in regard to your kitchen, feel free to contact MR. KITCHEN REMODELING CENTER, 1819 Redondo, Long Beach, call 597-5564 for free information.

Biblio-File

By NAT HONIG
Book Editor

History in the Raw

A. N. ARMISTRONG, "for three years a Government Surveyor in Oregon" as he signs himself, was no trained historian when in 1857 he published his "Oregon: Comprising a Brief History and Full Description of the Territories of and Oregon and Washington, Embracing the Cities, Towns, Bays, Harbors, Coasts, Mountains, Valleys, Prairies, and Plains; Together with Remarks upon the Social Position, Productions and Resources and Prospects of the Country, a Dissertation upon the Climate, and a Full Description of the Indian Tribes of the Pacific Slope, Their Manners, etc. Interspersed with Incidents of Travel and Adventure."

Glen Adams, postmaster of Fairfield, Wash., who doubles as publisher of Ye Galleon Press, points out: "As history it is not very accurate, so the pages need to be read with a measure of forgiveness." We can further forgive Armstrong's shortcomings as historian, who was an officer of the Oregon Volunteers and whose brother was killed fighting Indians in Oregon, when we discover the extent to which his history is "interspersed with incidents of travel and adventure," and the detailed perceptiveness of his descriptions of "cities, towns, bays, harbors, coasts, mountains, valleys, prairies, and plains."

He even appends a Fenimore Cooperish "Tale of the Oregon Fur Trade," by Percy B. St. John, (could this be Armstrong?) with a half-breed scout named Nick who speaks "with a knowing jerk of the head."

Not the least interesting pages of this reprint (whose price is $7) are Armstrong's descriptions of the Indian tribes, which are made all the more vivid by his experiences among them. He tells of the Waillatpus in the region of the Walla Walla River.

"From this band I desired to get a boy, ten or twelve years old, to accompany me home. Through the assistance of Mr. Noble and Mr. Thompson, I saw a fine looking youth of ten years of age, whose parents were both dead. He had been adopted by the chief, and to him I went and made known my desire." The chief told Armstrong:

"I cannot let the boy go. I have a son four years old whom you may have, and my sister has a son five years old — you may have both."

"They are too young," Armstrong replied. "I want the other one."

"He must not go!" the chief insisted. This is why the chief objected:

"I want my son to be chief, after me. If you take my adopted son home with you, he will then be like white man — he will read and write — he will be smart man; he then come back here— he be chief, my son only be Indian."

"Saying this, with a sorrowful look he turned and walked away," writes Armstrong.

"This is the twenty-second book to come from Ye Galleon Press," it is proudly announced. Every one that we have read has been a gem of Pacific Coast Americana.

History in the Raw

A. N. ARMSTRONG, "for three years a Government Surveyor in Oregon" as he signs himself, was no trained historian when in 1857 he published his "Oregon: Comprising a Brief History and Full Description of the Territories of and Oregon and Washington, Embracing the Cities, Towns, Bays, Harbors, Coasts, Mountains, Valleys, Prairies, and Plains: Together with Remarks upon the Social Position, Productions and Resources and Prospects of the Country, a Dissertation upon the Climate, and a Full Description of the Indian Tribes of the Pacific Slope, Their Manners, etc. Interspersed with Incidents of Travel and Adventure."

Glen Adams, postmaster of Fairfield, Wash., who doubles as publisher of Ye Galleon Press, points out: "As history it is not very accurate, so the pages need to be read with a measure of forgiveness." We can further forgive Armstrong's shortcomings as historian, who was an officer of the Oregon Volunteers and whose brother was killed fighting Indians in Oregon, when we discover the extent to which his history is "interspersed with incidents of travel and adventure," and the detailed perceptiveness of his descriptions of "cities, towns, bays, harbors, coasts, mountains, valleys, prairies, and plains."

He even appends a Fenimore Cooperish "Tale of the Oregon Fur Trade," by Percy B. St. John, (could this be Armstrong?) with a half-breed scout named Nick who speaks "with a knowing jerk of the head."

Not the least interesting pages of this reprint (whose price is $7) are Armstrong's descriptions of the Indian tribes, which are made all the more vivid by his experiences among them. He tells of the Waillatpus in the region of the Walla Walla River.

"From this band I desired to get a boy, ten or twelve years old, to accompany me home. Through the assistance of Mr. Noble and Mr. Thompson, I saw a fine looking youth of ten years of age, whose parents were both dead. He had been adopted by the chief, and to him I went and made known my desire." The chief told Armstrong:

"I cannot let the boy go. I have a son four years old whom you may have, and my sister has a son five years old — you may have both."

"They are too young," Armstrong replied. "I want the other one."

"He must not go!" the chief insisted. This is why the chief objected:

"I want my son to be chief, after me. If you take my adopted son home with you, he will then be like white man — he will read and write — he will be smart man; he then come back here — he be chief, my son only be Indian."

"Saying this, with a sorrowful look he turned and walked away," writes Armstrong.

"This is the twenty-second book to come from Ye Galleon Press," it is proudly announced. Every one that we have read has been a gem of Pacific Coast Americana.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Wrist Device Can Tell Proper Lung Function

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Editor

A SMALL, wristwatch-like device can tell a physician whether proper lung function is being maintained in critically ill or injured patients.

The sensor instrument was devised by scientists working with funds provided by the National Institute of General Medical Sciences. The agency is a component of the National Institutes of Health, research arm of the U.S. Public Health Service.

The device detects subtle danger signals in the breathing patterns. It does this by automatically measuring through intact skin the amount of carbon dioxide in a patient's bloodstream. A rising carbon dioxide level in the blood is a sign of severely disturbed breathing.

Physicians, thus alerted, can act immediately to begin life-saving respiration therapy.

The new sensor was developed by a team of doctors and engineers at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore.

ANOTHER test of the quarterly birth-control shots shows them to be effective.

An intramuscular injection drug, Depo-Provera, is given only once every three months.

Dr. Raymond A. Lee, Mayo Clinic, says the shots were given to 14 patients for a full year and none of the subjects became pregnant.

Chief advantage, of course, is that "patients need to be concerned with birth control only one day every three months," Dr. Lee comments in the American Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

Depo-Provera also has been tested successfully for this purpose in the Long Beach area.

A NEW theory is offered as to why there is an increasing incidence of breast cancer in women under 55 in the United States.

The thought: Girls are tending to develop sexually at a younger age than formerly.

Says Dr. Manning Feinleib, an official of the National Institutes of Health:

"With the earlier initiation of ovarian function, these young women would be at a higher risk at any specific age of developing breast cancer than were their older sisters at the same age."

Reasons for earlier maturation are not clear. It may be better nutrition. Or perhaps, he says, it's wider use of drugs and hormonal products.

THERE'S new evidence that an arthritis-like disease called "lupus" for short may be a virus-caused ailment.

The ailment is systemic lupus erythematosus. Symptoms include skin eruptions, arthritis, abdominal pain and kidney involvement.

A pathologist at the VA Hospital in Houston has found virus-like particles in kidney-tissue studies of 20 consecutive patients with lupus. All had kidney complications of the disease. However, the particles could not be found in 70 other patients with other kidney disease or no kidney disease.

A NEW look at the problem of sex education:

Dr. E. James Lieberman, chief of the Center for Studies of Child and Family Mental Health at the National Institute of Mental Health, comments:

"The exclusive domain of parents over sex education of their own children ends before age four . . . It is a mistake to think that doctors, teachers and ministers and others must do sex education simply because too many parents have fallen down on the job. Even when parents do a good job, children will get information from other sources.

"The most important sex education is that of healthy masculine and feminine identification. This comes ideally from parents who show each other affection, who relate well to their children . . . but who keep the bedroom door closed."

Eyes in the Forest

By Eleanor Avery Price

IF you've done any camping or backwoods exploring, you may have seen some of nature's creatures. And most have seen you. Have you wondered how you look to them?

All America's game animals are considered color blind. You can wear the most flagrant orange, and deer, elk, bear, etc. would think you were part of the woods unless their noses detected you, or they saw you moving, or light bounced off luminous color. (I'll admit this isn't reassuring, and I always sleep with my sleeping bag unzippered when I'm invading their stomping grounds.)

Night prowlers such as raccoon and opossum have super-sensitive eye retinas that react even to the dimmest of light. They therefore should be approached in complete darkness, say the Rangers. (I've not yet figured out how one can then see them, but I've been fortunate enough to have seen them in daylight.)

The skunk is a no-no at any time, but he can readily see you and is very curious. On one camping trip, I heard an exploring skunk at my overnight bag placed near my head. Someone else in the party heard him, too, and focused a flashlight into his bright beady eyes. It may have confused him, for he moved on a short way, then stomped his feet and flicked up his tail. At this precise moment, my traveling companion's cot broke a leg, dropping the air mattress, sleeping bag, and human to the ground, whereupon a sharp stick punctured the air mattress and it went down with a sick whoosh. I don't know who was most scared, but fortunately it started to rain. The skunk leisurely moved off for cover, and we rolled up everything post-haste and departed.

Bats have eyes, but they depend on sounds broadcasting through their nostrils to be picked up by their complex ears.

You probably think insects, especially mosquitoes, have millions of eyes. Not so. Many insects have simple spots for eyes. Mosquitoes do not have complete visual apparatus and are said to detect you from the carbon dioxide you exhale. (I've not stopped breathing to learn if this is true.) I've heard that mosquitoes prefer to light on dark clothes, but I've seen plenty of these pesky fellows stabbing through white T-shirts.

The skunk, which is not legal as a pet in California, has bright eyes that see everything in his native woods.

Birds have wonderful eyesight, and fast focusing enables them to fly through branches of trees at top speed. They also see color and so are not easily fooled by nature's camouflage of their prey. Most birds that are prey themselves easily detect motion over a wide field because their eyes are on the sides of their heads. Hunter birds have eyes in front to help them locate moving meals.

Game honey fish, such as trout, have color vision, also can note moving shadows. But they have a completely blind zone close in front. A baited line should be off to one side or away a bit.

How to Keep Boys Good

By Steve Ellingson

IT ALWAYS has seemed to us that the way young people spend their spare time should be of real concern to every parent. When young folks use their leisure time in a creative and positive way it not only prepares them for a wholesome adulthood and sound citizenship, but it also keeps them in a happier frame of mind. Misspent leisure leads to personality distortion, and what can be worse, to delinquent behavior.

Most boys have a natural flair for building things. Once they get started, they develop a genuine interest in creating all sorts of articles. It's a wholesome interest that will stay with them and serve them as long as they live. And what is more, home carpentry is one activity that is not expensive because it earns (by saving) far more than it costs. Many youngsters earn their own spending money by building and selling the articles they make.

At the present time we have available well over 400 different pattern projects suited for all members of the family and all seasons of the year. New ones are being created every month. One such popular project is the glider swing shown here with actress Victoria Shaw. It's an easy project when you use the full-size pattern, and once completed will give you relaxing pleasure for many, many years. To make it you merely trace the pattern parts on plywood, saw them out, and finally put the parts together. It's that easy.

Relaxing in a glider swing.

(For Vacationing Tedd Thomey)

I HEREBY nominate Me-n-Ed's, Paramount Boulevard at Carson Avenue, for the 1969 Nobel Pizza Prize.

As the staff at Ye Olde Public House is wont to say — "A little love goes into each pizza."

They also lavish affection on the beer they serve by the stein and the pitcher. There's nothing better than good suds from Germany, Holland, Denmark, Italy, France, Norway, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Japan, the Philippines, Mexico and the United States to wash down the mushroomy-rooms, anchovies, Italian sausage, mozarella — you name it — which adorn the just-right crust at Me-n-Ed's.

The establishment's mouth-watering pizzas are enough to make your stomach ask for dual citizenship. And though I can't speak a word of Italian — except Sophia Loren — I can say "ah" and "yum-yum" and "If nobody can manage that last slice on the platter, stand aside and I'll do it."

The pizzas and beer are filling, and the prices are comfortable. Pizza, with your choice of six cheeses,

BOB BALDWIN
Nobel Pizza Prize

Caricature by Larry LaVoie

runs from $1.30 for the individual to $3.95 for the giant size "shoot-the-works" type. And a pitcher of dark Bavarian is yours for $1.25.

To quote owner Bob Baldwin: "The price of your pizza is deductible from your income."

If they'd just deduct the calories from the waistline, I'd go back for seconds. I think I will anyway.

And the beer? Ah, that's the draught nobody wants to dodge.

Just follow your nose and your appetite to Me-n-Ed's and find out.

ANITA EKBERG(l) AND RAQUEL WELCH.

Q. What has happened to Anita Ekberg who was known in Hollywood several years ago as "The Swedish Sex Bomb?"—Ken Haber, Los Angeles, Calif.
A. Miss Ekberg, married to Rick Van Nutter, lives in Majorca, finds it relatively difficult to obtain work as an actress. Raquel Welch, endowed with similar thoracic talents, has replaced her as the screen's sex bomb. Miss Ekberg therefore has gone into the shipping business.

Q. How old is French painter Marc Chagall?—Hannah Klein, Newark, N.J.
A. Chagall, born in 1887, is 82.

Q. Who said: "He who hath a trade hath an estate?"—Emma Richardson, Monroe, La.
A. Benjamin Franklin.

Q. Is it true that Greece is now a Fascist military dictatorship, that tourists who visit that country and spend their dollars are thereby helping to perpetuate the dictatorship?—Helen Lasch, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.
A. Greece is a military dictatorship run by a group of colonels who insist they are saving their country from the Communists. But they are, in fact, applying the same Communist methods, abrogating freedom of speech, press, assembly, throwing political enemies into jail, stifling freedom, holding no elections, permitting no opposition, etc.

Q. Is it true that Gregory Peck will do anything for money? How else does one account for his playing in such pictures as Mackenna's Gold and The Chairman*?—Lois Tremaine, Easton, Md.*
A. Peck's story judgment is weak. He hasn't starred in a good film since To Kill a Mockingbird, for which he won an Academy Award.

GREGORY PECK IN "TO KILL A MOCKINGBIRD."

Q. Clark Clifford, McGeorge Bundy, so many other Vietnamese warhawks, have recanted and become doves. Why won't Robert McNamara stand up and be counted?—D.N., Berkeley, Calif.
A. He can stand up and say he was wrong about the Bay of Pigs, but he simply cannot bring himself to that point about his misassessment of the war in Vietnam. He seeks constant expiation, however, in his work as head of The World Bank.

U THANT(l) AND DR. GUNNAR JARRING.

Q. If and when U Thant retires as Secretary-General of the United Nations, who will succeed him?—Francis Katz, Roxbury, Mass.
A. Probably Dr. Gunnar Jarring, at present Sweden's Ambassador to Moscow.

Q. Sen. Ted Kennedy's wife Joan was pregnant, and I can understand about her being absent from the Edgartown "cookout" the night Mary Kopechne drowned. But how about the wives of the other men? Where were they?—E.L., Salem, Mass.
A. No wives were invited.

Q. Hollywood is filming The Great White Hope. It is based on the life of onetime Negro heavyweight champion Jack Johnson. Is it true that this fighter had nothing but white wives? Is it true that Negro James Earl Jones who plays the leading role in the film also has a white wife?—Oliver Wells, Chicago, Ill.
A. Jack Johnson, Negro heavyweight champion, had three white wives, several white mistresses who contributed to his downfall. James Earl Jones is married to actress Julienne Marie, also white.

Beautiful and Appealing Oil Paintings Now Yours as Full Color Large Art Prints

Just picture these irresistible puppies in your own home. Everyone who sees these appealing waifs fall in love with their adorable warmth and touching wide eyes. You just want to take them into your home and into your heart. That's because the artist, Coby, one of America's most perceptive painters of animals has captured the universal appeal and warmth you find only in a funny, friendly puppy. Under his sensitive brush, the wonder of puppyhood and the realistic backgrounds combine to give a compassionate glimpse of life. Unfortunately the small illustrations here cannot possibly convey all the artist's magical color and brilliant details. MOTORCYCLE SYNDROME

Young men who drive motorcycles, are they any different from those who don't?

Dr. Armand M. Nicholi Jr., Harvard psychiatrist, became interested in nine college students who were undergoing psychotherapy. All nine were unusually preoccupied with motorcycles, and Dr. Nicholi began wondering why.

He observed that the nine were frequently worried about possible impotence, homosexuality, fear of aggressive women, bodily injury, and other implicating characteristics. He classified them as suffering from the "motorcycle syndrome."

For such young men, Dr. Nicholi believes, the motorcycle "is a powerful emotional prosthesis for the masculine part of his personality. The patient suffers from a serious ego defect, causing him to see the motorcycle as an essential part of his body image. He cannot give it up: 'If I get rid of it, there will be nothing but me, and I fear that is not enough.'"

At the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association, Dr. Nicholi made clear that there are plenty of healthy motorcyclists, but that those suffering from the motorcycle syndrome should be recognized and treated quickly in an attempt to reduce the sharply mounting rate of motorcycle accidents and deaths in this country.

"Two years ago," Dr. Nicholi pointed out, "2000 people were killed in motorcycle accidents and a quarter of a million injured. Next year, 5000 people will be killed and close to a million injured in such accidents."

A SCENE FROM AMERICAN INTERNATIONAL PICTURES' "HELL'S ANGELS '69," ONE OF SEVERAL FILMS CONCERNED WITH AMERICA'S MOTORCYCLE GANGS.

LAY THAT PISTOL DOWN

Spokesmen for the Nixon Administration testify that there is no need for new gun control legislation in this country. The National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence disagrees.

The commission, chaired by Milton Eisenhower, recommends that the federal government join with the states to confiscate 24 million handguns owned by private citizens.

"Our studies have convinced us," the commission declares, "that the heart of any effective national firearms policy for the United States must be to reduce the availability of the firearm that contributes the most to the violence. This means restrictive licensing of the handgun."

There are now 90 million firearms in the country. Of the nation's 60 million households, at least half own one gun. This year U.S. citizens will buy more than four times as many guns as they bought in 1965.

Two out of every three homicides in the U.S. are committed with guns. Two out of every three armed robberies are committed with guns. The handgun is the predominant weapon of American crime.

Why the gun compulsion? Why do so many Americans feel unsafe? What is it that they fear? Apparently they buy these weapons of violence because they fear violence itself.

The rise in gun sales is the result of the rise in assassinations, racial disorders, and city riots.

"After any well publicized riot," explains a Los Angeles gun dealer, "we sell guns as fast as we can unload them on our shelves."

One month after Bobby Kennedy was assassinated in Los Angeles, its citizens registered 19,156 guns, far above the monthly average of 6500.

In California, only handguns--pistols and revolvers--must by law be registered. Since long guns--rifles or shotguns--need not be registered, and long guns outnumber handguns 4 to 1, the post-Kennedy assassination registration figures offer a small idea of the public reaction to violence. It simply breeds increased gun-buying and further violence.

Handguns have long been standard equipment in the American home, a vestige of the nation's frontier heritage of self-reliance and self-protection. But the frontier has passed, and the cultural acceptance of handguns should have passed with it.

In the words of Milton Eisenhower's commission: "We believe, on the basis of all the evidence before us, that reducing the availability of the handgun will reduce firearms violence."

TRAVEL AGENTS' FEES

Travel agents receive a 5% commission from scheduled airlines on each ticket they sell. Under a new agreement they may soon receive a 6% commission on tickets costing from $71 to $140 and 7% on tickets priced over $140.

On charter tours, for which they now receive 10%, their commission would rise to 11%.

The increased commissions are subject to approval by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

GERALD BROOKE REUNITED WITH WIFE IN LONDON AFTER HIS RELEASE BY RUSSIANS.

SPY STORY Gerald Brooke, the British teacher recently released after four years in Soviet prisons, was more than a schoolteacher distributing anti-Communist tracts, a story the British passed around the world for years.

He was a spy who smuggled into Russia detailed coding instructions on the transmission and receiving of radio signals. Brooke carried this secret information in a postcard album and a dressing case and passed them on to a Russian physician.

He worked for the Russian emigré organization NTS--the popular labor alliance based in Paris and Frankfort which is pledged to work for the non-violent overthrow of the Soviet government.

The Soviets released Brooke in an agreement under which Great Britain will free on Oct. 24th two convicted spies, American citizens Morris and Lola Cohen, who took the names Peter and Helen Kroger when they became Soviet spies in England.

The Cohens are originally from New York, plan to begin life anew in the Polish city of Lublin. They claim to have banked some of their savings in Poland, but it is most likely that the Soviets will remove them to Moscow where the KGB can keep a vigilant eye on them.

NIXON AND HIS MOTHER IN 1946 WHEN HE WAS FIRST ELECTED TO CONGRESS.

MRS. NIXON'S WILL When Mrs. Hannah Nixon, the President's mother, died on Sept. 30, 1967, she left a will bequeathing her estate to her three living sons, Richard Milhous, Francis Donald, and Edward Calvert.

Her estate was appraised at $110,021. After taxes and administrative expenses, it totaled $104,015. That sum has now been divided equally among the President and his two brothers, each receiving $34,671.91. A sum of $4500, however, was deducted from Edward Nixon's share to retire a promissory note he had signed to his mother.

SMOKING BAN Effective immediately, patient smoking has been banned in all U.S. Air Force medical facilities. No vending machines distributing tobacco products are to be permitted in Air Force hospitals. The ban also covers Air Force facilities overseas and in Vietnam.

METAL RACKETS Thirty-five years ago metal tennis rackets hit the American sporting goods market. Their reception was fair. This year they are back in style. Thirty manufacturers are turning them out at a feverish rate, with selling prices ranging from $25 to $60.

At Wimbledon this year Pancho Gonzalez swung a Spalding steel racket. Chuck Pasarell used a Tensor. Billie Jean King, Rosemary Casals, and Ann Jones wielded Wilson models.

Next year, Head, best known for steel skis, will pay Arthur Ashe $50,000 to use their steel racket now being researched.

How come steel rackets have made such a sensational comeback? (1) They are practically indestructible, (2) Many players feel that they add power to service and volley.

Steel frames are more expensive than wood. Aluminum is more durable, but advocates of the wood frame insist it has more "give and sensitivity." Many of the aluminum frames seem to require more frequent stringing jobs than the wood rackets.

The Japanese are beginning to churn out inexpensive aluminum rackets, but the American pros seem to scoff at them, which is understandable since many of them are being paid by U.S. manufacturers.

Will the steel tennis racket prove a passing fancy as it did in the 1930's, or will it eventually replace wood just as the steel golf club has replaced the club of wood? The next three years should tell the story.

DRAFT CALL The Defense Department will draft 29,000 men in September. A total of 1500 will be drafted into the Marine Corps, which usually relies on volunteers to fill its quota. In August the Army got all of the 29,500 men who were drafted.

MALE PILL In several Western countries, the search for a safe, efficient male contraceptive pill is going full speed ahead. In Great Britain, for example, thanks to grants by the Ford Foundation, researchers have come up with a "male pill" which works well on rats.

The pill contains a simple chemical, trimethyl-phosphate (TMP) which inactivates sperm cells.

Injected into rats at the Christie Hospital lab in Manchester, the chemical did not prevent the manufacture of spermatozoa but it did remove from the sperm the power to fertilize female eggs.

Dr. Harold Jackson, in charge of the research team, points out that in dealing with anti-fertility chemicals there is always the risk of genetic damage so that generations of animals have to be tested before the "male pill" can be classified as harmless and effective, even for rats.

In the U.S., pills not too different from the female pill have been tried out on prisoners. Unfortunately, they tend to feminize the men, reducing their libido and altering their sex characteristics. Other pills, non-hormonal in nature, have been used on prison volunteers, but these produced vomiting and stupor when the patient drank even half a glass of beer.

The Upjohn Company of Kalamazoo, Mich., has been experimenting for some time with a pill numbered "U-5897." It is one of the chlorohydrins, and its anti-fertility quotient is high with rats. But it does not work on rhesus monkeys too well. It depresses the growth of bone marrow and is therefore considered worthless for human beings.

The profit potential on a "male pill," however, is tremendous, and no doubt in time some pharmaceutical house will come up with the right answers and the right product.

Exporting stolen cars is a lucrative and fast-growing business and a busy pier is a "perfect hiding place" for the vehicles.

Is someone in Santo Domingo driving your car?

by William J. O'Neill

"I got a couple of cars going to . . ." the caller named a city in the Caribbean. "What've you got sailing for there next week?"

"A ship leaves New York on Thursday," the shipping agent told him. "Your cars must be on the pier at Elizabeth by noon Wednesday."

The caller promised delivery and hung up. He didn't have the cars, but he had the addresses of the garage and the parking lot where their owners regularly left them. On Wednesday morning, he and an accomplice used master keys to steal two cars. They then gave an unsuspecting freight forwarder the make, model, year, color and vehicle number of the cars, and obtained a legal shipping document. No proof of ownership was required.

A simple operation

Thus equipped, they drove the cars to Elizabeth, N.J., where the license plates were removed, batteries disconnected, gasoline drained, and headed back to New York with their receipt. The cars were placed in the hold of a freighter that sailed the next morning.

Authorities are convinced that more than 1000 stolen cars left the United States last year through New York port alone. Such ports as Philadelphia, Baltimore, Miami, San Francisco and Los Angeles get a lesser share of the illicit traffic.

Most of the cars were bound for the West Indies and Central and South America, but the FBI knows of at least one instance where cars stolen in the United States were shipped as far as the Middle East to be sold.

Fetch high prices

Exporting stolen cars is a fast-growing business. It's more profitable and less risky than disposing of the cars domestically. Late-model American cars with low mileage fetch from $8000 to $13,000 overseas. Even after paying shipping charges and foreign import duties that sometimes run more than 100 percent of the list value, the thieves still can pocket more than half of the selling price.

By getting "hot" cars out of the country in a hurry, thieves practically eliminate risk of the cars being picked up by local police. And as former New York Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, now president of the insurance industry's National Automobile Theft Bureau, observed: "Shipping a stolen car is as easy as mailing a parcel post package."

The New York ring, which annually shipped an estimated $10 million worth of stolen cars to Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic, first came to the attention of the New York Waterfront Commission in the summer of 1968.

"We received a tip that there were some cars on a Brooklyn pier in which we should take an interest," explained Thomas F. Jones, the ex-FBI agent who is the commission's chief investigator. "We jotted down their Vehicle Identification Numbers (the serial numbers placed on each car by its manufacturer) and found that six had been stolen in New York City."

'No questions asked'

"It was like a searchlight suddenly switched on, to find how easily stolen cars moved through the port," Jones said. "Freight forwarders just took the information and payment and issued the shipping papers, with no questions asked."

Jones alerted the police, the FBI and the Auto Theft Bureau and they checked cars on other piers, along with the bills of lading for recent southbound ships. The investigation turned up 25 stolen cars at docks in Brooklyn, Manhattan, Newark and Elizabeth and 50 more in Santo Domingo or Puerto Rico. Some were still on the high seas, and the FBI notified authorities at their destinations to impound them. Others were aboard ship, and longshoremen unloaded them. Many simply were sitting on the piers along with cars being exported legitimately.

As Jones told PARADE, a busy pier is "the perfect hiding place for a stolen automobile. There are always rows of cars awaiting shipment, and police cruise by in squad cars every day. But nobody ever thought of checking them out for stolen cars."

A 36-year-old paper company clerk, was arrested [illegible] pleaded guilty last March to attempted [illegible] one of the stolen cars found in Brooklyn. Since the charge is only a misdemeanor and it was [illegible] let off [illegible] one year's [illegible]

Papers [illegible]

Yet Elliot Golden, chief assistant district attorney for Brooklyn, is convinced he was a key man in the theft ring. He is thought to have worked with contacts in Santo Domingo who falsified papers at their end to reduce tariffs on the stolen vehicles and further inflate the ring's profits.

In one summer alone, the thieves are believed to have sold more than 100 American cars in the Dominican capital. And it seems a safe bet that some Santo Domingo businessmen and government officials are riding in stolen American cars. The same probably holds true in a number of foreign capitals.

Murphy is a big, gruff man, a lifetime cop who spends much of his time traveling between New York and Washington and the bureau's field offices around the country, tying his agency in with local police and FBI networks. But he admits that while the number of cars stolen is increasing every year, the percentage of cars returned to their owners is declining.

Exporting stolen cars is a lucrative and fast-growing business and a busy pier is a "perfect hiding place" for the vehicles.

Is someone in Santo Domingo driving your car?

by William J. O'Neill

"I got a couple of cars going to . . ." the caller named a city in the Caribbean. "What've you got sailing for there next week?"

"A ship leaves New York on Thursday," the shipping agent told him. "Your cars must be on the pier at Elizabeth by noon Wednesday."

The caller promised delivery and hung up. He didn't have the cars, but he had the addresses of the garage and the parking lot where their owners regularly left them. On Wednesday morning, he and an accomplice used master keys to steal two cars. They then gave an unsuspecting freight forwarder the make, model, year, color and vehicle number of the cars, and obtained a legal shipping document. No proof of ownership was required.

A simple operation

Thus equipped, they drove the cars to Elizabeth, N.J., where the license plates were removed, batteries disconnected, gasoline drained, and headed back to New York with their receipt. The cars were placed in the hold of a freighter that sailed the next morning.

Authorities are convinced that more than 1000 stolen cars left the United States last year through New York port alone. Such ports as Philadelphia, Baltimore, Miami, San Francisco and Los Angeles get a lesser share of the illicit traffic.

Most of the cars were bound for the West Indies and Central and South America, but the FBI knows of at least one instance where cars stolen in the United States were shipped as far as the Middle East to be sold.

Fetch high prices

Exporting stolen cars is a fast-growing business. It's more profitable and less risky than disposing of the cars domestically. Late-model American cars with low mileage fetch from $8000 to $13,000 overseas. Even after paying shipping charges and foreign import duties that sometimes run more than 100 percent of the list value, the thieves still can pocket more than half of the selling price.

By getting "hot" cars out of the country in a hurry, thieves practically eliminate risk of the cars being picked up by local police. And as former New York Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy, now president of the insurance industry's National Automobile Theft Bureau, observed: "Shipping a stolen car is as easy as mailing a parcel post package."

The New York ring, which annually shipped an estimated $10 million worth of stolen cars to Puerto Rico and the Dominican Republic, first came to the attention of the New York Waterfront Commission in the summer of 1968.

"We received a tip that there were some cars on a Brooklyn pier in which we should take an interest," explained Thomas F. Jones, the ex-FBI agent who is the commission's chief investigator. "We jotted down their Vehicle Identification Numbers (the serial numbers placed on each car by its manufacturer) and found that six had been stolen in New York City."

'No questions asked'

"It was like a searchlight suddenly switched on, to find how easily stolen cars moved through the port," Jones said. "Freight forwarders just took the information and payment and issued the shipping papers, with no questions asked."

Jones alerted the police, the FBI and the Auto Theft Bureau and they checked cars on other piers, along with the bills of lading for recent southbound ships. The investigation turned up 25 stolen cars at docks in Brooklyn, Manhattan, Newark and Elizabeth and 50 more in Santo Domingo or Puerto Rico. Some were still on the high seas, and the FBI notified authorities at their destinations to impound them. Others were aboard ship, and longshoremen unloaded them. Many simply were sitting on the piers along with cars being exported legitimately.

As Jones told PARADE, a busy pier is "the perfect hiding place for a stolen automobile. There are always rows of cars awaiting shipment, and police cruise by in squad cars every day. But nobody ever thought of checking them out for stolen cars."

A 36-year-old paper company clerk, was arrested and pleaded guilty last March to attempted possession of one of the stolen cars found in Brooklyn. Since the charge is only a misdemeanor and it was a first offense, he was let off with one year's probation.

Papers falsified

Yet Elliott Golden, chief assistant district attorney for Brooklyn, is convinced he was a key man in the theft ring. He is thought to have worked with contacts in Santo Domingo who falsified papers at their end to reduce tariffs on the stolen vehicles and further inflate the ring's profits.

In one summer alone, the thieves are believed to have sold more than 100 American cars in the Dominican capital. And it seems a safe bet that some Santo Domingo businessmen and government officials are riding in stolen American cars. The same probably holds true in a number of foreign capitals.

The United States has no treaty provision with the Dominican Republic for the return of stolen automobiles. We do have such a provision with Mexico, so that some cars are recovered there.

The National Auto Theft Bureau, which serves more than 400 insurance companies, is particularly disturbed by the illicit export trade.

"Since American cars bring such high prices, international car theft rings are one of our major problems," acknowledged Murphy at the bureau's headquarters in New York City. "Even when we trace stolen vehicles to foreign countries, many times we can't recover them because of difficulties with treaty relationships.

stolen to be used in a crime, we get back pretty quickly. They may be damaged, but we get them. But once they leave the country"—he shook his head—"that's it. If they go to Mexico, we stand a chance of getting them back, but with the others, they're gone for good."

General Motors' 1969 cars have ignition locks that also lock the steering and transmission, an anti-theft device Murphy had strongly advocated. It has reduced street thefts of these cars, particularly by the amateurs, the joyriders, but the professionals do not give up easily.

"Parking lots and dealers are being hit for the new GM cars," Murphy declared. "The pros know that that's where the keys are." He insists much more must be done to keep stolen cars from going abroad.

VIN numbers

"Every automobile has its VIN number, the Vehicle Identification Number stamped on it by the manufacturer," he pointed out. "VIN numbers of stolen cars are fed by police to the FBI's National Crime Information Center in Washington and stored in a computer there. If shippers supplied us, the police or the FBI with the VIN numbers of cars being shipped, we'd get a fast readout on whether the cars were stolen."

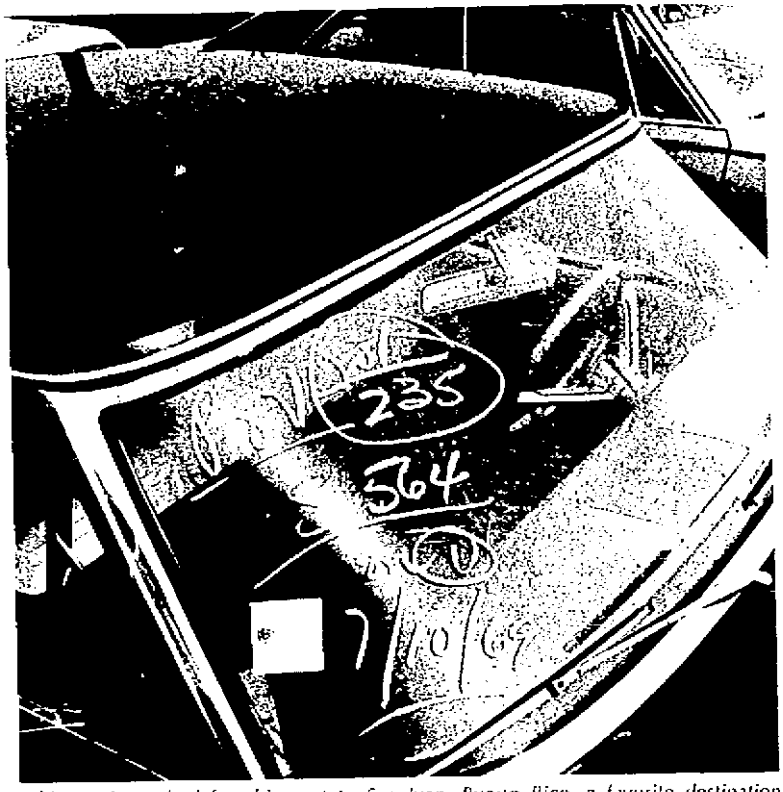

But he added, "It won't happen unless we get federal legislation, and that doesn't seem likely at this time." Murphy said he has discussed the burgeoning export racket with shipping companies and Bureau of Customs officials and found them sympathetic, but not very helpful.

"The Customs people say it's not their affair, that they're concerned with stuff coming into the country, not leaving it," he related. "And the shippers say they just sell space. If you bring a barrel of flour down to the dock, they aren't going to ask if you own it. It's like taking a package to the post office. Does the clerk ever ask if it's yours?"

Jones, of the New York Waterfront Commission, said there might be something port authorities could do.

"We've considered requiring longshoremen or the clerk on each pier, who are registered with us, to supply us with daily lists of used automobiles received for shipment," Jones said. "Then we could check the VIN numbers." But he went on to say it is not as simple as it sounds.

"This would place an added burden on shippers who do a heavy South American trade, for example," Jones noted. "Many times, cars are loaded the day they are received. We would be asking them to hold these cars until we completed our check, and with the volume of cars being exported, the paperwork and delays could pile up, adding to shippers' costs. And unless all ports took the same action, it would just mean that the thieves would ship from other cities."

This car is marked for shipment to San Juan, Puerto Rico, a favorite destination for theft ring. "It's as easy as mailing a parcel post package," says law official.

He said that ways of curbing the export racket, including getting copies of the shipping lists, were under consideration, "But it must be worked out with the shipping companies."

Assistant District Attorney Golden pointed out other problems.

"In big cities such as New York, you have 'weekend drivers,'" Golden explained, "people who use their cars on weekends and leave them parked during the week. Thieves learn the pattern, take the car early in the week and ship it before it's reported missing. On these cars, the VIN numbers would come up clean at the time they're shipped.

"Don't misunderstand," he added, "I'm still in favor of mandatory checks on VIN numbers. The recovery rate for stolen cars in New York City is 55 percent, compared with a national average of 85 percent. I'm for anything that increases our chances of getting these cars before they leave the country."

Legal obstacles

But he said there are legal obstacles to be overcome. Auto registration varies from state to state, and eight states—including New York—do not have auto title laws, which complicates the process of establishing ownership of a vehicle presented for shipment. Too, the Constitution prohibits states from enacting laws that obstruct the free flow of commerce. Florida is considering a bill that would require shippers of used cars to prove ownership in order to obtain a state export permit.

Golden feels that legislation must come from Congress but, like Murphy, he is not optimistic.

"There would have to be a lot of missionary work first, to arouse public opinion and Congressional interest," he said. "Right now, the public doesn't care. Car owners know their insurance will cover them in case of theft. They don't realize that these mounting thefts are adding to their premiums every year."

Realistic view

While Golden believes individuals and companies exporting automobiles should be required to show proof of ownership, he is a realist, and knows that this won't stop the car export racket. The market is too lucrative. But it would slow things down.

"Somebody will always forge whatever documents are necessary," he said. "But at least they would have to work harder, it would take some people out of the racket altogether and would give us another hook with which to snag the ones who persist. It would be bound to reduce the number of thefts."

Meanwhile, however, auto thefts keep climbing. According to the National Auto Theft Bureau, U.S. thefts rose 18 percent last year, with 772,000 cars reported stolen. Murphy says his office expects that a million cars, valued at well over $1 billion, will be stolen during 1969.

If the recovery rate remains at 85 percent, roughly 150,000 automobiles will simply disappear. Some will be so skillfully altered by mechanics in crooked body shops that they will go undetected. Others will be stripped and their parts sold. Thousands more will leave the United States and be sold abroad.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mark Russell, originally from Buffalo, N.Y., 35 years ago but now from Annandale, Va., is one of the few standup comedians in the country who writes his own material.

Russell, who looks like a pleasant uncertified public accountant, is a witty political satirist who for years was a fixture at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D.C. Since the Shoreham's clientele consists frequently of Congressmen, Senators, and federal employees, Russell's routine concerns itself mostly with politics. For a time Mark was regarded as "a specialist in political comedy," but a few years ago NBC hired him to run a talk show in Cleveland, and he caught on so well that nightclubs throughout the country began booking him.

The following jokes are from Russell's most recent appearances at the Playboy clubs in Hollywood and St. Louis:

What a great President Harry Truman was. Do you realize that if there had never been a Truman Doctrine and Greece had gone Communist, Aristotle Onassis today would be married to Stalin's daughter.

You know the war between El Salvador and Honduras? It came as no surprise to me. I knew those two weren't getting along. The last time I worked with them they argued all night long. A lousy dance team.

I was talking to a right-winger the other day, and naturally he was denouncing the idea of sex education in the public schools. "I'm against my son receiving sex education in school," he shouted. "Moreover, I've felt that way from the very first day the stork brought him."

I don't think Joe Namath, the quarterback of the New York Jets, had any gambling connections. How can they say that? Just because he used a roulette wheel in the huddle.

There's a new nomenclature in operation on American college campuses. Take "Homecoming Day," for example. That's when the students return the college president's residence to him. Take alma mater, that's when the students return the college president's mother.

What it's like to have my wife watch me work

by Tom Seaver
(Star pitcher of the New York Mets)

How would you like to have your wife looking over your shoulder while you work? Well, mine does, and I like it; in fact, I need it.

But sometimes watching can be pretty rough on the wife. Take my nearly perfect game this year against the Cubs. I retired 25 Chicago batters in a row—no hits, no walks, no errors, no runners, no score. I was only two outs away from pitching a perfect game—something that's been done only ten times in all the history of baseball. And then Jim Qualls laced a single to left center and my flirtation with perfection was over.

When I met Nancy at the clubhouse door after the game, she burst into tears and buried her head against my heart. Altogether, it was the most memorable and emotional night in my four years of professional baseball. It wasn't until later that I found out Nancy had been crying since the eighth inning when 60,000 Mets fans gave me a deafening, standing ovation as I came up to bat. The pressure and excitement had finally become too much for her to contain her emotion. Afterwards I could think of nothing to tell her except that I loved her and we had shared something we would never forget.

A glimpse of Nancy

My wife is extremely important to me in my baseball career. I often look up at Nancy, not only when I'm pitching but when I'm in the on-deck circle waiting to bat. Just a glimpse of her sitting in the stands gives me a great deal of encouragement. I'll tip my cap to her and she'll tip an imaginary cap back, letting me know there is something extremely personal between us no matter what the outcome of the game.

But mine is not a unique relationship, I learned. Manager Gil Hodges was deep in a slump with the Dodgers early in his playing career. His wife Joan told him where to hold his hands while batting and Gil was at the point where he was willing to accept anybody's advice. He told Joan he'd follow her suggestion and if it worked he'd throw her a kiss. Well, that evening at the Polo Grounds against the Giants, Gil hit a home run. As he crossed home plate he threw his wife a kiss, a ritual that lasted for years.

A baseball player's life is much rougher than many people realize and it is especially hard for a player's wife. We lead lives that demand intense concentration both on and off the field. Road trips take us away from home for half the season. And if you are engaged in a pennant race, every game is vitally important. Each loss can usually be traced to a single negative factor, and in this situation it is virtually impossible for a ballplayer not to take the game home with him. Cleon Jones, our All-Star left fielder, says he must take the game home or he is liable to make the same mistakes the following day.

At home after a bad day my wife is rather quiet, waiting for me to unwind before she will allow herself to mention the game. I think this is the case in most baseball families. Angela Jones is very quiet until Cleon indicates he is ready to talk about the game. Jerry Grote said he tries not to take a bad game home, so he says nothing, keeping his frustrations to himself until his wife feels that all is back to normal.

How it was with Yogi

I asked Yogi Berra if he ever took his bad games home with him and he said yes, but his wife Carmen would put a quick end to the situation by saying, "I didn't play, you did."

I call Nancy after every game I pitch on the road and she has a great ability for cheering me up. In one instance I pitched against Bob Gibson and the Cardinals in St. Louis. It was a game we should have won 2-0 in nine innings, but we made a couple of mistakes and lost 2-1 in the tenth. I called Nancy when I got back to our hotel and I was terribly upset because we had lost such a tough game. I was a rookie trying to establish myself and a win would have been worth a million dollars to my confidence. Nancy let me talk for a few minutes, then, with feminine wisdom or whatever, said: "You pitched against the world champions and against Bob Gibson, the best pitcher in baseball; he's 33 years old and you are only 23 and he has been around for a long time. Besides, you struck out four times." What could I say? I could do nothing but chuckle and tell her she was terrific, roll over and go to sleep.

For a girl who had to learn what the on-deck circle was (when I was playing for the Jacksonville Suns), she has come a long way.

Baseball is my entire life but I could never play this game if it were not for my wife. She gives me a reason for enduring the times that want to make you throw in the towel. She is the one person in the world who inspires me every time I go to the pitcher's mound. When we are on a road trip I am always concerned whether the game I am pitching will be on TV back in New York so she will be able to watch me. Having your wife looking on, either in person or via television, is a luxury baseball families appreciate. I know my teammates and their families do.

A boost for Cleon

Cleon always looks in the stands to find where Angela is sitting, so during the games when he needs that boost of encouragement he can get it from the people most important in his life, his wife and his little daughter. When he looks to Angela she will hold the baby's arms up for Cleon. This is to let him know, in his family, as well as mine, that no matter what happens, they are right with him.

Jerry Grote is conscious of where his wife Sharon sits at the ball games and occasionally throws her a secretive kiss, or tips his hat to her. Jerry was the catcher the night of my near perfect game and I am sure he was as emotionally involved as I was. When he passed my wife as she was escorted, in tears, through our dugout, he felt so choked up he couldn't say hello or congratulations and the sight of her tears made him feel even worse.

That was the first time I had ever seen my wife in tears over a ball game, but not with other wives. I can recall Jerry Koosman's wife LaVonne as Jerry warmed up prior to going into the 1968 All-Star game in Houston's Astrodome. The thought of Jerry in the game unnerved LaVonne so much she burst into tears even before he had thrown one pitch. LaVonne was sitting with Nancy, my mother and father, and they all told me it was one of the most touching, warmest things they had ever seen. LaVonne really had no need to cry as Jerry took the mound and breezed a third strike past Carl Yastrzemski for the final out of the game.

One of the happiest moments of my life was pitching the 15th inning of the 1967 All-Star game in Anaheim. Walter Alston called me in from the bullpen to protect a 2-1 lead and wind up what had been a very exciting day for me. Nancy wouldn't have missed the game for the world. As I walked (it felt as if I were sprinting) to the pitcher's mound I tried to catch her eye for a bit of encouragement.

A big job to do

I was about to pitch in a game with men who have been my heroes since I was in high school. Henry Aaron was in left field, Willie Mays in center, and Roberto Clemente was in right. It was a big moment for me and for Nancy as well. Once I reached the mound I realized I had a big job to do and I wasn't about to let my teammates down after taking the lead. I got out of the inning with two fly balls to the outfield, a walk and a strikeout to end the game.

The game may have been over, but I talked Nancy's ear off for the next week. I relived every moment from the time I showed up at the ball park to the final word in the victorious clubhouse. Nancy was the one person I wanted to share every experience with.

I have tried to relate to you exactly what part my wife plays in my baseball career. But possibly my teammate Ron Swoboda sensed the feeling best when he said, "The great thing about having someone to share your experiences with, is the good times are twice as good, and the bad times are only half as bad."

Nancy and Tom Seaver: "I could never play the game if it weren't for her."

Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute reports:

Lark's Gas-Trap filter reduces certain harsh gases more than twice as much as ordinary popular filter brands.

Latest average figures on gas reduction for Lark and 13 ordinary filter brands as certified by the Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute.

(Based on the average of Lark and of the 13 leading cellulose-acetate-filter brands.)

For more information send for the free brochure "Lark's Gas-Trap Filter and What It Means to You." Write Lark, P.O. Box 44, Brooklyn, N.Y. 11202.

Surprised? We're not. We've spent years of research and millions of dollars developing one of the most effective filters yet discovered—one that reduces "tar," nicotine and gas, effectively.

And that's why we're not surprised that an independent research company certified Lark's Gas-Trap filter best for gas reduction.

YOUTH NOTES

Education And Sex

Every 10th unmarried girls in this country, ages 15 to 19, approximately 16 bear an illegitimate child.

At this moment there are 145,000 known, unwed American mothers in that particular age group, with their illegitimacy rate steadily rising.

It is going up because these school-age girls are woefully ignorant of birth control information, so ignorant and uneducated in that area that they continue to bear children out of wedlock even though they don't want to.

The cost to the nation is tremendous, since illegitimate children are frequently supported by welfare payments.

President Nixon estimates that 5 million low income American women of childbearing age "do not now have adequate access to family planning assistance . . . I believe therefore," he declares, "that we should establish as a national goal the provision of adequate family planning services within the next five years to all those who want them but cannot afford them."

The President further stipulates that "in no circumstances" should government birth control programs be allowed to "infringe upon the religious convictions or personal wishes and freedom of any individual."

Recently, Mary Switzer, head of the Social and Rehabilitation Service in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, told a Congressional committee that birth control information should be provided for school-age girls, especially in ghetto areas.

"Call it birth control or whatever you want to," she said, "but how can you hope to stop this cycle of illegitimacy unless you provide some sort of information and services to these young girls, particularly under age 16."

Mary Switzer

It is no secret that, proportionately, the illegitimacy rate of non-white girls is higher than that of white girls—80.2 per thousand is the non-white rate in the 15 to 19 age-group as opposed to 9.0 for whites. But it is also true that even the most highly educated group of teenaged girls, both white and non-white, are incredibly ignorant when it comes to practical sex information.

For example, about a year ago at McGill University in Montreal, one of Canada's most prestigious educational institutions, about 250 co-eds became pregnant out of wedlock, and another 60 pregnancies were aborted.

Shocked by the ignorance of these "caught" girls, members of McGill's student society decided to publish a booklet which would provide basic, easy-to-understand information on all forms of contraception for the university's 13,500 students.

The 38-page booklet, written in non-technical language and carefully scrutinized for accuracy by leading physicians, has turned out to be one of the most informative birth control handbooks yet published. Selling for only 10 cents a copy, it is receiving wide circulation on the McGill campus.

Hundreds of American students have written to the McGill student society for copies.

Hopefully, thanks to President Nixon's message to Congress on the overpopulation program, a similar pamphlet will be made available in this country.

Alaska Experiment

This fall two new elementary schools will open in Anchorage, Alaska. They will be non-graded schools.

Under the non-graded concept of education, the rigid year-by-year division of subject matter is abolished. Instead, each student progresses at his own rate in each study. For example, a student may be working at third-grade level in math and at second-grade level in reading.

The two recently completed schools, Wonder Park and Chinook, were physically designed to be experimental. At Wonder Park, inside walls are movable to allow changing the size of the room. Pupils will have no assigned desks, but trays which they will carry with them to various work areas during the day.

"Education has too long thought of itself as a transmitter of facts, ideals and culture," says John C. Everitt Jr., the Wonder Park principal. "It still transmits ideals and culture, but there are just too many facts. We have to give the children the tools of learning, an attitude that learning is a lifelong quest. And we have to give a reason for living to youngsters."

According to Everitt, he plans to shift the responsibility for learning from the teacher to the pupil, so that children learn to learn and enjoy the process instead of being forced into study by fear and coercion.

Gripes

According to a recent Gallup Poll, the biggest gripe of students about their parents' generation is that the oldtimers are too set in their ways and "they won't listen to us."

Biggest gripe of parents about young people is that they demonstrate undisciplined behavior and lack respect for authority.

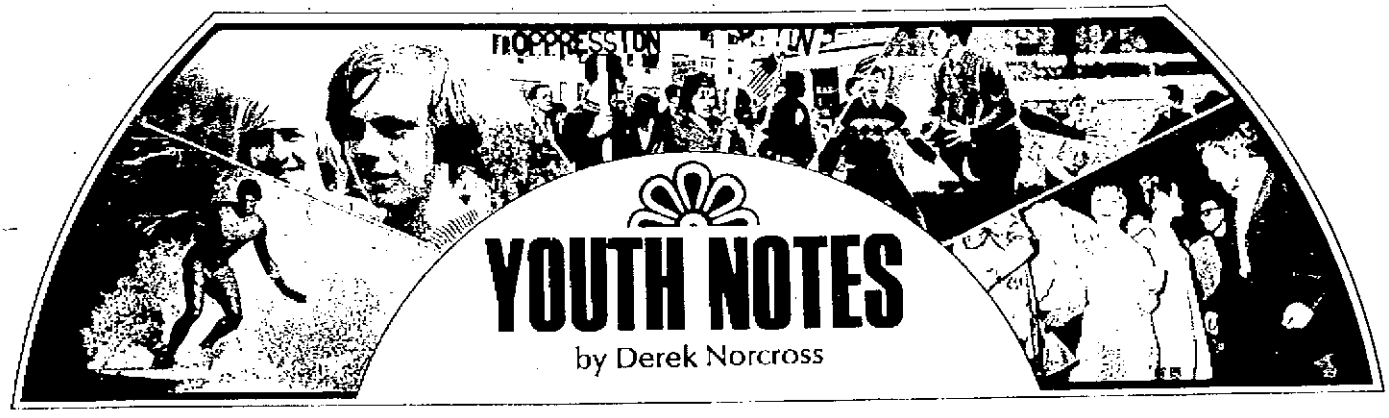

Roger W. Heyns

Quotation

Chancellor Roger W. Heyns of the University of California at Berkeley, one of the nation's most troubled campuses, to Sen. John L. McClellan of Arkansas:

"The frustration that is overwhelming to American college youth is that they cannot understand why this nation, with unlimited resources and ability, as they see it, seems to place such little priority on the realization of the American dream."

With these fellows around the house, there's never a dull moment.

They're spellbinding storytellers, these three. Guy and Will and Rudyard.

They get you involved—play on every emotion till you lose yourself (and maybe your cares) completely.

It's a talent they share with other master storytellers—the men in our Golden Giants Series.

So we've chosen these three authors to represent our Giants to you. As a new subscriber, you can now get their plays, short stories, novels and poems in three handsome volumes—for the token price of $1 each.

We'll send you the complete writings of Shakespeare in one beautiful 1300-page volume. All his comedies, tragedies and historical plays. All his poems and sonnets. Even a glossary of Shakespeare's English.

And a matched volume containing de Maupassant's short stories, complete and unexpurgated. 128 polished gems by the man who made the short story (and especially the surprise ending) an art.

Plus a third volume: the works of Kipling. His famed Departmental Ditties, Barrack-Room Ballads and other verses. His ghost stories, animal stories, tales of India. And his complete, uncut novel, The Light That Failed.

Each volume has our deluxe antique ecru binding that looks and feels like fine leather, except that it stands up to time better. It's richly tooled in colors of red and gold, has gilded page tops and a red silk ribbon to mark your place.

Beautiful books like these very often cost as much as $10 each. But, because we distribute direct to the public, you can add future volumes to your library for just $4.89 each, plus a few cents for mailing.

As months go by, you'll be offered the moving novels and stories that made Victor Hugo the most famous French writer of his century. The novels, stories and poems of Stevenson. Ibsen's daring (and still meaningful) plays. The best of Sherlock Holmes by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. The works of Tolstoi, Poe, Cellini, Wilde, Browning, Longfellow, Emerson, Dostoevsky and many others.

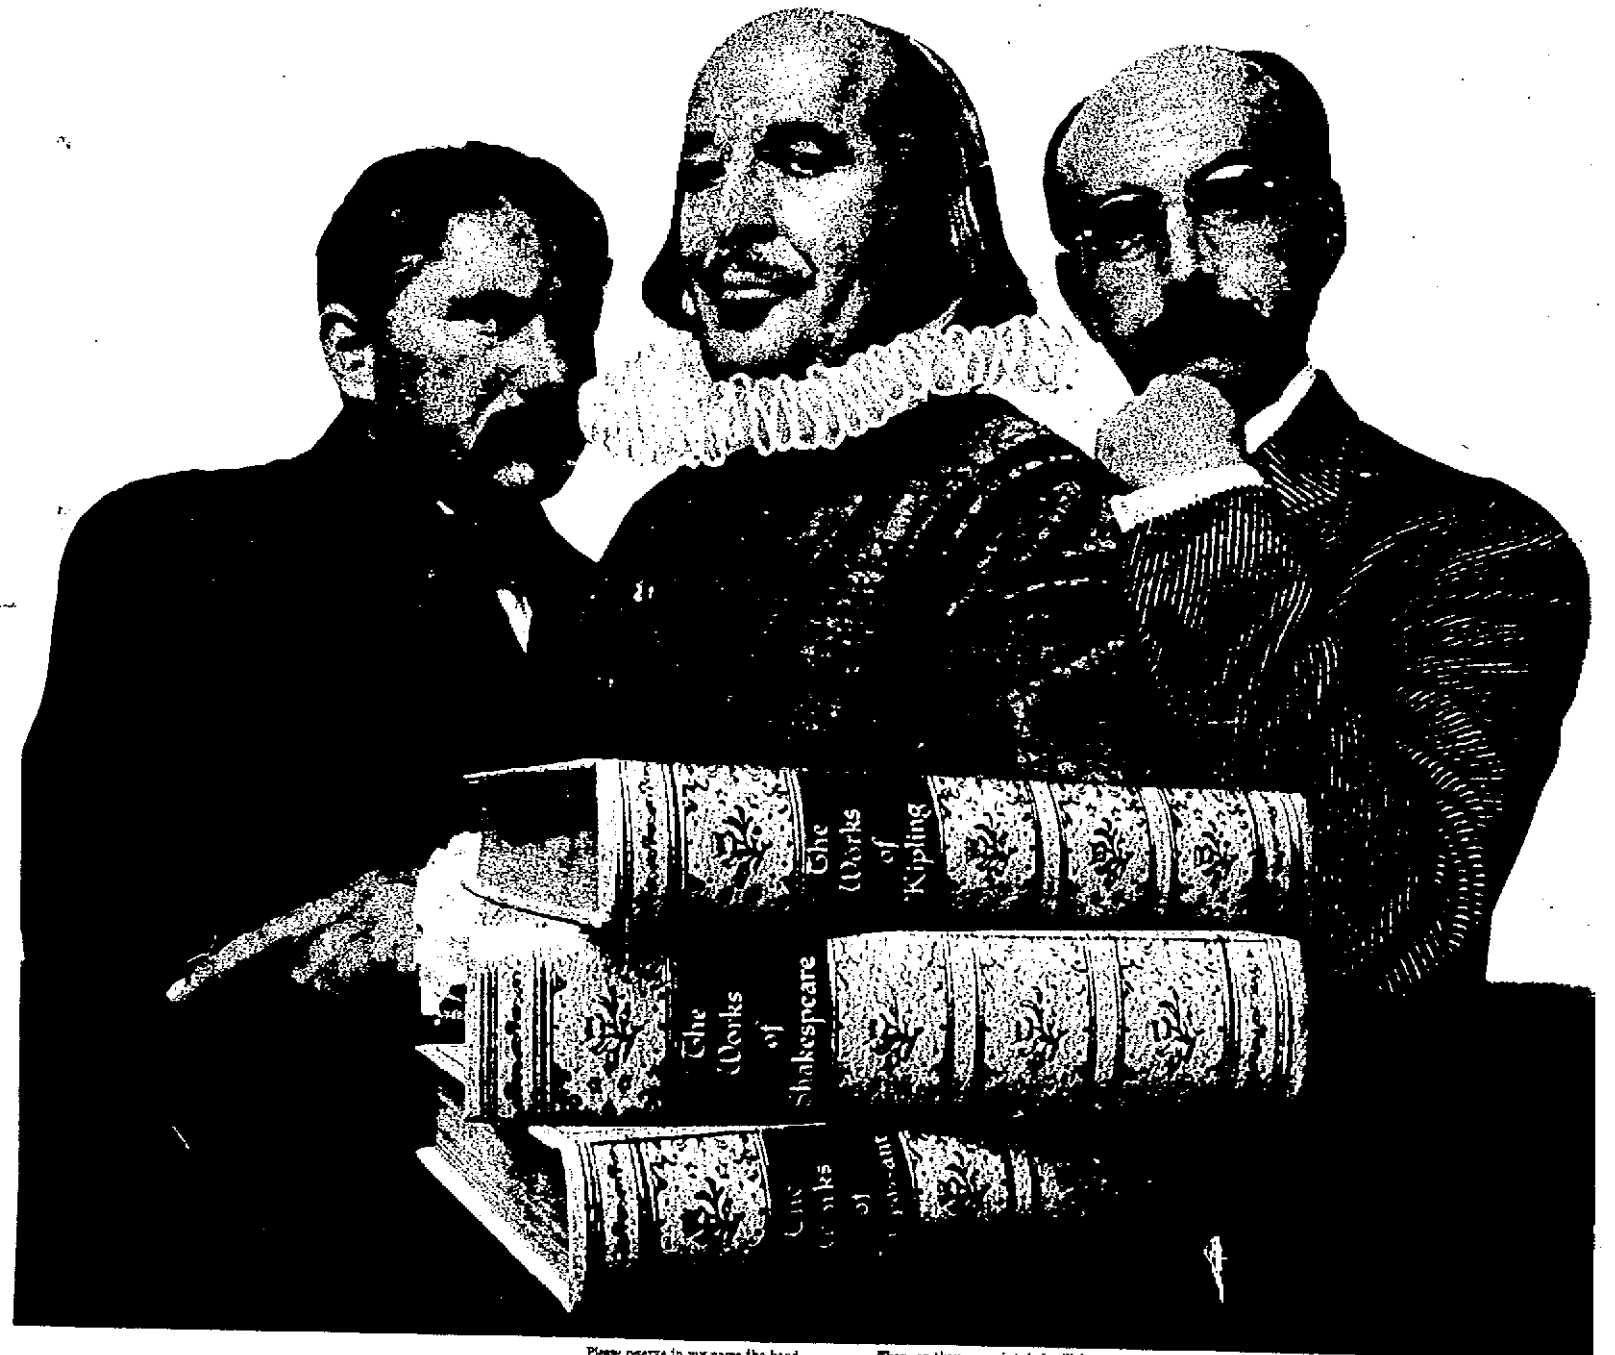

We'll merely offer. You alone will decide whether or not you accept.

But we're betting you'll want to build a library of great storytellers for you and your family to enjoy.

So meet Shakespeare, Kipling, de Maupassant.

Send no money now. Just mail the coupon to get all three for the introductory price of just $1 each.

CARL CAYN'S BOLD THEFT OF A CLASSIFIED TAPE FROM A.N.A.T.O. CONFERENCE BRINGS ABOUT A HURRIED MEETING TO PLAN PURSUIT.

BEING RECOGNIZED BY HIS BROTHER, IDENTIFIED AT ONCE, MUST HAVE BEEN A SHOCK TO HIM, SIR.

HE MUST HAVE REASONED THAT WE MIGHT NEVER COME UP WITH A NAME AND A PEDIGREE. NOW HE'S GOT TO RUN SCARED - AND WITH FEWER ALTERNATIVES.

HE CAN'T JUST CASUALLY SLIP BACK INTO SWEDEN. ONCE HE SURFACED THERE, THEY'D RETHINK HIS "HUMANITARIAN ASYLUM" DODGE - BUT HE'S GOT TO GET OUT OF THIS COUNTRY FAST.

SIR, WHAT ABOUT NIA? WHAT WILL HE DO WITH HER?

GOOD QUESTION, CAYN. NOW THAT HE'S IN A FAT HURRY, SHE'S A PROBLEM. TAKING HER ALONG WILL SLOW HIM DOWN...

...AND IF HE LEAVES HER BEHIND SHE MIGHT BE ABLE TO GIVE US HIS ESCAPE ROUTE.

AND HE MUST HAVE ONE, COLONEL LEE. THE EAST GERMANS WILL SURELY HAVE PROVIDED HIM WITH AN EMERGENCY EXIT.

FORTUNATELY, MY COUNTRY IS INCONVENIENTLY ARRANGED FOR ESCAPING AGENTS. BARRING THE SWEDISH BORDER, THERE IS ONLY ONE PRACTICAL WAY - BY SEA.

MAKES SENSE, INSPECTOR VEGEN, BUT YOU HAVE A LONG BLASTED SEACOAST AND ENOUGH FJÖRDS TO HIDE A FLEET IN, NO LESS A GETAWAY BOAT.

THE EAST GERMANS WOULD NEVER BE THAT SLIPSHOD, GENERAL. I WOULD ARRANGE SUCH AN AFFAIR SO MYSELF.

"SHORTLY, ONE OF THEIR TRAWLERS OFF OUR COAST SHOULD GET A RADIO SIGNAL TO CONCENTRATE ON A PARTICULAR FISH - IN TROUBLED WATERS, OF COURSE."

THE DIVERS WE DISPATCHED TO INTERCEPT AND DESTROY THE GIANT PUNJAB WERE... REGRETTABLY... DESTROYED THEMSELVES, CAPTAIN!

FORTUNATE FOR THEM THEY WERE!! THE REWARD FOR FAILURE IS... INSTANT LIQUIDATION!!

"THE HEIGHTS BY GREAT MEN REACHED AND KEPT WERE NOT ATTAINED BY SUDDEN FLIGHT, BUT THEY, WHILE COMPANIONS SLEPT, WERE TOILING UPWARDS IN THE NIGHT."
- LONGFELLOW

PUNJAB'S PROBABLY REACHED ANNIE BY NOW! IF NOTHING INTERFERES, THEY SHOULD BE BACK HERE IN 24 HOURS!

BUT THAT'S WISHFUL THINKING! THE OTHER SIDE WILL STOP AT NOTHING TO WRECK MY PLANS... AND ME, TOO, IF IT'S NECESSARY!

YOU FIGGERED THESE TWO "RANGERS" WERE STRICTLY FROM BALONEYVILLE WHEN YOU SPOTTED THE SILENCER ON THEIR GUNS, EH, PUNJAB?

SILENCE IS GOLDEN... SAVE WHEN ATTACHED TO THE BARREL OF A .45, PRINCESS!

WHAT'RE WE GONNA DO ABOUT THEM TWO CREEPS, PUNJAB?

FIRST THINGS FIRST! IT IS OF THE UTMOST IMPORTANCE TO GAIN PRECIOUS TIME! TO ACHIEVE THIS, WE MUST DESTROY THE CABIN!

AN' MAKE THE BAD GUYS THINK WE'VE BEEN BLOWN UP WITH IT?

PRECISELY, PRINCESS! BY THE TIME THEY DISCOVER THAT THEY HAVE BEEN DUPED, WE SHALL BE WELL ON OUR WAY!

AN' THE TWO PHONY RANGERS?

THEY RICHLY MERIT DEATH... BUT TO BORROW THEIR TACTICS WOULD BE TO SINK TO THEIR DEPTHS OF DEPRAVITY!

THE EXPLOSION AND FLAMES CAN BE SEEN FOR MILES... AND CREATE THE DESIRED IMPRESSION ON THE PART OF OUR ADVERSARIES! NOW ...TO OUR IMPOSTORS AND THEIR FATE....

W-WHAT'RE YOU GONNA DO WITH US? YAAAARRGH ... HE'S RIPPIN' THE WHOLE TREE OUTA THE GROUND!!

YOU ARE BEING DISPATCHED ON A TRIP...
